Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—The relations between the European Allies and the United States will be discussed at the International Conference now being held here. This decision was taken today on the suggestion of Premier Lloyd George who had previously ordered Ambassador Sir Auckland Geddes to come to Paris during his (the Premier's) stay here. Sir Auckland will give the conference all the information with which he is supposed to be very well equipped as to the American attitude and the plans of President-elect Harding with regard to European affairs.

It is stated tonight that the discussion will take place under three heads: First, the attitude of the United States with regard to the League of Nations; second, the attitude of the United States with regard to the debts of the Allies, and third, the general attitude of the United States toward the Allies and toward Germany.

In addition to the report of the British Ambassador at Washington it is expected that there will be available a report which Ambassador Jusserand has been asked to draw up on the same subject.

Information and Guidance Sought.

It is not to be supposed that the discussion will result in anything very definite. What the Allies are really seeking is information and guidance which will help them. Actually they feel themselves very much in the dark concerning future American action, and at the same time they feel the difficulties of negotiating with President Wilson for fear of compromising themselves with the next Administration.

Their present task of trying to strike a balance sheet of Europe they feel will be helped by getting facts which will enable them to see where Europe stands on the world balance sheet. For instance, they hope the Ambassadors will be able to give them some definite indication of Senator Harding's attitude toward the allied debts, and whether he intends, as they believe he does, to substitute long term credits for the present system. Certainly they feel they cannot come to any final decision on the reparations matter and the method of payment without knowing what treatment America is likely to mete out to them in turn.

In bringing the matter forward in this way Lloyd George also hopes that he will get the French more into line with his policy by showing them clearly their position with regard to America and the world balance sheet. Further, he is anxious to find out what attitude the other allies are likely to adopt toward the League of Nations proposals of the next President, and all are interested in knowing what Mr. Harding's attitude will be toward peace with Germany and whether or not the rights of the allied countries under the treaty of Versailles are likely to be compromised.

These are all questions on which the Allies are eagerly seeking information, and by the answers which Sir Auckland Geddes gives their policy in many matters must be to some extent regulated.

As already stated, nothing very definite is likely to come of the immediate discussion, but it is assured that the matter will be again taken up at another conference to be held in London next month, when the American attitude toward the Near East question will arise. In all financial questions during the next three months there will, too, be the necessity for consulting American opinion, and it is intended as soon as possible to ask the United States Government to designate some one to confer with the Allies.

Britain Against Loan to Austria.

The task of undoing the work of the Paris Peace Conference was continued this morning when the Allied Ministers took up consideration of saving what the Peace Conference left of Austria. The French favored the project of extending a credit of $250,000,000 to Austria, but Lloyd George objected, saying it would not offer a basic remedy for that country's condition. The work of drafting a plan of aid was handed to a commission composed of Sir Robert Horne for Great Britain, M. Loucheur for France, and Signor Giannini for Italy.

According to the official Agenda tonight the Prime Ministers will begin tomorrow discussion of the difficult question of reparations. There is wide divergence among the statesmen on this problem. The allied military experts have finished their report on the omissions of Germany in fulfilling her disarmament promises and the conference may also consider this report tomorrow.

The French press today expresses great disappointment that the question of disarmament was not settled yes-

Doctor Would Nationalize Canadian Medical Profession

ST. CATHERINES, Ont., Jan. 25.—Urging nationalization of the medical profession, former Mayor Heth of Kitchener, himself a doctor, declared in an address today at Welland that about 50 per cent. of operations now being performed were unnecessary.

He advocated placing doctors under Government salary and educating the public by a system of lectures on hygiene.

MILAN, Jan. 25.—Another tragic epidemic of rioting broke out yesterday in many cities of Northern and Central Italy.

At Modena a public funeral was being accorded to a young Nationalist student named Ruini who was murdered there on Sunday in a Socialist ambush, when Socialist rowdies intervened to upset the procession. Rifles were fired and bombs rained on the cortège from the windows and roofs of the General Post Office, where the Bolshevist faction is particularly strong.

Two Nationalists were killed outright, and twenty-two participants in the procession, mostly young people of both sexes, were wounded by bullets.

Toward evening a savage reaction set in. Infuriated demonstrators smashed their way into the offices and private residences of reputed Bolsheviki, making complete wrecks of the interiors. Tons of furniture, books and documents of every description were thrown into the streets for bonfires. The fine City Chamber of Labor was delivered to the flames, and its utter destruction was hastened by large masses of explosives. The firemen had a difficult task in preventing the flames from ravaging the entire quarter.

At Bologna a Royal Guard was barbarously assassinated.

A long list of dead and injured comes also from Perugia, Piacenza, Ferrara and Novara.

MODENA, Italy, Jan. 25.—The Socialists have declared a general strike.

ROME, Jan. 25.—Owing to the grave situation in the Provinces of Bologna and Modena, in the latter of which three persons were killed in a fight between Socialists and the Fascisti, Premier Giolitti has ordered the revocation of permits to carry arms. The Premier has directed the Prefects to arrest any person found in the possession of arms, which must all be surrendered to the authorities.

Thieves at Nice Take Jewels and Money From Peruvian Attache.

NICE, Jan. 25.—B. Ayulo, Peruvian Commercial Attaché here, today filed a complaint with the police that jewels and money estimated to be worth more than 1,000,000 francs were stolen Sunday night from rooms occupied by Señora Ayulo and himself in a local hotel.

Señor Ayulo said he placed his pocketbook on his dressing table and that his wife put her jewels in the drawer of a table in her room. The jewels and money were gone on Monday morning. The police say the thief entered the apartment through Señor Ayulo's bedroom door.

7 Men in Seaplane Marooned 15 Hours By Ice in Raritan Bay; Rescued by Firemen

Special to The New York Times.

KEYPORT, N. J., Jan. 25.—Seven men who went aloft in a seaplane test flight, preparatory to a "hop" to Miami, Fla., had many thrills that began when they started to descend at 11 A. M. yesterday and ended shortly after 2 o'clock this morning—fifteen hours later.

After the flying boat had been up two hours, Pilot Cy Zimmerman discovered that the waters of the Raritan Bay air station had become choked with cakes of ice. He landed in that part of the bay which seemed most clear—about fifteen hundred yards from shore. One wing of the machine tilted into the water and in a few minutes was frozen fast. A thirty-mile wind blew spray over the seaplane and the entire fuselage and the other wing soon were sheathed in ice.

When the predicament of the seven men was discovered on shore, A. C. Cambbell, F. Bailey and A. Johnson tried to rescue them in a motor boat. The boat got a few feet off shore when the rudder broke and the rescuers had to rescue themselves. Two other attempts to send a boat to the frozen seaplane also failed.

Meanwhile Zimmerman and his companions, E. Sanborn, assistant pilot; H. Maurese, J. Vigni, D. Harriman, H. Kaufman and G. Spring, huddled in the fore cabin of the fourteen-passenger seaplane, trying to keep warm in a four-above-zero temperature. At nightfall the Keyport Fire Department was called out. The firemen brought a searchlight, and under its glaring rays strove to rescue the airmen from the elements.

At 1 o'clock this morning a motorboat started out again. Bucking the ice with almost every revolution of its propeller, it approached the plane. When at last it came alongside the seven men jumped aboard. They were taken to Raritan Inn, where hot food and drinks were served to them. They appeared none the worse for their experience.

The plane would be saved, it was said tonight, and repairs made in time for the flight to Florida to be made this week.

ENVOYS COMPLETE JAPAN AGREEMENT FOR GOVERNMENTS

Recommendations Will Now Go to Cabinets for Their Approval.

WOULD END DISCRIMINATION

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Negotiations between Roland S. Morris, American Ambassador to Japan, and Baron Kijuro Shidehara, Japanese Ambassador to the United States, in which an effort was made to settle the California alien land question and define the rights of Japanese in the United States have been successfully concluded. The recommendations of the Ambassadors await approval by the respective Governments.

These negotiations began in Tokio early last year, and for the last six months have been in progress in Washington. The conversations between the two Ambassadors had virtually reached the point of informal agreement before the Christmas holidays, and since the first of the year Ambassador Morris has been preparing for consideration by the State Department a report with recommendations which he has now completed. Baron Shidehara also has been at work on his report to his Government, with recommendations. It coincides with the recommendations that Ambassador Morris is making.

The conclusions reached by the two Ambassadors are only tentative until approved by their Governments. Whenever such approval is given, it is expected the agreement will take the form of treaty amendments, to be submitted for ratification, and of a supplementary "gentleman's agreement" on Japanese immigration.

Secretary Colby, who returns to Washington this week from South America, will carefully consider the Morris report, and, if satisfied with what has been done and the Japanese Foreign Office approves the recommendations of Baron Shidehara, the proposed agreement will be submitted to President Wilson, to decide whether he will submit it to the Senate at the present session or pass over the result of the negotiations to President Harding. In any event, the matter is expected to be held in abeyance by the Senate until after the new Administration is inaugurated.

Japan is especially desirous that there shall be no discrimination against Japanese subjects in the United States. This object is sought to be reached, in the tentative understanding, by amendment of the existing commercial treaty. This amendment proposes that Japanese nationals in the United States shall be accorded civil rights equal to those accorded other nationals in this country.

It is not the idea that the Japanese in the United States shall be admitted to American citizenship, but that their civil rights shall not be subjects of discrimination. To give effect to this part of the proposed treaty amendment it is understood to be contemplated that California and other States embarking on alien land ownership laws shall frame them so as to make them applicable alike to all aliens. If this is done, the present California alien land law aimed at Japanese would be amended or repassed, with broadened scope, so as to make it applicable equally to all aliens. With such an arrangement it is understood Japan would be satisfied, through the removal of what she regards as direct discrimination against Japanese in California.

The present "gentlemen's agreement" between this country and Japan, under which Japan agreed to send no more immigrants to this country, permits dependent relatives of Japanese who are already in the country to come to the United States. The proposed modified "gentlemen's agreement" would exclude all Japanese from immigrating to the United States and also bar them from immigration into the Hawaiian Islands. It would not be intended to bar the temporary admission of travelers, students, tourists and others of like status. The new agreement, however, would not prohibit Japanese immigration to the Philippines.

The Morris-Shidehara recommendations to their respective Governments also deal

Plot to Kill All Dry Agents In North Alabama Charged

FLORENCE, Ala., Jan. 25.—A plot to exterminate the entire force of prohibition enforcement officers operating in northern Alabama has been unearthed, according to State Supervisor N. L. Pierce. Discovery of the plot, he said today, followed the arrest of eleven persons in connection with the killing last Saturday of Don Stephenson, a member of a prohibition squad, and the wounding at the same time of two other officers.

Mr. Pierce declared there was reason to believe that State and county officers, as well as Federal, were marked for annihilation.

THREATS TO STOKES END IN MAN'S ARREST

CAUGHT TAKING $20 BILL

Prisoner Boasted That He Had Got Money From "Five Millionaires."

Nils Gustav Rehnstrom, a young Swede, was seized in the office of W. E. D. Stokes last night in the act of extorting money by threatening letters.

Mr. Stokes called detectives after he got two letters. The first was signed "All Our Reformed Burglars." It bore rude sketches of a sputtering bomb and a building in ruins, and threatened dire consequences unless Mr. Stokes handed over $500 in $10 bills, which the writer promised to repay. The letter said that the plotters already had wrung money from "five millionaires" and had repaid two.

The second letter was thrust into the mail box yesterday at Mr. Stokes's office, 262 West Seventy-second Street, after he had failed to heed the first, sent by mail. It offered him "another chance."

Rehnstrom battled hard for freedom after detectives of the West Sixty-eighth Street station had grabbed him while he still clutched a $20 bill which Mr. Stokes paid him "on account" when he came to the office just after 6 o'clock. When Detectives Leonard and Golding had subdued him, he said that his act was inspired by two men he recently had met in a restaurant in Times Square. He refused to say whether he had intimidated other rich men, as his letter boasted.

Lost His Job Up-State.

Interrogated in the West Sixty-eighth Street Station before he was locked in Police Headquarters on a charge of extortion, Rehnstrom, who is 17, and said that his father was a Police Chief in Sweden, told the police that he came to New York a few weeks ago after he lost his job when an up-State lamp works closed. He found no job here, he said, and owed a week's board at 230 East Eighty-fourth Street. The police found no money on him and nothing to back up the boast that his extortion scheme had been successful before. He was unarmed and had no weapons or bomb materials in his room.

The first letter, received by Mr. Stokes on Monday and dated Sunday, said beneath the drawings of destruction:

"Bring fifty $10 bills to Central Park and Fifty-ninth Street, behind the big monument, at 9 o'clock, Monday, Jan. 24. Will pay back every cent with 5 per cent. interest. In two months you will have your money back. Don't tell anybody about this note for if you do? If you don't come along to the place? Something will happen to your office or your home or yourself. Remember, will pay you in nine months, so burn envelope and note at once and look upon it as a simple loan. This will be the first and last note to you, so be there in time or (see above). We have already written to five millionaires and repaid two. All will be repaid. This is the last note forever three of us are sending you, so leave your weapons at home.

"All Our Reformed Burglars."

The second letter was dated "Tuesday, 6 P. M. Tonight." It was written on silver-bordered paper, a supply of which was found in Rehnstrom's room. It read:

"One More Chance."

"Didn't meet you last night, but will give you one more chance. Be alone at your office at 262 West Seventy-second Street at 6 o'clock. Send away your secretary and don't tell him anything. Will repay you in seven weeks with $500 and full interest. T. S.

"P. S.—Don't ever tell anybody."

Mr. Stokes dismissed his three employes about 4:30 and waited alone in his office on the first floor of the house with a high stoop, formerly a private dwelling. One detective hid behind the storm doors in the vestibule, the other waited on the street.

Rehnstrom rang the bell and readily admitted to Mr. Stokes, who opened the door, that he was the author of the letters.

"I'm sorry I can't pay it all now, but here is $20 on account," said Mr. Stokes, as he handed over the bill. "I'll pay you the rest tomorrow."

As the Swede's fingers closed on the bill the detectives seized him.

The police believe that Rehnstrom did not have any accomplices, and that he learned Mr. Stokes's name through recent publications of a petition to the Supreme Court asking for permission to file a fourth complaint in his suit for divorce from his wife, Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes. The suit is to be heard next month.

REFUSED TO VISIT MORSE

OTHERS CORROBORATE HIM

Grace to Produce Photostat Copy of Books Showing $100,000 Went to "Profit and Loss."

Charles M. Schwab, Chairman of the Board of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and formerly Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, wept when testifying yesterday before the Congressional Committee on Shipping Board Operations in the Hotel Pennsylvania. He again denied that he ever had received a penny from the Government either in payment of his salary as a "dollar a year" man or in reimbursement of expenses incurred as Director General.

Mr. Schwab gave way to his emotions when describing a meeting between himself and Perley Morse last Friday at the Hotel St. Regis. The meeting, he said, had been arranged by Edwin Wildman, managing editor of The Forum.

Mr. Schwab said he was dining at the Hotel Pennsylvania with Mr. Grace and Mr. Moore. They were approached by Mr. Wildman, whom he had met. Mr. Wildman said he was a friend of Perley Morse, and had read Mr. Schwab's testimony denying charges that $100,000 of a $269,543 voucher for Mr. Schwab's expenses had been charged to the Government as ship construction cost. Mr. Wildman felt that if an injustice had been done Mr. Schwab, Perley Morse would be ready to acknowledge any mistake on his part.

Meeting Arranged by Phone.

Later in the day Mr. Schwab said he received a telephone message from Mr. Wildman, who suggested that Mr. Schwab come to Mr. Morse's office to talk the matter over. Mr. Schwab replied that he would not go to Perley Morse's office under any circumstances. Then Mr. Wildman suggested that Mr. Schwab meet Mr. Morse at the Republican Club. Mr. Morse has rooms there. Mr. Schwab said he refused this, but suggested that Mr. Morse see him at the Schwab residence. Mr. Morse refused. Then Mr. Wildman put Mr. Morse on the wire, and it was agreed that Mr. Morse and Mr. Wildman should meet Mr. Schwab, Mr. Grace and Mr. Moore in the Hotel St. Regis.

"At that interview," continued Mr. Schwab, "I said to Mr. Morse what I had said to Mr. Wildman—that the facts which I had related were true, and that I was now at the end of a long forty years' business career, and that it was a matter so indescribably deep in my heart to be charged with something of that kind that I hoped he would correct it. He would not do it. He said there were explanations and reasons"—

At this point Mr. Schwab was unable to control his emotions. He wept.

"I hope you will excuse me, Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the committee," he said, as the tears rolled from his eyes.

"I can't help making this reflection at this time," broke in Representative Foster. "As a member of this committee I want to express on the record my appreciation of the manner, Mr. Schwab, in which you have introduced evidence concerning this voucher; and aside from my membership on the committee I want to express my appreciation as an American citizen of the service you rendered in the recent war."

Applause Greets Foster.

"There is no jury to affect, or court to be influenced, but I say that out of an appreciation of the situation I feel that I am compelled to give expression to it."

"I thank you very much," said Mr. Schwab.

Before Mr. Schwab was dismissed he was asked by Chairman Walsh whether he had made any effort to stop the Perley Morse audit of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation's accounts. He said he had not.

As the witness was leaving the stand, Congressman Foster again thanked Mr. Schwab for his voluntary appearance before the committee, and two other committee members told a reporter for THE TIMES they were convinced that Mr. Schwab had not received from the Government any money for his expenses while Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. They would not discuss the regularity of the so-called "misapplied items" said to have been discovered by Perley Morse & Co., replying substantially as did Chairman Walsh, that their conclusions would be made known when the committee filed its report. The report must be submitted before March 4.

Mr. Schwab's distress took the members of the committee as well as the spectators by surprise. The silence in the room seemed intensified as the witness tried to regain his composure. Chairman Walsh bit his lips, betraying his own feelings by moist eyes and flushed cheeks. Several of Mr. Schwab's close friends were affected similarly.

The reaction was all the more unexpected because Mr. Schwab had appeared at the hearing in the morning

MILLER REBUFFS HYLAN IN TRACTION PLEA; SAYS STATE ONLY HAS REGULATIVE POWER; LAWMAKERS LIMIT LOCKWOOD INQUIRY

Governor's Traction Plan Will Hand Mayoralty To Hylan on a Silver Platter, Says LaGuardia

F. H. LaGuardia, the Republican President of the Board of Aldermen, in an address at the Textile School last night said:

"If the Republican Party stands back of Governor Miller the result will be, you will find, that the Governor will hand the Mayoralty to Mayor Hylan on a silver platter in the coming election. Let's not dodge that.

"We all (the members of the Board of Estimate) received quite a shock when we read Governor Miller's remarks on the transit situation. It's the most daring suggestion as a solution for the transit situation of New York that was ever set forth.

"I told the Governor that I was stunned, that I had not yet caught my breath. I told him that I do not think he realizes what it means. It means this:

"First, it means the taking away from the City of New York the power to pass upon the fare question entirely. Secondly, it takes away from the city all jurisdiction and control or say in any traction matter except to put out money for new subways.

"The Governor said that the 'water' had already been squeezed out of the various companies. That statement is startling, coming from a man as careful as Governor Miller. I state positively that none of the water has been squeezed out.

"The plan is to unite all the companies and let the new Public Service Commission fix the fare. It means that in a few years these companies, then united as one, will be exactly in the same plight and then the Governor suggests that the city can take these companies over and they can be all municipally owned.

"No matter what increased fares you give these surface car companies, they simply can't operate. They are gone now.

"The city does not want to take over this junk. I suggested in my annual message that all the companies should be put under one operating company and must first strike off their books all obsolete equipment and rotten financing, and then they can operate, because then they are not artificial carrying charges.

"When the Governor says there is a lot of 'loose talk' about home rule, that remark is flippant and entirely unbecoming. He is liable to get a rather rude awakening and find that the people of New York are determined not to lose control of their own affairs."

REFUSE FULL POWER TO LOCKWOOD BODY

LOCKWOOD RAPS ACTION

Says the Change in Resolution Blocks Housing Committee's Most Important Work.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 25.—Simultaneous action was taken today by the Senate Finance Committee and the Assembly Ways and Means Committee to chop out of the resolution introduced by Senator Charles C. Lockwood of Kings in his quest for power for the Legislative Housing Committee to investigate insurance companies and banks, the provision delegating such power.

The amended resolution will be reported in both houses of the Legislature at the session tomorrow. Senator Lockwood in a statement issued tonight declared that the action of the committees would have the effect of crippling the Housing Committee in its future work.

Here is the Senator's statement:

"The amended resolution reported today by the Senate Finance Committee by a vote of 7 to 6 cripples the work of the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing. The committee sought to do three things:

"First—To meet the crisis existing in April and September, 1920, it advocated the so-called rent laws, the passage of which prevented thousands of evictions and curtailed rent profiteering.

"Second—To expose the unlawful combinations which were preying upon capital and labor alike, thus adding from 20 to 100 per cent. to the legitimate cost of building materials. This work is well under way and has resulted in many indictments and some pleas of guilty. It is hoped to complete it within the next few weeks.

"Third—To find a loan market so that mortgage money would be available at reasonable rates. The housing crisis can be solved only by the erection of more houses. They cannot be built without mortgage loans. The Federal and State income tax laws have made real estate mortgages an undesirable investment for individuals and estates. We hope to show that mortgage money could and should be obtained from the corporations who are favored by the State and Federal tax laws and in whose hands interest on mortgage loans is exempt from taxation. The amended resolution in a large measure prevents the committee from pursuing this line of inquiry which, after all, is the most important of the three."

The resolution in its amended form does not contain any provision for the investigation of insurance companies and banks. It grants it this new power, for what it is worth:

"To inquire into the practices and usages with respect to the making and withholding of real estate and building loans, and the cost payments and expenses involved in making and obtaining such loans."

The committee is given the power it seeks to grant witnesses immunity from prosecution that might grow out of testimony given before it. This is regarded as important by both Chairman Lockwood and Samuel Untermyer, chief counsel of the Housing Committee. Many witnesses, according to Senator Lockwood, could not be induced to tell the committee what they knew regarding criminal conspiracies to obstruct

CRAIG OPENS FIGHT ON MILLER PROGRAM

FORECASTS COURT ACTION

Delaney Denies Water Is Out of Securities—Democrats Welcome Issue for Campaign.

A legal fight by New York City against the proposed solution of the traction problem made by Governor Nathan L. Miller in his message to the Legislature was forecast yesterday by Controller Charles L. Craig. Mr. Craig condemned Governor Miller's proposal and declared that its adoption would mean a return to the days of "Jacob Sharp, Peter B. Sweeney and others," and "would repeat the last two generations of crooked finance, exploitation of innocent investors and intolerable and indecent service."

Transit Construction Commissioner John H. Delaney also assailed the Governor's proposal and denied the Governor's statement that the water had been squeezed out of the traction company's securities.

Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, said he believed the only hope of solution of the traction problem was along the lines suggested by the Governor. Frank Hedley, President of the Interborough, and Job E. Hedges, receiver of the New York Railways Company, declined to comment.

Generally, Democratic politicians, while denouncing the Governor's message, welcomed it as framing an issue for the city campaign. It has long been recognized by the Democratic leaders that Mayor Hylan's greatest apparent political asset is his opposition to an increased fare, and the general belief among Democrats is that he can be reelected on this issue.

Leaders Not to Oppose Miller.

Local Republican leaders, although not willing to be quoted for publication, made it clear that they do not intend to oppose the Governor's suggestion, although individual legislators may do so. Although not accepting the increased fare issue as yet, the Republican leaders were said to be willing to face the risk of temporary unpopularity, in the belief that time would show that a just arrangement was possible along lines suggested by the Governor.

Sig Cedarstrom, former real estate expert of the Public Service Commission, and now Chairman of the Transit Committee of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, said the traction problem in New York City would never be solved until there was a physical valuation of the traction properties and the fare based upon this valuation instead of upon securities issued. Mr. Cedarstrom said the fare should be fixed so as to provide for the expenses of operation and a fair return on the physical value. He said the traction situation in Brooklyn was the greatest obstacle to the development of that borough.

In his statement, opposing the Governor's program, Controller Craig said:

"Governor Miller's proposed solution of the fare question is a step backward of fifty years. More than half a century ago the City of New York was ravaged by the Legislature in the grant of perpetual franchises to Charles W. Durant and others over Governor Morgan's veto, and to Jacob Sharp, Peter B. Sweeney and others, to occupy the principal streets of the City of New York. For

WON'T SUPPORT BUS LINE

OPPOSES PIECEMEAL MOVE

DEFENDS STATE CONTROL

He Declares Present Difficulties Are in Part Due to Divided Responsibility.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 25.—Governor Miller this afternoon told Mayor Hylan and other members of the New York Board of Estimate that no violation of the home rule principle was involved in State control of traction in New York City, as proposed by the Governor in his message to the Legislature. Any contrary opinion, he said, was "loose talk," caused by "loose thinking."

The New York City officials, including Mayor Hylan, President LaGuardia of the Board of Aldermen, Borough Presidents Curran of Manhattan, Riegelmann of Brooklyn, Connolly of Queens and Bowe of Richmond, and Corporation Counsel O'Brien and Mr. Whalen, Commissioner of Plants and Structures, came to the Capitol primarily to urge the Governor to ask the Legislature promptly to enact a bill which would permit the Board of Estimate to purchase, own and operate buses.

A similar measure was introduced at the extraordinary session of the Legislature last year and was passed by the Senate but was beaten in the Assembly. The Governor told the New York City officials that he did not approve of their scheme and that, unless his views on the subject underwent a radical change, he would not comply with their request.

All day the Governor's traction message has been the topic of animated discussion among the lawmakers and in official circles at the Capitol. The boldness of his approach to the problem from an angle that is bound to prove unpopular in New York City, even among a host of men and women belonging to the Governor's own party, was the subject of laudatory comment even from those who are opposed to his program and prepared to fight it in the Legislature.

It looks now as if the plan proposed by the Governor, unless substantially modified, will meet with the solid opposition of the New York City delegation in the Senate and Assembly, regardless of party lines. On the other hand, indications point to a united stand behind the Governor on the part of the up-State legislators of whom, with only one exception, all are Republicans. That should enable him to put his program through, for only 23 out of 51 Senators and 62 out of 150 Assemblymen represent constituencies in New York City. There is in addition one Democratic Assemblyman from up-State, representing an Albany district.

Mayor Hylan and the other city officials arrived in Albany this afternoon. The Governor received them in the Executive Chamber, where with great earnestness they presented their plea for legislation to permit city-owned and city-operated buses to relieve congestion and cater to sections in Brooklyn and elsewhere where operations have been suspended by the traction companies. The Governor did not utter a word until all had spoken. What the Chief Executive had to say then was pronounced by one of the officials to whom his remarks were addressed as "more than a mouthful."

Much of what the Governor said undoubtedly was provoked by earlier utterances by Borough President Curran of Manhattan. He strongly backed the demand of Mayor Hylan for the right to run buses, and questioned the justice of an expression embodied in the Governor's message in which he characterized as "loose talk" much that had been said upon the subject of home rule in its relation to the traction problem in New York City. Borough President Curran voiced the opinion that home rule had been "underdone" rather than "overdone" in New York City.

Calls Opponents "Loose Thinkers."

The Governor began by saying that the very visit of the city officials and their request were so much evidence that the traction situation in New York City had drifted beyond their control to a point where it was necessary to apply a potent corrective. He said the city was not suffering on account of a subway problem but as the result of a problem in which all the methods of transportation entered as elements that must be correlated by some single body, equipped with ample powers of regulation.

"The Borough President of Manhattan has challenged my expression of 'loose talking' on this subject of power of regulation of public utilities," the Governor went on. "With all respect, and I recognize the right of every one to differ with me, I think that there is not only loose talking, but loose thinking about it, and that the talk of invading or taking power from the city, which is suggested, is the result of loose thinking, both historically and legally.

"Of course, I have just dealt with this subject in a message to the Legislature. I have suggested that it be dealt with as a single problem, and what I have recommended to the Legislature is not that the State shall assume some power that it now is not exercising, but that a tribunal shall have the complete power to deal with the problem, and my view is that the present difficulties are due, in part at least, to the fact that responsibility is now divided among at least three agencies where I think there should be but one.

"Now, the truth is that it will be impossible to find anywhere, either in any constitutional provision or in any statute, a delegation to any municipality in the State of power over public utilities. The truth is that that power arises, and has created this confusion of thinking leading to what I call loose talking, from an entirely different power. The constitutional provision in the Constitution of 1875, which required the consent of municipalities to the laying of tracks in streets, the "local consents," as they are called, was not a delegation of any power of regulation over public utilities. It imposed a condition precedent to the construction that there should be local consent and under that the localities imposed conditions because they had a right to refuse the consent.

"Now, from that fact there has grown up what I call this loose talking—that in some way it is proposed to take power away from the municipalities.

Denies Invasion of City's Powers.

"I say they have never had the power because there is no delegation of power that can be found, either in the statute or in the Constitution, of regulation of public utilities. These special franchises were granted at a time when the State was not exercising its police power over public utilities. It first began to exercise it, in a fashion, with the old Railroad Commission, but it never undertook to exercise it in complete fashion until the Public Service Commissions law of 1907 was passed. For the first time in this State, in 1907, was there any complete exercise or attempt to exercise the power of regulation of public utilities. Now that power resides in the State Legislature. It has never resided anywhere else. It is no more an invasion of the power of municipalities than what the State may do with respect to education.

"The fact is that what I have proposed in my message is not that any power should be taken away from the cities that was ever granted to cities, but that the State should now completely exercise and enforce the regulatory power over public utilities which it has never surrendered.

"What I am recommending is that instead of dealing with this problem piecemeal, instead of having two or three agencies, one with the power to check the other, that some impartial tribunal shall be created completely to investigate the whole subject to determine what is the plan to put the transportation problem in the City of New York on a proper basis; to deal with it without ulterior motives, either political or otherwise, and to deal with it in such fashion that it will not be necessary for the city to come here and ask for weapons of defense; to deal with it in such fashion that everybody shall be satisfied that it is dealt with on the level in the interests of the people.

Curran Pleads for Home Rule.

"I think it is unfortunate that it gets into such a state that either one side or the other feels it must have a weapon of defense, and I think the time has come to deal with the proposition on the level, with no ulterior motives whatever, and to deal with it not with the notion that somebody has got to be defended, but that the public interest has got to be defended. I think that can be accomplished by a single tribunal. I do not think it can be accomplished by the continuation of divided authority. If it is to be accomplished by one tribunal, it is perfectly clear to me it must be that tribunal which can exercise that power, the police power of the State, which resides in the Legislature.

"Entertaining that view, I shall have to consider very carefully the question before I should recommend that the Legislature deal with the bus problem alone, because I think it must be dealt with after a complete study has been made of the whole problem, and I believe the buses should be made to serve their purpose, whatever it may be decided to be; the surface lines theirs to the extent they may be utilized; the subways the same and the elevated the same. So I may as well frankly say that, unless I change my present view, I shall not recommend to the Legislature to deal with this problem piecemeal."

Borough President Curran, in his remarks, pointed to the successful management by the city of its complex water system as proof that it was capable of going one step further and operating traction lines.

"The city," he said, "should have this weapon of defense to enable it to deal successfully and at arm's length with companies looking for franchises. We need the power and properly should have it.

"There should be no body clothed with the superseding powers suggested by Your Excellency in the message. We have invested $300,000,000 approximately in subways and are proud to say that but for the World War the lines would be operating now with satisfactory results, at least from a bookkeeping point of view.

"We have grown considerably in our capacity for self government in New York City, and I do not think it should be assumed for a moment that the power to manage our own affairs should be taken away from us now. Home rule has been underdone rather than overdone in New York City, and should apply in particular to such a partnership as has been established by the city in connection with its traction lines. I have made a study of this subject for many years and I have discovered that the objectionable, perpetual franchises that are troubling us now were granted by State Legislatures. I do not think we need any State interference to settle our partnership affairs. It would be tantamount to turning the clock back seventy-five years to a time when Governors appointed the Mayors of New York City."

Mayor Hylan, in his plea, called attention to the fact that the Board of Estimate had appropriated $1,000,000 for the purchase and maintenance of buses, but had been restrained by the Supreme Court from operating them in some localities in Brooklyn.

"We feel that if the law is made more definite and we are given the right to own and operate buses we can do a great deal toward relieving the traction congestion in the city," said the Mayor. "Reports from the Department of Plants and Structures satisfies us that buses can be operated successfully on a five-cent-fare basis. I am confident, from a first-hand study of the question, that the time is not far distant when buses will take the place of surface cars generally. We have no intention, however, of paralleling existing lines, and the bill we propose will be safeguarded accordingly."

Hylan Refuses Comment.

All the other city officials named briefly indorsed what the Mayor had said. Commissioner Whalen said that existing city buses, operating on forty-six routes established to meet emergencies, had been patronized by 75,000,000 persons.

What the Governor said virtually took the breath from the Mayor and his colleagues on the Board of Estimate. They marched up Capitol Hill jauntily. When they marched down they were a dejected lot. Mayor Hylan declined to comment on the Governor's speech, nor, he said, would he make any comment on the message until he had given it more detailed study. Mr. LaGuardia told the Governor that when he read the message it stunned him and he had not recovered yet.

Borough President Connolly of Queens was the only member of the Mayor's party who would consent to say anything for publication regarding the message.

"The Governor certainly is to be admired for his courage," he said. "He certainly goes all the way. There is no doubt that the message means an invitation to the traction people to help themselves to an eight-cent fare. But I do not think that, even if the Legislature should subscribe to the Governor's plan, the courts will. The city has made contracts which are binding and cannot be abrogated by legislation. Any laws that are passed along the lines suggested by the message, in my opinion, will be held unconstitutional."

"Do you think there is any justification for fare increases?" Mr. Connolly was asked.

"There may be on some lines, but not generally," he replied. "The Governor's suggestion that the city take over the surface lines with the subways certainly is taking the lean with the fat, but Father Knickerbocker, poor old man, is used to kicks and cuffs from Albany."

Earlier in the day the Governor was told that many of the New York City legislators undoubtedly would vote for his plan if they could be assured that the fare rate would be limited to 5 cents.

"That reflects a state of mind bordering on insanity," said the Governor. "In my judgment the paramount question is one of service, not of fares. If the people would view the problem in that light they would find out that before long they would be paying less than 5 cents."

The Governor added that his recommendation for municipal ownership did not mean that he was in favor of municipal operation of traction lines.

"It would be difficult to evolve a unified system if half of it were owned by private interests and half by the public," he said. "The city has already adopted a plan of municipal ownership, and it owns that which must be the backbone of a future unified transit system, but municipal operation would be absolutely fatal to good service and proper economy alike, so we must have private operation, with strict public regulation."

"Do you expect to get the necessary legislation to put your plan into effect?" the Governor was asked.

"I am not prophesying," the Governor replied.

MENOCAL NOT RESIGNING.

Cuban President Denies Rumor—Public Optimism Grows.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Jan. 25.—President Menocal tonight silenced the rumors of impending resignation which had disturbed Cuba since Friday by issuing a statement saying:

"It is so absurd that I do not wish to take up a moment of my time with it I need the time to continue defending the great interests of the country."

It had been prophesied at noon that the Senate would act upon his letter of resignation during the evening. The capital has been seething with rumors and the prolonged conference yesterday in which General Crowder participated was even said to have been concerned largely with the proposed withdrawal of the President.

A Presidential resignation would be proclaimed here as a form of intervention. Administration heads and friends have said since the first rumor of the impending resignation of the President that it was a canard circulated by the Liberal Party. The Liberal papers continued tonight to predict that it is coming.

The Government's administrative machinery is moving faster now than for several years, and public opinion is generally coming to the point of putting the credit to the presence of General Crowder, silent, aloof and extremely businesslike.

The fact that the Washington Government gave out encouraging reports about General Crowder's work here was accepted today in many circles as indicating that the situation would be cleared without intervention by the United States and that the financial crisis would be settled by a recommendation at an early date for a substantial loan, by American bankers.

building because the committee could not assure them of immunity.

One important, and, according to Senator Lockwood, far reaching excision made by the two committees has eliminated from the grant of power to investigate the construction, ownership, leasing, and renting of stores and office buildings, language that would constitute the committee the sole judge of when such an inquiry is necessary, and left that a question of fact which persons anxious to obstruct the work of the committee may take into court. When Mr. Untermyer appeared before the two committees last week he emphasized the necessity of the original provision for the purpose of shutting off obstructive litigation.

The Senate and Assembly committees also decided to eliminate in its entirety Clause 6, under which the State Superintendents of Banks and Insurance would have been required to co-operate with the Lockwood committee in furnishing data relating to the operations of banks and insurance companies.

Mr. Untermyer told the committees that these officials had voluntarily given their co-operation so far, and that it had proved exceedingly valuable.

The amended resolution was adopted unanimously by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, but it had a bare majority of one in the Senate Finance Committee.

AGAIN ATTACKS MAYER AND GARRISON

ASSAILS THE RECEIVERSHIP

Brooklyn Legislator Asserts That It Was Granted on Unpaid Claims of Only $46,000.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 25.—Rising to a question of personal privilege at the session today, Senator Ivah W. Burlingame Jr. of Brooklyn made another attack on United States Judge Julius M. Mayer and the Federal receivership established over the Brooklyn Rapid Transit lines.

Declaring that unpaid claims of only $46,600 led to the receivership, he questioned the propriety of throwing a public utilities corporation into the hands of a receiver on such slender grounds. He asserted that Lindley M. Garrison, named by Judge Mayer as receiver, had personally benefited to the extent of $125,000, which he had received as part payment for his first twelve months' services on orders issued by Judge Mayer, who also had authorized the payment of $131,000 to a firm of certified accountants which, Senator Burlingame said, made a specialty of certifying to losses sustained by large corporations which gave it a retainer.

Ostensibly Senator Burlingame arose to resent the characterization by Receiver Garrison as a joke of the movement begun by a number of legislators from Brooklyn and Queens to put an end to the Federal receivership of the B. R. T. lines.

"Substantially all the Senators and Assemblymen from Brooklyn want to see an early termination of the 'friendly receivership' that permits the Brooklyn traction companies to defy all State laws and to treat the public worse than so many cattle," said the Senator.

"When interviewed regarding the discussion in the Senate, Lindley M. Garrison, the Federal receiver, assumed the usual B. R. T. attitude—one of utter contempt. Mr. Garrison seems to think he is so strongly entrenched, backed as he is by the Federal court, that he says the matter is a joke.

"Of course, I am not surprised that he says he does not know me, for he knows scarcely anybody in Brooklyn, and he knows nothing of Brooklyn affairs. You see, until recently he was a Federal officeholder, a resident of another State, and only lately he took up his residence on Park Avenue, Manhattan.

Payments to Garrison.

"But we in Brooklyn are learning very fast about Mr. Receiver Garrison and his friend, the Federal Judge Julius M. Mayer, also of Manhattan.

"The Brooklyn traction company and their 'friendly creditors,' it seems, sought out Judge Mayer when they wanted a receiver appointed. They did not go to the two local Federal Judges, but on the theory that the Brooklyn traction companies maintained a little office over in Manhattan, for reasons of their own, they took the matter to Manhattan. These creditors had only $46,000 worth of unpaid claims.

"Maybe the Brooklyn Federal Judges would have laughed them out of court for their audacity in attempting an equitable receivership on such a comparatively small amount; or maybe the public can guess the reason. Also remember that no one, the traction companies, the creditors nor Judge Mayer, considered the company bankrupt.

"The proceedings were not ordinary bankruptcy proceedings; they were what are known as 'equitable receivership' proceedings—and every one concedes that there was a reason.

"Within the first year Mr. Receiver Garrison, a lawyer and not a practical railroad man, and his office assistant, received $125,000 as 'partial payment' for services out of the receivership brought on a claim of $46,000. And I am not mentioning the bill for 1920 for the bills for expenses of Mr. Receiver Garrison. That is a matter that deserves future attention.

$131,000 to Figure Losses.

"Perhaps Mr. Receiver Garrison considers the receipt of $125,000 in twelve months, 'on account' as a joke. Maybe when his full bill is presented it will be, by comparison, a joke. But the people of Brooklyn will not consider it a joke. They have paid this, five cents upon five cents, for the privilege of standing in the overstuffed cars of the B. R. T. Two million five hundred thousand passengers paid that standing tribute to Mr. Receiver Garrison.

"Now let us take just one other item at the expense of the straphangers of Brooklyn. Maybe this is the joke. Stone & Webster, a concern that claims to be expert in showing how much corporations are losing—particularly traction corporations—have received the modest sum of $131,000 to show how much the Brooklyn traction companies are losing.

"It shouldn't cost $131,000 for an expert to tell a $125,000 receiver how much the companies are losing under the receivership. But that is only a sample of the way 'equitable receiverships' are conducted.

Demands Investigation.

"It is time that the Senate passed the resolution introduced by my colleague, calling for an investigation into these matters, and prompt action should follow to end these intolerable conditions that are so contemptuously and sneeringly characterized as a 'joke.'"

Senator Holland T. Duell of Westchester protested when Senator Burlingame finished speaking.

The legislators from Manhattan and the Bronx, who were invited to join their colleagues from Brooklyn and Queens, but organized separately to take action regarding the New York Railways receivership which affects those boroughs, were to have met today, but postponed their meeting until next week.

COAL FIRM INDICTED; PROFITEERING CHARGED

Douglas Barnes Corporation and Two Officers Named in Sale to Foreign Buyers.

The indictment yesterday by the Federal Grand Jury of the Douglas Barnes Corporation, dealers in coal, and of Douglas Barnes and Joseph Weinhandler, President and Treasurer, was described by Government officials as the first of several proceedings against coal firms on charges of having swindled foreign buyers. The indictment against the Barnes corporation was prepared by William McMurtrie Speer, a special assistant to the Attorney General, on information furnished by the Tidewater Coal Exchange and several coal dealers. It was charged that the defendants, on June 12 last, sold 3,600 tons of coal to Jensen & Cox for delivery in Copenhagen at $32.75 a ton, which the Government alleged represented a profit of $6.29 a ton. It was set forth that a fair profit would have been not more than $1 a ton. It also was alleged that the defendants misrepresented the grade of coal sold, delivering a product little better than dust. It was pointed out that the export coal business runs into hundreds of millions of dollars a year, and that because of strikes the bulk of England's foreign coal trade was coming here, which we would be unable to retain unless our coal merchants dealt fairly.

It was said that one small and practically unknown firm had made a profit of $300,000 in two months by profiteering and misrepresentations.

18 Awaiting Deportation Declared Repentant Member a Spy.

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—The action of some of the eighteen alien radicals now at Deer Island awaiting deportation in passing a sentence of death on one of their number caused their confinement to cells today.

Demetrio Iwankiw, the man marked for death, was separated from the others. He had apparently undergone a change in his views, voiced his opinions among his fellows, and as a consequence, according to the master of the house of correction, a committee tried him as a spy. The death sentence was declared and the committee bound itself to see that it was carried out as soon as the party reached Russia.

COX AT WHITE HOUSE TODAY

Former Democratic Candidate to Have an Interview With President.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Former Governor James M. Cox of Ohio will be received by President Wilson tomorrow at 11 o'clock, it was announced today at the White House. This will be the second visit of the former Democratic Presidential candidate to the White House, the first having been made soon after Mr. Cox was nominated at San Francisco last July.

HUNTS POLICE GRAFT IN GARMENT STRIKE

Whitman Questions Employers Regarding Payments for Protection and Hire of Agencies.

EX-CAPTAIN UNDER FIRE

Prosecutor Says Trail in Automobile Graft Leads Further Than He Had Supposed.

Ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman, as special prosecutor in the inquiry into city departments, presented to the additional Grand Jury yesterday evidence bearing on police activities during the garment workers' strike, and involving particularly a retired police captain, who, it is alleged, accepted unlawful fees for protection. No indictments were returned. Mr. Whitman said that the taking of testimony might occupy the entire week.

Difficulty in getting witnesses was said to have been one of the reasons for the failure to return indictments yesterday. The witnesses are chiefly employers in the clothing industry, who, it is understood, were questioned regarding payments to the police for protection during the strike, and also concerning the alleged connivance of the police with private detective agencies whom the manufacturers were induced to hire.

The police officials involved are said to have been in a precinct on the lower west side. Big fees are alleged to have been paid in this particular precinct for strike prevention. The methods of the manufacturers during the strike were complained of recently to District Attorney Swann by Sidney Hillman, President of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, but the present inquiry is said to be based on other information than that given by Mr. Hillman to Mr. Swann.

Mr. Whitman said last night that the charges of widespread graft in the Police Department as a result of the recovery of stolen automobiles had led much further than he had supposed. Adjusters of several insurance companies were examined yesterday regarding this phase of the inquiry. Several produced records, including account books and canceled checks.

"Where the cars are taken out of the State," Mr. Whitman said, "the Federal authorities can take charge of the matter to much better advantage than we can. It is hard in some cases to show just where the crime took place; for instance, when a car was stolen in one place and taken to another, and when the license plates and engine number were changed and the car then taken to another place to be sold."

As part of the documentary evidence that Mr. Whitman has obtained, it was learned yesterday, is a check for $50 made out to "the Police Commissioner of New York." The check, however, does not bear the endorsement of any man who is or had been a Police Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner.

CALL GARMENT STRIKE AGAINST NON-SIGNERS

25,000 Workers Will Seek to Force Remaining Manufacturers to Accept Union's Terms.

A strike against the dress and waist manufacturers who have not signed the new agreement with seven locals of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union was voted by the locals at two meetings last night. The union's effort will be directed chiefly against reluctant members of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association. Persons familiar with the recent negotiations between the union and the two associations of dress manufacturers said that the latest clothing controversy probably would not last long.

About 2,000 members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers met at Beethoven and Webster Halls last night. Those who gathered at Webster Hall declined to ratify the clause in the agreement calling for a five-day week. The entire agreement was ratified by the Beethoven Hall contingent and the strike was voted in both places. The strike, it was said, would affect about 25,000 workers.

the Legislature now to attempt such retrogressive action would be to turn back and repeat the last two generations of crooked finance, exploitation of innocent investors, intolerable and indecent service and prostitution of home rule and municipal ownership and operation.

"Governor Miller's suggestion that the foundation should now be laid for municipal operation some time in the remote future means that for another half century the people of New York City will be fair game for stock jobbery and manipulation. It is as though, he said, this gold mine should be municipally owned but privately mined.

"The remedy for existing conditions is not to perpetuate the control of Belmont, Berwind and Brady with an increased fare, but to terminate each and every contract that the rapid transit companies now hold to operate lines that are the property of the City of New York. Upon the termination of such contracts every innocent investor whose money has gone into the property and enured to the benefit of the City of New York may receive full recompense therefor. Out of the revenues that may thereafter be derived by the city from its municipally owned and operated lines all the extensions that may be required can be provided.

"It must not be overlooked that a 10-cent fare would take from the people of New York City a tribute of approximately $125,000,000 per year in excess of the fares now paid. Within four years this would provide more than enough money to pay off all of the city's obligations issued for rapid transit purposes and every dollar of private capital invested in such lines.

"The people of the City of New York will never tolerate the administration and control of an investment of approximately $400,000,000 of their own money in the subways by any public body or commission that is not directly responsible to the people of the City of New York.

"Any legislative attempt to strip the City of New York of its rights under the present rapid transit contracts is sure to meet with disappointment. The courts may be relied upon to protect the city in its contract rights with the Interborough and the B. R. T., upon the faith of which $400,000,000 of public moneys have been supplied for their benefit."

"The Governor in his message on traction," said Commissioner Delaney, "discusses the advisability of the abrogation of contracts and apparently advises it when the terms become repugnant to one of the parties involved. This is a most pernicious idea. It would be a triumph of might over right. In case force should be used to cancel the contracts between the city and the two big operating companies it would be impossible ever again for any company to obtain sufficient money to carry out any contract in which the city is a partner."

Referring to the transfer of the control of all public utilities from the municipalities to the State, Mr. Delaney said that if some of Governor Miller's recommendations were carried out they would violate the principle of home rule and nullify the provisions of the Rapid Transit act, built up by successive Legislatures, which specify that the city's investments shall be subject to the approval of the Board of Estimate. The suggestions, he said, tend toward the subjugation of the city to the rest of the State via the Legislature.

Mr. Delaney said there was no lack of rapid transit facilities, only a lack of service; that there was no clash of authority, and that only the outworn, over-capitalized surface lines were drifting toward disaster.

"If the public will not patronize these lines," he said, "after public money has been invested to provide better service, there is no public obligation to provide dividends or speculative profits on the uncontrolled securities of these lines."

"So far as records show," Mr. Delaney continued, "no water has been squeezed out of the privately owned transit lines. The water is all there but dividends and interest are not being paid on so much of it. Suggestions made in this city by the Transit Construction Commissioner to representatives of local transit corporations that capitalization should be brought to measurable resemblance to property value have brought no response."

Mr. Delaney declared that stagnation of progress would ensue and that no more subways would be built for many years if the Governor's plan went through.

Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, said: "It seems to me that the only hope of a proper solution of the traction problem lies along the lines of the Governor's message. Unless, as he suggests, a competent body of men, vested with full authority, and charged with full responsibility, take this matter up, and give it the study that it requires, and reach a conclusion just to all concerned, I do not see how it can ever be properly settled. The only opponents of this sound and sensible method of treating this business proposition (for that is what it is) will come from those who seek personal and partisan advantage in preventing a just and proper solution."

SCHWAB IN TEARS AT SHIP INQUIRY

apparently in high spirits. He listened attentively to the testimony of Mr. Grace and of F. A. Shick, Controller of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and W. A. Hauck, Assistant Controller.

Poses for Motion Pictures.

While Mr. Hauck was on the stand Mr. Schwab arose from his chair next to those of Paul D. Cravath, general counsel for the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and the latter's associate, H. A. Moore. He walked to the south side of the room and stood by a window in the sun. A motion picture man asked him to pose, and he laughingly consented. As the camera was leveled Mr. Schwab beckoned to Lieutenant P. J. Etherton, sergeant at arms, to stand with him for the picture. Congressman Henry P. Steel of Pennsylvania, who had started to leave the room, similarly was corraled by Mr. Schwab.

Introduces Letter to President.

When Mr. Schwab was called to the stand he again explained that he was reluctant to take the post of Director General at the request of President Wilson and the Shipping Board because he feaerd that his dual position might lead to criticism. His position, he said, was set forth in a letter to the President and the trustees of the Shipping Board. Mr. Schwab asked permission to read this letter into the record. It follows:

To the President and Trustees of the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation:

Dear Sirs: The United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation, of which I have been appointed Director General, has, or may in the future have, contracts or other business relations not only with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, of which I am an officer, Director and stockholder, but also with certain of its subsidiary companies in which I am directly or indirectly interested.

I am of the opinion that it would be inadvisable for me to participate, as such Director General, in the transaction of any business between the Emergency Fleet Corporation and any of the said companies, with especial reference to the making of contracts with, or the giving of orders to, such companies, and, therefore, request that all business between the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation and the companies named below may be handled entirely by such other officers or agents of the Emergency Fleet Corporation as you may designate:

Bethlehem Steel Corporation.
Bethlehem Steel Company.
Bethlehem Steel Bridge Corporation.
Bethlehem Loading Company.
Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation.
The Detrick & Harvey Machine Company.
Bethlehem Steel Products Company.
Ore Steamship Corporation.
Saucon Land and Improvement Company.
Bethlehem Securities Company.
Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, Limited.
Union Iron Works Company.
Union Iron Works Dry Dock Company. Yours very truly,

C. M. SCHWAB.

Anything in Way of Ships Needed.

Mr. Schwab said he was induced to accept the post because of the insistence of the President and the members of the Shipping Board and Emergency Fleet Corporation. In answer to Chairman Walsh, he said that up to that time he had been devoting practically all his time to his corporations, but he had not devoted his attention to contracts, a phase of executive work that fell to Mr. Grace six or seven years ago.

Chairman Walsh asked if the witness had made a survey of the program embarked upon at the time he was made Director General. He had. He concurred in the belief of General George W. Goethals that it was the wisest policy of the country to supply anything in the way of ships that could be built quickly, regardless of the post-war value of these vessels. The first and most important task was to meet a war emergency. He was opposed to the building of wooden ships as part of a merchant marine program to be followed after the war, but the urgent need of bottoms changed his attitude.

Mr. Schwab said he was opposed to the erection of new shipbuilding plants to be operated by new shipbuilders. He thought it would have been a wiser policy to enlarge existing plants.

"In the second place," he continued, "I did not regard the shipbuilding policy at that time as one of engineering. I regarded the essential feature in producing ships to be to arouse the working people of the United States on whom the results depended. I did not consider it a matter of mechanical engineering."

"Did you supervise or participate in any way in the operation of ships while you were Director General?" asked Chairman Walsh.

Made Piez His "Right Hand."

Q.—Did you cause any changes to be made in the accounting statement of the Fleet Corporation relating to shipping construction? A.—When I went to Washington to take charge I found the Chief General Manager, Charles Piez, a man whom I had not known well, but in a very short time realized he was one of the ablest, brightest executive organizing men I have ever known, and I said to Mr. Piez, "Mr. Piez, I desire above all else that you be my Chief Lieutenant and right hand in carrying out this program," which he gladly consented to do; and all matters pertaining to contracts and of similar character were referred to Mr. Piez for his action, and I devoted myself largely to the general question of supervising construction. I have devoted a great deal of time to visiting shipyards, among the men, and Mr. Piez devoted his entire time to the contracts and supervising accounts and all the other multifarious questions concerning the construction of ships by the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

Q.—Did you consult with the Shipping Board and the Fleet Corporation officers also about work that was being carried on? A.—Yes, of course. We had frequent meetings of the Shipping Board. I think we had a meeting every day or most every day with the Chiefs of Divisions of the various departments of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, so that all questions that were uppermost in our minds were discussed.

Q.—Did you go to the Pacific Coast with Mr. Piez in July, 1918? A.—I did.

Q.—Was there or not at that time a decision reached with reference to the purchase of the site at Alameda? A.—My recollection is that that decision was reached before we went to Alameda.

Q.—Did you participate in any way in connection with the acquisition of that site? A.—Not to the slightest extent.

Q.—Now, since that time have you in any way negotiated with the Fleet Corporation for the acquisition of the site originally agreed upon? A.—I have never even heard of it.

Grace Repeats His Denial.

When Mr. Grace resumed his testimony in the morning he went over much of the ground he had covered the preceding evening. He repeated that no part of the $269,543 voucher, representing the expenses of Mr. Schwab and his staff, had been charged to or paid by the Government. He further said the item of $100,000 was not solely for the personal expenses of Mr. Schwab, but covered expenses of his staff in connection with the corporation's business. Mr. Grace promised to furnish the committee with photostat copies of the company's profit and loss account wherein, he said, the item of $100,000 was finally charged.

Controller F. A. Shick corroborated the testimony of Mr. Grace that Perley Morse & Co. auditors were not wanted because it was feared they sought sensational information. He said the Morse accountants were asking questions that had nothing to do with Government ship construction, and were taking information out of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation's books that had nothing to do with work for the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

"Mr. Hauck told me," said the witness, "that the Perley Morse accountants were asking questions about vouchers and we feared they were going to use this information in some other way against us, as they did in the Fore River audit for the Luckenbachs."

Mr. Shick further corroborated the testimony of Mr. Grace that none of the $260,543 was charged against the Government.

"It went into profit and loss," said Mr. Shick.

The witness was asked if there was any definite policy with regard to the expenses of Mr. Schwab and other Bethlehem officials. He said there was a definite agreement with the General Auditor of the Emergency Fleet Corporation that no personal expenses of Mr. Schwab or other officials should be charged to the cost of ship construction. This understanding was reached before Mr. Schwab became Director General.

Asks Question for Record.

"For the purpose of the record," said Chairman Walsh, "I desire to ask you this question, Mr. Shick. Although there may be vouchers in the files of the Bethlehem Company and there may be entries on the books showing expenses of Mr. Schwab at various times and for various amounts, you state here definitely and positively that none of those vouchers, none of those entries on the books for those particular items, were at that time or at any time subsequently charged or allocated to ship construction costs?"

"I do," replied the witness.

Mr. Hauck said there were no items on the Bethlehem books which there was any desire to conceal. He said he had learned of the discovery of the alleged irregular items from Mr. Adamson of the Shipping Board a week after the Perley Morse audit was begun.

The last witness was Wallace Downey, who flatly denied that he ever had paid $40,000 to influence Shipping Board officials, including R. Wilmer Bolling, brother-in-law of President Wilson, now Treasurer of the Shipping Board, in awarding contracts to his shipbuilding concern. Mr. Downey was connected with such an alleged bribe by Tucker K. Sands, former Vice President and cashier of the Commercial National Bank of Washington, D. C., who alleged that the $40,000 was to have been divided among himself, Lester Sisler, former Secretary of the Shipping Board; Mr. Bolling and John Cranor, a former representative of Mr. Downey.

Mr. Downey said he had agreed to pay Mr. Sands $40,000, and eventually did pay him $25,000 for negotiating $125,000 credit at the Commercial National Bank, intended to bolster up the financial condition of the Providence Engineering Corporation, which was seeking a contract from the Shipping Board.

The committee adjourned to meet in Washington at a date to be announced.

CONFIDENCE IN SCHWAB TOLD BY MARINE HEAD

P. H. W. Ross Praises His Work for the Nation and Pays Tribute to P. A. S. Franklin.

Speaking at a dinner of the National Marine League in the Hotel Commodore last night, P. H. W. Ross, its President, praised Charles M. Schwab and P. A. S. Franklin, both of whom, he said, had been unjustly attacked. Senator William M. Calder digressed from a prepared speech to characterize Mr. Schwab and Mr. Franklin, the latter of whom sat at the speakers' table, as among "the best citizens of the Republic."

"The winds of public opinion are shifting and the big man in shipping must know that sooner or later, in a Republic where laws are molded on public opinion, he will encounter apparent ingratitude enough to break his heart," said Mr. Ross. "He must remember that it is a shifting wind that carries the disagreeable blast and that such winds are not steady. They veer, and very quickly the pleasant breezes of public approval and public appreciation will dissolve the killing frost of the same public's 'Winter of discontent.'

"Last week a distinguished Senator of the United States had occasion to discuss the provisions of a certain agreement. In the course of his remarks, the loyalty of an American citizen was involved. This gentleman happened to be the foremost shipping operator in the United States. Last week, also, the integrity of the foremost shipbuilder in the United States was impugned. Both of these great men were wounded to the heart. After all they had done for their country and the services they had performed, to be arraigned as public malefactors!

"One was Franklin, the other Schwab. When our country was in the hour of her deadliest peril three great services were imperatively demanded. Our national existence in that hour was believed to depend upon a trinity of service—that ships be built by the hour, that troops be transported therein, that men be trained to operate the ships.

"Charles M. Schwab as an individual American citizen stands head and shoulders above all others in the matter of building ships.

"As for Mr. Franklin, American citizen, born in the State of Maryland: The Congress of the United States has publicly honored Mr. Franklin by conferring upon him the Congressional Medal for Distinguished Service because he, more than any other individual American citizen, directed the transport of 2,000,000 American soldiers across the seas to win war for civilization and the peace of the world."

PALMER RETORTS TO UNTERMYER

Quotes Boy-Ed Report Calling Him Judicial and Legal-Political Adviser to Germans.

'LYING,' REPLIES UNTERMYER

He Declares That the Charges Were Disproved Before the Overman Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Attorney General Palmer counter-attacked Samuel Untermyer of New York today in connection with the latter's charges against Mr. Palmer's record in his former post of Alien Property Custodian. He accused Mr. Untermyer of voluntarily assisting the German Embassy when it was active in disseminating pro-German propaganda and quotes an official report made to the German Government by an agent in this country telling of Mr. Untermyer's assistance.

Captain Boy-Ed, "the notorious naval attaché of the German embassy," as the Attorney General calls him, is quoted as telling the chief of the Admiralty staff that Mr. Untermyer, at the time of Boy-Ed's stay in New York, was "the unpaid juridical and legal-political adviser to the Imperial embassy." Dr. Heinrich Albert is quoted as saying that he was summoned to Mr. Untermyer's estate on the Hudson and discussed "the prevention of the export of ammunition and other political questions." Albert added:

"Viereck was also present."

"Thus it appears," says the Attorney General, "that although Hays, Kaufman and Lindheim were the publicly admitted attorneys of the German Embassy, Untermyer was, in the opinion of the embassy at least, its controlling and chief counsel."

The Attorney General says that his office recently prosecuted Kaufman and Lindheim on charges of violation of the law growing out of their activities as counsel for German interests, and that Lindheim is Untermyer's relative, according to his own sworn statement before the Overman committee.

Mr. Untermyer, according to the Attorney General, "is simply serving his old clients by attempting to discredit the wartime work of capturing enemy property in the United States."

Statement of Mr. Palmer.

Attorney General Palmer's statement reads in part:

"The motives and purposes of personal attacks upon public officials in their Governmental conduct are the concern of the public when such attacks are made on behalf of secret and sinister interests.

"The malicious reiteration by Samuel Untermyer of the baseless rumors and false charges which the friends of Germany insistently circulate about the work of the Alien Property Custodian would not call for any reply if his recent activities had not somewhat obscured in the public mind his earlier connections which make his motives plain. He desires to undo a significant part of the war's achievement. He was vigorously opposed to the Government's policy—as laid down by the Congress and carried out by the Executive—in regard to enemy-owned property. He refers to enemy-owned concerns in this country as the 'properties of those unfortunate people,' whose plight he always sought to alleviate.

"His exact status, despite his equivocations and denials with respect to those 'unfortunate people'—the Germans—is best shown by an official report of Captain Boy-Ed, the notorious Naval Attaché of the German Embassy, who was sent out of the country by our Government. It is addressed to the chief of the German Admiralty Staff, was captured on Boy-Ed's person in Nazareth and was transmitted to this country by the general headquarters of the American Expeditionary Forces in France.

Boy-Ed Report Is Quoted.

"In explaining a statement abusing the American people which he issued on being expelled from this country, Boy-Ed said:

> Every statement was drawn up in its original form by Counsel Samuel Untermyer. He was at the time of my stay in New York the unpaid juridical and legal-political adviser to the Imperial Embassy. He is one of the most important, if not the greatest counsel of the United States, the presumptive successor of Mr. Gerard, if he should leave his ambassadorial post; a former very influential member of the Democratic Party of New York State, a personal friend of Warburg, Federal Reserve Bank; of the Secretary of Justice, the chief State counsel of New York, &c.
> Untermyer's statement was inordinately long and was a sharp, in my opinion, very cleverly written and well-grounded attack on the American Anglophile press for the protection of the German official personalities in the United States, and particularly in defense of the logic of my proceedings. Mr. Untermyer insisted particularly on such a statement on unselfish grounds, as the foregoing shows, because my departure had to be utilized in any circumstances to the advantage of the officials remaining behind, especially the German Ambassador.
>
> At the last minute I decided, in collaboration with Chief Privy Government Councillor Albert, to make merely a short and less sharp statement, which was an extract of Untermyer's long one, in the personal interest of my own greater pease, and conformably to my very self-sacrificing time in New York.

Named in Albert's Diary.

> In other respects this Easter festival passed off somewhat anxiously, since at noon I was summoned to Plainfield and Hagedorn's, and in the evening to Untermyer at his estate at Greystone. I drove there, and had no reason to repent this meeting brought about for business reasons. Untermyer is personally a by no means unpleasant individual, shrewd, very familiar with political affairs and in a business sense extraordinarily well up to date. He has a wonderful estate in the neighborhood of Yonkers, on the heights of the Hudson. Opposite are the Palisades on the other bank, over which the sun went down in wonderful clearness. Conversation on the prevention of the export of ammunition and other political questions. Viereck was also present.

"Thus it appears that although Hays, Kaufman and Lindheim were the publicly admitted attorneys or the German Embassy, Untermyer was, in the opinion of the embassy at least, its controlling and chief counsel. When we realize that my office has recently prosecuted to conviction and sentence both Kaufman and Lindheim for violations of the law growing out of their activities as counsel for German interests, and that Mr. Lindheim is Mr. Untermyer's relative according to his own sworn statement before the Overman committee, it is plain that conscienceless resentment now moves him, although before this prosecution, on July 28, 1919, more than four months after I had severed all connection with the Alien Property Custodian's office, he wired me:

> I have freely, openly, consistently admired your fair judicial attitude in every transaction where I was concerned and will be glad in common justice to repeat that assertion at any time and place. Your office was conducted with exceptional ability. You selected best talent regardless of other considerations. No abler, more devoted officials than Garvan and Bradley Palmer could anywhere be found. Money could not buy such service.

"He also fails to tell the public that his partner, Louis Marshall, has been and is the counsel for the Stoehers in the Botany Worsted cases and Richard Wagner in the Stinnes steamship cases, both involving over $30,000,000 and both claimed by the Alien Property Custodian to be attempted fraudulent evasions of the Trading With the Enemy act. These two cases are the most important cases now pending before our courts in the whole field of the activities of the Alien Property Custodian.

Charges "Serving His Old Clients."

"Mr. Untermyer is simply serving his old clients by attempting to discredit the wartime work of capturing enemy property in the United States. With naive confidence in the public forgetfulness. he professes to be doing it in the people's interest. It is really in the German interest.

"He calls upon me to furnish the 'names of the people and the amount they received' in connection with my appointments while Alien Property Custodian. This has long since been done, and is a matter of public record, which has been printed and published the country over. It is a record which, though subjected to the most critical examination by a hostile Congress for over a year, has never developed a single fact to justify a repetition of the enemy-inspired charges of favoritism or politics in that work.

"In response to a request made in the hearings on the Third Deficiency Appropriation bill for the fiscal year 1919 by the Committee on Appropriations of the House of the Representatives of the First Session of the present Congress, there was filed and printed a statement showing all directors representing the Allen Property Custodian in the 307 corporations in which an enemy interest had been taken over, all the attorneys appointed or employed by either those directors or the Alien Property Custodian, together with the fees or salaries paid to each. This was a complete and accurate list up to a date several months subsequent to my leaving the Allen Property Custodian's office, and showed a total expenditure for such fees of $325,843.16. This was the expense for legal services incurred by 307 corporations with aggregate assets of at least $200,000,000.

"These men are largely bankers, manufacturers and lawyers of splendid standing in their communities whose very names constitute an answer to Mr. Untermyer's charge that they were grafters. They were all busy men of affairs who sacrificed time and money to do what they considered a patriotic work in the war. I think it safe to say that nine-tenths were personally unknown to me, but were recommended by men in whose business judgment and patriotism I had confidence.

"To call them 'favorites shoved into the properties of these unfortunate people' is an outrageous slander upon as loyal and patriotic a set of men as ever served the Government in any capacity. Their service was in striking contrast with the efforts of a small body of lawyers, interested for German clients, who obstructed our path at every turn and fought us through all the courts.

Expects to Be "Hounded Forever."

"He talks of the 'millions of dollars' appropriated by Congress to me for enforcement of anti-trust laws. Here, again, the record convicts him of falsehood. Appropriation acts are public documents. They show that during my terms of office of nearly two years I have had available for this purpose only $400,000. Every dollar of this has been accounted for in the manner required by law. Untermyer's insinuation that this money went to 'political favorites' is easily answered by the official record of persons employed, filed with the Appropriations Committee of the House of Representatives.

"I have not been surprised by the attacks recently made upon me from different sources. I expect to be hounded forever by the enemies I have made by my work as Alien Property Custodian and Attorney General. I have incurred the undying animosity of the enemies of our country and the violators of her laws, their friends and counsel. I have been officially denounced in Germany in language very much like that which Mr. Untermyer now employs; the friends of Lenin and Trotzky, Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman, charge my department with violations of the Constitution which they despise and call me a 'menace' to the institutions which they frankly seek to destroy.

"I am proud of these enemies. I point to them as conclusive evidence of the character of a work which merits and receives their disapproval."

UNTERMYER DECLARES PALMER FALSIFIES

Says He Repeats 'Exploded Lies'—Renews Charge of Failing to Aid Lockwood Committee.

Samuel Untermyer, at his home, 2 East Fifty-fourth Street, wrote out last night his reply when a copy of Attorney General Palmer's attack was shown to him. It reads in part:

"I have just been shown at 10 o'clock tonight Mr. Palmer's lying and oft-refuted statements concerning my alleged activities before our country entered the war. They have again and again been publicly exploded, and no one knows it better than he does. I insisted on appearing before the Overman Committee and disproving them at that time. I then demonstrated:

"1. That I had never at any time acted as counsel for the German Embassy or for any one connected with it, and had never received a dollar of their money, and that I had repeatedly refused to accept retainers from them when the most eminent lawyers in the country were accepting them, as they and I had a right to do.

"2. That I never met Boy-Ed but once in my life, never had any business, social or professional relations with him and never wrote him or received a letter from him in my life.

"3. That after diplomatic relations were severed and before we entered the war I opened recruiting stations on the lower east side for voluntary enlistments at a time when it was uncertain whether the Conscription act would be passed.

"4. During the war I spent a large part of my time in Government service in Washington, paying by own expenses, besides subscribing for $3,000,000 of Government bonds of the various loans and traveling the country for months, also at my own expense, making speeches on the various Liberty loans.

"While Mr. Marshall does not happen to be my partner and has not been for over seven years and I did not know and have no interest in the cases he is said to be conducting for his clients, we are close friends and associates. I have no doubt that he is engaged in the legitimate protection of the rights of his clients.

"I knew members of the German Embassy when we were at peace with Germany, as did many men in public and private life in Washington and elsewhere, but I never had anything to do with their affairs and at no time discussed questions of the export of ammunition or political questions, although I would have had the absolute right to do so if I had so chosen, as did members of the United States Senate and public officials.

"The references to Mr. Lindheim, first as 'a former associate' (which he knew to be false) and now as a relative (which he is not), are intended only to mislead and are on a par with his other assertions.

"But I thought the war was over, and pray what on earth has this job lot of old exploded lies to do with my categorical charges against this recreant and incompetent public officer who now adds to his other offenses the still more heinous one of using the archives of his office to attack men who have the courage to criticise his maladministration?

"The certificate of character I gave him in July, 1919, when his confirmation was being opposed, which he now quotes, was written before I knew of his performances and before they were generally known.

"I charge him:

"1. With using the patronage of his office to the extent of hundreds of thousands of dollars and more in exorbitant fees in support of his grotesque ambition to be nominated for the Presidency.

"2. With gross incompetency, amounting almost to nonfeasance, in the nonenforcement of the anti-trust laws, to which the present housing crisis is, at least to a considerable extent, due.

"3. With refusal to honestly and promptly co-operate with the Lockwood Committee when urged to do so and with being finally driven by me into sullen and half-hearted action.

"4. His assertions as to the amount expended in non-enforcement of the law are grossly misleading. He should and would be removed from office if his derelictions in that respect were known, as they will be, if an investigation is ordered.

"5. His statements as to fees paid and collected by his political favorites out of alien enemy properties are so evasive and insincere that they amount to prevarication.

CHARGE PALMER BAR ON ALIENS' COUNSEL

Prof. Chafee Declares Rule Was Changed—Dean Williams Tells of St. Louis Warning.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Signers of the accusations against Attorney General Palmer and the Department of Justice of cruelty in the nation-wide raids on Reds appeared today before a sub-committee of the Senate Judiciary Committee and reiterated charges that aliens taken in the raids did not receive the right of counsel. Five of the signers were scheduled to present testimony, but only two, Professor Zachariah Chafee Jr. of the Harvard University Law School and Dean Tyrrell Williams of Washington University Law School, St. Louis, took the stand.

Three chief points were made by Professor Chafee, first, that the right of having an attorney was denied to aliens; second, that searches and seizures were made without warrants, and, third, that arrests were made without warrants.

At the beginning of his testimony he alleged that at the deportation hearings aliens were not allowed to have counsel until the hearings were practically concluded. In March, 1919, Secretary of Labor Wilson had established a rule that lawyers should be present at these hearings from the beginning. Professor Chafee said:

"Just before the raids during the absence of Secretary Wilson, Mr. Palmer had this rule changed to deny counsel. This was done after the warrants of arrest had been signed. One month later, after the hearings were over, Secretary Wilson discovered this change and had the former rule re-established."

English-speaking prisoners taken in the raids had better treatment than the foreigners, said Professor Chafee. He said that a case had occurred where search warrants were asked for, and an officer stuck out his fists and said, "That's enough search warrant."

Pressed by Senator Sterling, Chairman of the sub-committee, Professor Chafee said that he knew of only one specific instance where the warrants were asked for and not produced.

Dean Williams arraigned Department of Justice agents in St. Louis for reporting to a hotel manager that the American Legion intended to break up a meeting of the Committee of Forty-eight in December, 1919. The report by the department detectives to the hotel resulted in depriving himself and his wife of their "property rights" in the hotel ballroom, where the meeting was to have been held, he said.

505 ANARCHISTS DEPORTED.

Labor Department Gives Two Years' Record—Orders Against 1,119.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Five hundred and five aliens classed as anarchists were deported from the United States from Feb. 1, 1919, to Jan. 1, 1921, the Department of Labor announced today.

In the same period 1,119 alien anarchists were ordered to be deported, the difference between "orders" and "shipments" being represented by those who were permitted to remain temporarily, because of lack of transportation, appeals and other similar reasons.

During the last month 88 Russian aliens were deported by way of Latvia, the announcement said.

BARNARD COLLEGE GIRL MISSING FROM HOME

Miss Blanch Spellman Disappeared Monday Morning—Was Worried Over Examinations.

Miss Blanch Spellman, 18 years old, daughter of Benjamin F. Spellman, a lawyer of 115 Broadway, has been missing from her home at 1 West Ninety-second Street since 11 o'clock Monday morning, when she left the house apparently for only a short time. The girl's parents are ill, prostrated as the result of her disappearance, and her brother, Howard Spellman, has visited all of his sister's friends in a vain effort to find her.

The only reason advanced for Miss Spellman's disappearance was one advanced by some of her friends in Barnard College, Columbia, where she has been a student, that she was worried over the approach of examinations. A general alarm has been sent out by the police.

"We are hoping my daughter has not met with foul play," said Mr. Spellman last night. "She was very happy, and only a little nervous over her approaching examinations, which she was to have taken Monday afternoon. Our family life has been ideal and there is no reason we can possibly assign for her disappearance except those that we fear to think of.

"When she left home she had about $30 and was wearing a diamond horseshoe pin of her mother's. She intended to do a little shopping before going to the university for her examinations, and about 2 o'clock in the afternoon she called me up at my office and said she was in a millinery store and had just bought a hat. I am not able to recall now what store she said it was, as it did not impress itself on my mind. That is the last any of us heard of her. None of her friends or our friends have seen her since."

Miss Spellman, who was athletic and took part in sports at Barnard, was about 5 feet 6 inches high, had dark brown eyes and hair and dark complexion. She wore a blue tailored suit, low shoes and black stockings and a white shirtwaist.

The Marquis arrived here a week ago, and they were married last Saturday.

ROAD URGES BOARD TO ALLOW WAGE CUT

OTHERS MAY FOLLOW SOON

One Executive Says Readjustment Will Be Necessary if Depression Continues.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—With representatives of the railroad unions arguing before the Railway Labor Wage Board to retain the concessions obtained during the war under Federal administration, the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railway, through its President, B. L. Bugg, petitioned the board for authority to reduce wages "to a level that would enable the property to keep out of a receiver's hands."

Mr. Bugg declared the road was losing $100,000 a month and added that this loss was "rock bottom," as the working force already had been trimmed to the bone. Mr. Bugg said that the road had granted wage increases amounting to $2,400,000 annually since 1914, and that the property was fallin to "break even" by exactly one-half of that amount.

"We propose to reduce wages the amount necessary to enable us to break even," he said, "and we are compelled to ask the board to give us an early decision."

Chairman Barton of the railway board said that the case was pressing and intimated an early decision would be made. From sources closely in touch with the board it was said that the request of the railroad will be granted.

In Chicago railroad circles no official statement as to whether other railroads would follow the example of the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic was forthcoming. Informally, however, it was stated that a readjustment of wages would be asked by practically all of the railroads if present business conditions continue.

"We do not want to ask for a wage readjustment," a high official of one of the largest trunk lines said, "because a wage cut always brings a certain amount of dissatisfaction. But the falling off in business has cut out revenues so that they are less than they were before the freight increases were granted. The increases granted barely produced revenue to meet the increases in wages granted. We cannot continue to pay the present wages out of the gross income now received by the property. A readjustment that will at least enable us to make ends meet is absolutely necessary."

E. P. Curtis, Vice President of the Order of Railway Conductors, told the board that his organization would insist that the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic withdraw a reduction notice which it had posted until a decision was handed down by the board. He gave no indication of what the attitude of his organization would be in the event of a wage cut being authorized.

Earlier in the day representatives of the shop crafts had charged that the railroads were "farming out" work in order to lay men off. This is denied by the roads and it was intimated that a former official of the Federal Administration may be called to support the contention of the roads.

College to Study Tunnel Air Supply.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Jan. 25.—The engineering experimental station of the University of Illinois has been requested by the Federal Bureau of Mines to conduct experiments in an effort to solve the ventilation problem of the huge vehicular tunnel to be constructed under the Hudson River by the States of New York and New Jersey, it was announced today. A miniature tunnel will be constructed on the university campus. The expense of the project will be borne by the Bureau of Mines.

TWO CITIES SUFFER $3,000,000 FIRE LOSS

New Haven and Athens, Ga., Business Buildings Destroyed in Wide-Spreading Flames.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 25.—Fire, which destroyed the building of Mendel & Freedman, a department store in Chapel Street, and spread to adjoining structures early today did damage estimated at $1,000,000.

The fire wrecked a five-story storehouse of the H. M. Bullard Company in the rear and damaged the buildings of the Chatfield Paper Company, C. S. Mersick, Besserichey, the Charles S. Monson Company, the Western Union and the Bullard Company store.

The calling out of every piece of fire apparatus for the one fire was the first of its kind in seventeen years. The low temperature made the handling of hose difficult.

The fire's origin is undetermined. It is thought to have started, however, near an elevator in the Mendel & Freedman building. A watchman gave the alarm, but almost before the firemen had arrived the flames were spreading rapidly.

This afternoon the Bohan-Landorf Building caught fire. One fireman was overcome by smoke and another was cut by glass.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 25.—A large part of Athens's downtown business district was a mass of smoldering ruins today, and it was estimated that the fire which early this morning swept clean three entire city blocks and damaged adjoining buildings had destroyed property valued at at least $2,000,000. No loss of life was reported.

The fire, of undetermined origin, started just before midnight, and it was five hours before the combined efforts of firemen from this and nearby cities got it under control.

Rapid spread of the blaze was said to have been due to the explosion of gasoline drums in the Max Joseph Building, on Wall Street. This scattered the flames beyond control, and the fire spread down the east side of Wall Street, south to Broad, virtually destroying every building in its path.

NEW OIL PROTEST TO MEXICO

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The State Department has made a protest to the Mexican Government against the issuing of a number of denouncement titles to Mexican citizens covering subsoil rights on parcels of land in Mexico owned by American oil interests. The protest, it is learned, was sent under date of Jan. 12 to the American Embassy at Mexico City, which was instructed by Norman Davis, Acting Secretary of State, to bring to the attention of the Obregon Government the fact that a number of such patents were issued during the closing days of the recent de la Huerta régime.

TAFT SAILS FROM BERMUDA.

Official Farewell Accorded Him on His Departure for Home.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 25.—William H. Taft, former President of the United States, and Mrs. Taft sailed for home today after a visit here of almost a month. Governor Willcocks and Vice Admiral Sir William C. Pakenham, Commander of the British North Atlantic and West Indian Station, with their staffs, said farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Taft on the dock, while members of the American colony cheered them.

Mr. Taft was called home to resume work on arbitrating the value of the shares of the Grand Trunk Railway, which is being taken over by the Canadian Government.

BRITISH MAY RETIRE FROM MESOPOTAMIA

HEAVY COST IS ATTACKED

Doubts Expressed as to Value of Oil Deposits—Churchill Considering a Flying Visit There.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The Daily Chronicle's political correspondent understands that the Government is likely to adopt the policy of withdrawing the British forces in Mesopotamia to Basra, which will make the contemplated reduction of troops easy. This withdrawal to the coast, says the correspondent, was not possible last year because of the disturbed state of the country and the threatened and eventual risings. Additional troops that were required are now returning to India and by the end of March the number will be down to 70,000.

"If we hold the Persian Gulf and Basra," he adds, "we have the key of the Middle East."

When Winston Churchill takes up his new duties at the Colonial Office the Government will transfer the mandated territories of Mesopotamia and Palestine from the Foreign Office to the Colonial Office. Mr. Churchill, who would then be responsible for Mesopotamia, has with other Ministers advocated withdrawal from Mesopotamia. He is not convinced that it is a land of boundless oil treasure.

"So far as this Mesopotamian oil project is concerned," he said in the House of Commons a few weeks ago, "it does not appear to me to have anything like the guarantee of success that the Anglo-Persian oil fields have. If there be oil fields there," he was proceeding when some one cried, "Oh!" "Yes," retorted Churchill, "I lay emphasis on the 'if.'"

The Daily Express has been urging that Churchill take a courageous course when he goes to the Colonial office and cuts British commitments. In the Middle East its slogan is "We must get out of Mesopotamia and Palestine." Such a step, it declares, would save the British taxpayers nearly £60,000,000 a year. Up to last August it was estimated £100,000,000 had been spent on Mesopotamia since the armistice.

"All the return the British taxpayers have secured for their hundred millions," declares The Express, "has been revolt. Before the revolt the army in Mesopotamia numbered 47,000 men, and cost £20,000,000 a year. There are now about 100,000 men, and the annual cost must have risen to nearly £50,000,000 a year. Shiploads of stores and munitions are still being sent out. The British taxpayers driven to exasperation by the crushing demands of the Exchequer, are called on to foot the Mesopotamian bill.

"On top of this comes £7,000,000 a year that is being ladled out in Palestine. Why should the British taxpayer pay for an army for Palestine? If Palestine wants an army let Palestine pay. The only British interests to be defended are in the neighborhood of Basra, at the head of the Persian Gulf. That needs only a small force. British interests will not suffer if the 2,000,000 Arabs of Mesopotamia are left to themselves and British troops are withdrawn. Only a small region around Basra need be held."

The Chronicle's political correspondent says Churchill is considering the possibility of making a lightning visit to Mesopotamia to discuss the position directly with Sir Percy Cox, who is now engaged in setting up the Arab Government which will be primarily responsible for the administration of Mesopotamia.

COUNCIL TO STUDY RELATIONS WITH US

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

terday. As I cabled last night, it was referred to experts to draft an exact statement of Germany's failure to fulfill her engagements. It has been tentatively decided to give Germany until May 1 to complete her engagements, but there are grave differences between the English and French as to just what remains to be done and as to what penalties should be laid down.

Lloyd George Cold to Ruhr Occupation.

Naturally, as Foch said yesterday, the French want the right to occupy the Ruhr if Germany falls short. This brought forth ironic comment from Lloyd George yesterday who, to the extreme annoyance of the French statesmen, appeared to be tired of hearing about occupation of the Ruhr. In the afternoon session he declared he did not believe the disarmament question was one to get excited about, that Germany was not now in a position to attack any one for many years to come, that she had accomplished much since Spa, and that she should have time to complete the job inasmuch as she faced difficulties.

Referring to the refusal of Bavaria to disarm on orders from Berlin he did not see the justice of making the inhabitants of the Ruhr suffer for the actions of Munich. He wanted to call German experts to Paris and make a sort of second Spa arrangement.

Premier Briand flatly refused to adopt this method, saying the Allies should lay down the law to unwilling Germany.

M. Jasper of Belgium then proposed that the Allies agree on what should be done and then call in the Germans to decide how to do it.

Neither Lloyd George nor Briand would accept this proposal, and finally the whole matter was referred to Marshal Foch and Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, with a request that they try to agree on what Germany had failed to do, and later the Prime Ministers would reconsider the matter.

Believing beforehand that the British were all ready to follow them on disarmament, this disagreement has had the effect on French opinion of causing dread of Lloyd George's stand on reparations. Above all, the French do not want the Germans called in. But Lloyd George does.

Greeks and Turks to Be Consulted.

The conference announced tonight that at the London conference the chiefs of the allied Governments would meet Greek and Turkish representatives to deal with the Near East problem. In British circles it is said that Mustapha Kemal Pasha, leader of the Turkish Nationalists, will be represented. It might be an exaggeration to say that this action means rewriting the Treaty of Sevres, but it certainly means making radical changes in it.

This decision is a victory for the French diplomats, who have been working for months, and especially since the return of Constantine to the Greek throne, for changing the terms of the Turkish settlement. The French have all along held to the theme of a settlement with the Nationalists rather than trying to crush Kemal, as Lloyd George sought to do by the use of the Greek Army. The Italians have also supported revision of the Sèvres Treaty, and Count Sforza, the Italian Foreign Ministers, brought to this conference important suggestions for changes, including making Smyrna a zone of allied influence rather than turning it over directly to the Greeks.

The Turkish problem as it stands today is as involved as it well could be. Any discussion must take into consideration not only the conflicting interests of the Allies but the contesting Turk factions and the question of Bolshevist influence in the Caucasus. It is chock full of disagreeable possibilities.

One important factor will be the failure of the Greeks recently in their attacks against Mustapha Kemal and the growing dissatisfaction of the Greek troops over their task in Anatolia. As the French argue, no one else wishes to go to fight Kemal, and if the Greeks can not or will not dispose of him, nothing is left but to deal with him.

The decision of today recalls the speech made by Arthur Balfour, representing the British Government at the Geneva Assembly of the League of Nations, when he called Kemal a brigand chief. How affairs move in Europe today may be shown by mentioning that in the next month or so Balfour may find himself facing this brigand chief's ambassador across a green top table.

INDEMNITY ISSUE WORRIES THE FRENCH

Expectation That Lloyd George's Stand for Fixing Amount Will Prevail.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—Behind the veil made up of official communiqués about disarmament, Austria, Greece, and so on, a major debate is going on in Paris on the subject of writing the balance sheet of Europe. Two of the chief participants are Premier Lloyd George of England and Premier Briand of France. They are far from agreement—seriously far from agreement. They will probably not agree between themselves. But when the question is brought into the full conference the British Prime Minister will in all likelihood win out.

There is one big question before this Paris conference which overshadows all others, and that is whether or not Germany shall be notified by May 1 of the total she owes on reparation account. It is on this question that the British and French Prime Ministers have not so far been able to agree.

In as few words as possible, here is the French proposition:

Because of the war Germany forced upon the Allies France faces a financial crash, unless Germany pays heavily for the damage she did. Germany cannot pay all the damage. She should therefore be made to pay as much as she possibly can. No one can say today how much Germany can pay twenty years from now or twenty-five years from now. Therefore, some arrangement should be reached under which Germany would be made to pay in accord with her ability.

The figure for the first years must be low; for other years the Allies shall fix what Germany can pay until she shall have paid to her utmost for the thirty years laid down in the treaty. As for the treaty provision naming May 1 as the time the total reparation figure shall be fixed, the French say that means that by that date Germany shall be notified of the total damage she did, leaving it to be settled later what part the Allies will exact and her ultimate ability to repay.

Here is the British proposition:

The world economic situation, with full regard to the chances of getting America to help Europe financially, demands that the balance sheet of Europe be written. This can be done only if it is definitely settled what Germany must pay. It is fair to Germany and useful to the rest of the world to know just what Germany's liabilities are. It can be calculated now near enough what Germany can fairly pay, because, while Germany is at low ebb now, her production figures of before the war can be used for calculation.

The treaty really means that by May 1 Germany shall be notified what she must pay, and it is only fair to Germany to tell her.

It can be seen that France's case is strong sentimentally. Yet in its economic and political effect it is a case which is not so practical as England's proposition. England's theme is that supported by the American peace delegation. The French negotiators naturally have in mind the attitude of the French Chamber, which demands the utmost possible from Germany. Briand naturally balks at any settlement he regards as less than might be had.

One must be sympathetic toward the French point of view. France actually faces the danger of having to cease her reconstruction work unless she gets aid from outside—more aid than she stands to get from Germany under any reparation settlement. Faced with the prospect of having to borrow money, France naturally wants Germany's indemnity bill to be as large as possible.

Yet she undoubtedly has the world against her in postponing the reckoning. Belgium, France's closest friend and ally, will back the British proposition. And so will Italy. It is, however, possible that for the adoption of the British theme France will receive prompt help in realizing on Germany's promise to pay. France needs that, because what she will get from Germany in the next five years will not pay what she has already expended for reconstruction deficit, against which she has provided to tax receipts.

I was talking this afternoon with a prominent American banker who is in Paris in connection with international loans.

"It is quite true that the balance sheet of Europe must be written," he said. "We in America cannot really commit ourselves to extensive undertakings in Europe until that is done. The great economic crime of the Peace Conference was that Germany's indemnity was not fixed. It should be done now by all means."

MOVES FOR STUDY OF FUTURE WARSHIP

Senate Accepts Borah Resolution for Views on Six Months' Suspension of Building.

DANIELS TO GET A REPORT

Has Ordered General Board to Investigate Value of Aircraft and Submarine vs. Battleships.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—A resolution that may have an important bearing on naval legislation in this and the succeeding Congress was unanimously passed by the Senate this afternoon. The resolution, which was introduced by Senator Borah, directs the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs to inform the Senate whether or not it is feasible at this time to suspend the present American naval program for a period of six months, so that an investigation may be had to determine what, under present conditions, constitutes "a modern fighting navy."

The resolution is in line with the Borah naval disarmament resolution, which would authorize the President to open negotiations looking to the signing of a treaty by Great Britain, Japan and the United States for the limiting during the ensuing five years of the naval construction of these countries. That resolution has also been voted out by the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, and is expected to come up for debate within the next few days.

The new Borah resolution also directs a report as to the present value of surface warships, in order to determine whether the great dreadnought and battle-cruiser program of the United States Navy is, in view of submarine possibilities, justifiable at this time.

The Borah resolution adopted today by the Senate reads:

"Resolved, That the Committee on Naval Affairs be, and is hereby, directed to report to the Senate whether, in its opinion, it is practical and also a sound policy to suspend our naval building program, now in progress, for the period of six months, to the end that a full investigation and free discussion may be had as to what constitutes a modern fighting navy—a navy with the types of ships and with the air and submarine weapons that would be most effective in the strategy and tactics of future war on the sea; and also to the end that we may avail ourselves in the matter, both as to economy and efficiency, of any possible agreement between naval powers providing for the reduction of armaments.

"That the said committee report to the Senate such data and information (not already printed and made public) as the said committee has had before it for consideration relative to the possible value of surface ships in future naval warfare."

Senator Borah asked unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the above resolution, whereupon Senator Underwood, the Democratic floor leader, asked him to enlighten the Senate as to the exact object he had in mind.

"The resolution," Senator Borah replied, "simply calls for information as to the feasibility and wisdom of suspending for six months our present building program for the purpose of ascertaining what constitutes a modern navy. I intend to follow that with a resolution directing an investigation of the whole situation."

"Has the Committee on Naval Affairs, to which the resolution is directed," asked Senator Underwood, "made such proper study of this question that it is in a position to answer?"

Senator Underwood then explained that he had no objection to the resolution, but simply desired information as to the ability of the committee to give the information desired.

"I hope the resolution will pass," said Senator King, a Democratic member of the committee, "and that the committee may have this information during its consideration of the naval appropriation bill in order to determine whether it may not be able further to reduce the huge tax burden now resting on the American people."

The resolution was then adopted without division.

Daniels Has Ordered Navy Board Report.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (Associated Press).—The Navy General Board has been instructed by Secretary Daniels to institute an investigation into the probable design of "the type of ship that will form the main strength of the navies of the world of the future," and particularly into the possibility of aircraft and improved submarines displacing capital surface vessels, it was learned tonight. The board's orders are to conclude the investigation in time to report early in February.

In his letter directing study of the subject, Mr. Daniels said:

"It seems to be evident that this Congress is not disposed to authorize the construction of any capital ships, and, due to the amount of construction work in hand, the department has not urged the authorization for any battleships other than those which are now under construction.

"The department feels, however, that the question of design in construction of battleships is an important one and demands continued study and investigation. It is noted that this is extensively discussed in the public press, both in America and England, and particularly in England, in regard to the type of ship which will form the main strength of the navies of the world in the future. Some well-known writers are expressing their opinion that the battleship will, at an early date, no longer form the backbone of the fleet, but that ships of the air and ships of the submarine type will be the powerful ships of the future.

"The department desires that this matter be taken under consideration by the General Board and analyzed from the different points of view, and a report on this general subject be submitted early in February."

SEES A "WILL TO PEACE."

London Chronicle's Comment on the Proposed Naval Suspension.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—The Daily Chronicle, commenting on the United States Senate's resolution for a report on a possible six months' suspension of the naval shipbuilding program, says:

"The resolution may be inspired partly by caution arising out of doubts which have been thrown upon the utility of the big ship in war. It may also be in part the response to the cry for economy which has been raised in America as in England. But we have no doubt it represents the true will to peace of the American people, which has been obscured in the heat of the recent political controversy."

UCHIDA IS DOUBTFUL OF DISARMAMENT NOW

Japan, Says the Foreign Minister, Would Consider Proposals Made by Another Power.

TOKIO, Jan. 24 (Associated Press).—Restriction of armaments will be considered by the Japanese Government, should it be proposed by another nation, but little hope is held out by Viscount Uchida, Foreign Minister, that there will be any immediate movement toward disarmament. The Foreign Minister was interpellated in the lower house of Parliament by members of the Opposition, and admitted that the limiting of armaments was being discussed by the powers.

"Some practical men abroad, however," he declared, "do not approve of immediate disarmament, although they agree in principle. The existing German situation is one factor which prevents a complete agreement on the subject. Some people believe Japan has no intention to restrict armaments, because Viscount Ishii, Japanese Ambassador to France, favored the opinion of practical men who object to reduction. Japan's naval policy is not one of expansion, but is one that cannot be avoided in the interests of self-protection. Japan, however, is ready to consider the subject of curtailment in order to assure world peace, in case any power should make such a proposal."

Hope for an early beginning of direct negotiations with China relative to the restoration of Shantung was expressed by the Foreign Minister. He declared the inauguration of trade in Russia might be considered after a stable Government had been established by the Far Eastern republic at Chita.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The Central News says that it is authorized to deny rumors that Japan has placed contracts for three battleships in England. It is unlikely, the Central News adds that any contracts will be placed outside of Japan, considering that unemployment is rife there.

COLDEST DAY OF WINTER

Transportation Lines Affected, and Free Lodging Houses Have Slight Rush.

Although the thermometer went down yesterday to only 3.6 degrees above zero—almost 20 degrees above the low mark here—Tuesday, Jan. 25, will go on the record as the coldest day of the Winter thus far. Its mean average temperature was a fraction above Wednesday, Jan. 19, when the mercury went as low as 4 degrees above zero.

The Weather Man assured his inquirers last night that today would not be so cold. He said that there might be snow before the day was ended, and almost certainly before Thursday morning.

The high wind yesterday gave the impression that the temperature was much lower than recorded on the official thermometers. This reached a velocity of about fifty-six miles between 3 and 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and was from the northwest. It calmed down to about thirty miles an hour in the evening, with indications that there would be little wind today.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 A. M. | 15 | 1 P. M. | 18 |
| 2 A. M. | 14 | 2 P. M. | 18 |
| 3 A. M. | 10 | 3 P. M. | 20 |
| 4 A. M. | 7 | 4 P. M. | 18 |
| 5 A. M. | 5 | 5 P. M. | 18 |
| 6 A. M. | 4 | 6 P. M. | 16 |
| 7 A. M. | 4 | 7 P. M. | 15 |
| 8 A. M. | 5 | 8 P. M. | 14 |
| 9 A. M. | 6 | 9 P. M. | 12 |
| 10 A. M. | 7 | 10 P. M. | 12 |
| 11 A. M. | 10 | 11 P. M. | 12 |
| 12 noon | 14 | | |

The low mark of 3.6 degrees above zero was reached between 6 and 7 o'clock yesterday morning, with the wind blowing at about thirty-five miles an hour.

Although yesterday was a colder day, the number of persons seeking refuge in the free lodging houses was not so large as on Jan. 19. About 150 applied to the Salvation Army refuge on the Bowery on Monday night, compared to 600 last week. The Municipal Lodging House on Monday night had about 180 persons, including several women and children; and the Women's Shelter of the Salvation Army had about seventy women. Early last night officials at the lodging houses said that they did not expect unusual numbers of guests unless the temperature took a sudden drop.

The cold wave touched only the Atlantic seaboard cities. The lowest recorded temperature was 12 below zero at Greenville, Me., and Boston had zero weather.

Lange Plays Good Billiards.

John Lange, who met Irving Schwartz in the continuation of the Class C amateur 18:2 balkline billiard tournament at Fuller's Academy last night, defeated Schwartz by the score of 150 to 53 and averaged 5 20-26, his high run being 34. Schwartz tallied a high run of 7, and his average was 2 3-25.

Negotiations Attacked in Tokio Diet.

TOKIO, Jan. 25.—In The Diet today Representative Kotaro Merchizuki, a member of the Kensei-kai Party, for two hours arraigned the Government for its alleged failure in diplomatic negotiations with the United States, Great Britain, China and Siberia.

(A Washington dispatch said that the settlement of the California question and of the rights of Japanese in the United States had been successfully concluded in negotiations between Roland S. Morris, the American Ambassador to Japan, and Mr. Shidehara, the Japanese Ambassador to the United States).

Mr. Kotaro Merchizuki quoted extracts from a Foreign Office pamphlet on the California question. He then said that Foreign Minister Uchida had been waiting and trusting to Mr. Morris, "a respectable gentleman, doubtless, but who may not be invested with full powers to negotiate the questions at issue."

Viscount Uchida, disregarding the personalities indulged in by the speaker, explained that Japan should not expect to have everything her own way in the negotiations with the United States, and that respect should be shown the other side.

Here there were cries from members of the Kensei-kai Party of "you had better become a naturalized American."

Continuing Viscount Uchida said Mr. Morris and Mr. Shidehara were trying their best to settle pending questions in the negotiations which were in progress in Washington. He declared he was confident a suitable arrangement eventually would be concluded.

General Giichi Tanaka, the Minister of War, said it was not the intention of the Government to carry out the projected extension of the army to twenty-five divisions in the next decade, but to strengthen the existing twenty-one divisions to a point necessary for the country's defense.

Several newspapers today commend the address of Viscount Kato, in the Diet on Monday. They assert that it inaugurates the party spirit for the first time since the establishment of representative government in Japan. This political development, which is hailed as constitutional progress, attracts the attention of the editorial writers more than does the merit of the debate, although the Nichi Nichi expresses the conviction that Premier Hara's reply to Viscount Kato failed to throw light on the reasons for the maintenance of an army in Siberia.

In his address yesterday Viscount Kato said that when America proposed joint action in Siberia he had hoped that Japan would determine the strength of her force after taking the Powers into her confidence, but instead of living up to the international agreements she had dispatched the disproportionately large number of 45,000 men, creating a misapprehension abroad as to Japan's aims. Then, contrary to general expectations, Japan had withdrawn only partially when the repatriation of the Czechoslovaks in Siberia had been effected.

Premier Hara in his reply declared that Japan wanted to evacuate completely when the Czechoslovaks had been repatriated, but that Japan's topographical situation had prevented this, while many of the Russians were anxious for the Japanese to remain.

"The troops will be withdrawn," said the Premier, "as soon as a proper Russian Government is established. Bolshevism is spreading overwhelmingly and may reach Japanese territory. The Government is aware of the futility of trying to check Bolshevism with bayonets and realizes it cannot prevent discontented Koreans from becoming tainted with such doctrines."

BRITISH WELCOME UCHIDA PLAN

Revised Alliance Will Be Made to Conform to League Covenant.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The desire of both Great Britain and Japan to bring the Anglo-Japanese agreement of alliance of 1911 into full harmony with the covenant of the League of Nations is now a matter of public record as a result of the statements of Viscount Uchida, the Japanese Foreign Minister, in his address in the Diet. Official circles in London today expressed pleasure that the Japanese Foreign Minister outlines an alliance policy which they said fully corresponded with Great Britain's.

The parties to the treaty are now engaged in the work of revising it in order to bring the treaty into full harmony with the spirit as well as the letter of the covenant, and the results of their work are to be incorporated into the document before the expiration date of the present agreement, which is July 13, 1921.

The elimination of Germany from the Far East and closer participation by Canada and Australia in the British imperial counsels are given as the principal changes affecting the compact. The imperial conference to be held in London in the Spring, it is considered, will prove a most important session for the discussion of the future alliance.

on the weaknesses of others seems to be more common than ever. It is the acknowledged chief duty of some men, whereby they glorify themselves and allow self to climb over every obstacle, and they run away with all they can lay their hands on and take the chances of consequences.

Its methods are the signboard and the full page of pictures; and curiosity brings the customers, who are overcome by volubility and turn over Liberty Bonds and hard-earned savings as if a spell had been wrought upon them, to let go what they have long kept for old age and a rainy day.

Some Exquisite French Antiques

AU QUATRIEME

A little fine antique French table of mahogany and rosewood is kidney shaped and of most exquisite proportions. The top is inlaid in a lattice pattern with rosewood and mahogany in tiny pieces fitted together to form one lovely surface, with a patina like some priceless enamel. Astonishingly, the little table has three drawers, one in the middle and one in each end, so that it makes a most convenient little writing table. Price $600.

A fine French walnut chair of the Louis XV. period is a little coiffeuse made with a revolving seat and very low back, so that it is most convenient for use at the dressing table. The seat and back are covered with old needlepoint of the period. Price $500.

Typical of their period are two very fine chairs, one Louis XV. the other Louis XVI. The Louis XV. chair is of the earlier type, very simple and beautiful in its graceful curve of arm and back. It is of walnut, covered with needlepoint of a cream ground strewn with deep rose and green flowers. Price $350. The Louis XVI. chair is walnut, a covering of needlepoint of pale blue ground with rose and cream flowers. Price $400.

From today to the end of January all furniture transactions will date from February 1st and purchases will be charged on the account payable in March.

This permits our warehouse to catch up with the sale, getting the furniture in good order for shipment as February opens and the distribution into homes proceeds during the month.

It enables those needing furniture to make selections NOW and still obtain the privilege of later payment.

"The public doesn't realize"—

said a furniture man after going over our stocks and prices, "the tremendous opportunity you are offering in this sale. Nowhere have I seen prices so low for your grade of furniture, and I am in touch with the market, both retail and wholesale, from Chicago to Boston, especially in New York City."

Thank you, sir! We will print your statement and let it speak for itself. "We are advertised by our loving friends," you know. We would rather have those who see and buy write our advertisements than write them ourselves.

Not coming down

From The New York Times of January 22.

Furniture Makers Don't Cut Much.

Men who have returned from the annual Winter furniture fair at Grand Rapids assert that the manufacturers throughout the country are not helping to lower the cost of living by reducing prices on their products to any extent. Reductions of around 15 per cent. were made in a number of cases, but these were said to have been discounted largely by the offers that had been made by some manufacturers to move their wares late in the past year. Unless retailers can force the manufacturers to capitulate by holding off indefinitely, substantially lower prices on general lines of furniture to the public will not be seen for some time. Manufacturers defend their position on the ground of high production costs, particularly for labor.

But, speaking of values—

perhaps we have been a little too reticent, so here is a list of some representative examples of the sale:

THE DEMOCRATIC ESTATE.

The Democratic Party might well wonder why, if it is not dead, offers are made to administer its estate. Mr. McAdoo not long ago indicated his willingness to take charge of the property. That good old family lawyer, Mr. Bryan, who conveniently has an undertaker's business annexed to his practice, has naturally proposed himself as the ideal administrator. And now Governor Cox has turned up in Washington to serve notice, as it were, that the goods and chattels of the party cannot be disposed of without consulting him.

The chief asset is, of course, the Democratic National Committee and the party machinery in general. It is for the control of this that there are rivals. They must know, however, that the organization is not worth contending for unless there be restored hope and vigor in the party itself. But that is a work for the future. It cannot be forced. And the shrewder Democrats can be in no doubt who will make their party powerful and sanguine again. It will be President Harding and the Republicans. After they have gone on for a time and drawn upon themselves violent popular discontent, it would be necessary to invent an aggressive Democratic Party, if one did not exist.

A BARREN CONGRESS.

The Republican leaders in Congress now admit that there will be no legislation of any consequence before March 4 except the passage of the appropriation bills. Even to pass all of them will require more girding up of the loins than has been visible. The emergency tariff, restriction of immigration, the soldiers' bonus, bills affecting the banks and farmers' loans—all are to be jettisoned. This Congress will end with an extraordinary record for doing nothing.

It is an unusually painful contrast between promise and performance. With the Presidential election out of the way, and with Republicans unrivaled for efficiency in full control of Congress, great things were expected. Mr. Harding plainly expected them when he made his little address to the Senate, six weeks ago. All hands were to get down to work. Waste of time was to be regarded by all as a crime. Every pending measure of importance was to be got clean out of the way before the new Administration came in. Today this seems like a vision of the night when it is fled.

The Republican leaders in the Senate have been not alone unable to make their followers work; they have not been able to maintain discipline among them. Take Monday's vote on the bill to put the Government into the meat-packing business. All the recognized Republican leaders were against it—Lodge, Knox, Smoot, Warren and the rest. But there was open revolt in the party, and eighteen Republican Senators voted for the bill. This, of course, was but one sign of that combination of the West and South against the East which boasts that it is going to sweep everything before it in the next Congress. But if it does, one of the things which will be swept away is the unity of the Republican Party.

THE ALTAR OF LIBERTY.

On Jan. 14 President Curran of the Borough of Manhattan and Deputy Controller Henry Smith choked off, for the moment, Mayor Hylan's hasty attempt to get the Board of Estimate to authorize the erection in Madison Square of an Altar of Liberty. A temporary structure of that name on the same site produced various impressions on various beholders. To some of the ungodly it looked more like a billboard than a worthy permanent artistic memorial; but, whatever its merits or defects, it was an accessory and part of the plan for a memorial arch. Private citizens have subscribed the estimated cost of the altar which they admit to be "a preliminary step to the great war memorial." That is, the permanent war memorial is to be an arch with this sacrificial structure on the side.

Without questioning the sincere conviction and good intention of the proponents of the arch, the course to which they are seeking to commit the city is unconsidered and premature. Even if there were a general agreement of artists and laymen upon an arch; even if no more appropriate and original form of commemoration than this ancient wanderer from Babylonia, Greece and way stations can be devised, the question of a site would still require long and grave deliberation. New York is one of the worst cities in the world in which to display to advantage even a splendid monument of architecture. Perspective, distance, the far-seen effective position, wide spaces and harmonizing surroundings are hard to come by; and even if such a fortunate situation is found, a memorial on it would be remote from public haunt.

Neither on form nor site is the public mind made up. If a city of art like Paris needs to wait ten years before deciding upon its war memorial, New York, so much feebler in the tradition and inheritance of art, certainly can't afford to make an impromptu choice. We are to build for as long as time will spare the building. It won't do rashly to put up something that our riper judgment, without waiting for the sneers of posterity, may find to be unsatisfactory, ineffective, feeble, perhaps an eyesore. Moreover, economic as well as artistic reasons forbid haste. Let us wait till the wounds of war are nearer healing, till the burden of debt has been lessened, before beginning this secular monument. Give to the planning of it years of study and thought and criticism. Wait till there is a substantial consensus of competent opinion. Otherwise we may get a memorial that, like so many others in the United States, will be a thing of ugliness and annoy forever.

OUR LADY OF THE BLOWS.

Mr. Fordney's farmer-decoy Emergency Tariff bill stirred some of our Canadian friends into natural threats of commercial retaliation. If we won't let their stuff come in, they'll keep ours out, snap their fingers at geography and buy of the British manufacturer. Now Canadian enterprise seeks to snatch from us a great national and international industry. The commercial exchange of thumps between Mr. John Dempsey, the American hero, and Mr. Georges Carpentier, the paladin of Gaul, is to be transferred to Dominion soil if the Northern graspers of American trade have their way. The exportation of these heavyweights means heavyweight finance. The romantic sum of $700,000 is said to be the consideration. If the two egregious strikers ever do collide in Canada, what an amount of American money will go from here to there!

Thousands of citizens are saving, no doubt some will even go so far as to steal, money for the purpose of witnessing the most expensive transaction in the history of slugging. There have been plenty of greater fighters. To none has so lofty a financial program been offered. The price of a seat is a week's wages or more to the salariat. Who can calculate the amount of the hotel bills, the hire of taxis, the wild American plunge into the sea of Scotch? Who can reckon the mighty aggregate of American assets that will be lost to the United States? The exportation of this memorable "mill" may have a notable effect upon the course of Canadian exchange. Yet nobody raises a finger to protect our home industry, Dempsey the huge. Nobody thinks of grabbing Mr. Carpentier, an imported industry to be fostered here, and of detaining the fat profits that might be made from his labors in the home market. With an edifying altruism Americans will watch the removal, if it takes place, of these two great sources of wealth, play joyfully at the new game of enrich instead of beggar your neighbor and await with satisfaction and relief the interplay of battering "dukes" when

NEW JERSEY BANDITS.

Bandits, as applied to marauders who prey upon travelers in the suburban districts, may be a much overused term, but it seems to fit the raiders of the trolley cars of the Morris County traction line in New Jersey. This road connects Elizabeth with Springfield, Summit, Chatham, Madison, Morristown, Dover and Lake Hopatcong, running through much open and sparsely settled country that has little police protection at night. On Monday these "knights of industry" plundered the passengers on two cars between Springfield and Summit. The night was still young when the first car was stopped at a switch about midway between the old village of Springfield, where the British and Hessians once fought a battle with the Colonials, and Summit, which has a respectable police force. But the spot selected for the "hold-up" was outside the city limits of Summit.

The risk of the performance was so slight and the profits so satisfactory that the robbers waited for the next car that was due. Interference from the Springfield constables or from Summit policemen was not to be expected or feared. A few weeks earlier a trolley car load on this line was rifled in true Mexican style at a solitary crossing in Union, where the motorman alights to insert a key in a box to report electrically that he is on the job. This affair made a great sensation in Elizabeth, two miles away, and, although the hour was midnight, police automobiles were rushed out to scour the countryside, with the usual result. The authorities of the district were therefore put upon notice that the "bandits" might repeat their foray along the unprotected Morris County traction line.

There is now an indignant call for a State constabulary of mounted, well-armed men to make an end of freebooting and restore the security of the country roads in New Jersey. Automobile "hold-ups," by the way, have become a common experience for travelers in Union and Morris Counties. A referendum to ascertain the pleasure of the people is being conducted by the Manufacturers' Council of the State of New Jersey. Much can be said in favor of a State rural police force in New Jersey, where most of the population lives in cities and the country is badly policed or not policed at all; but it should be understood that if enabling legislation can be obtained the process may be long drawn out. Meanwhile, it would become the local authorities to show more initiative and energy in hunting down the impudent banditti and affording protection to travelers.

SERVICE, NOT FARES.

Governor Miller's message will be searched in vain for mention of what fares would be fair, and therefore should be charged, under present or future conditions. Even readers of the Subway Sun know that eight-cent fares are neither asked nor wanted by the operators of the dual subway, except temporarily. A permanent eight-cent fare would react against those who collected it so that it would be more a liability than an asset, increasing the debit as the years rolled on. Yet some organs of opinion speak of the Governor's message as an eight-cent fare document. The Governor proposes nothing until the subject has been inquired into. Any step taken beyond that must rest on other authority than the Governor's. There can be no reasonable ground for opposing investigation, without power of action. Opposition implies refusal to concede that the present situation, the "drift to disaster," needs some remedial action. Only those who find profit or merit in prolonging present conditions can in the same breath admit that action should be taken, and contend that inquiry should not be made before action.

There is a similar inconsistency in their argument that a contract is too sacred to be reformed. In the case of the dual subway they demand the contract and nothing but the contract because the contract establishes a nickel fare. But in the case of the surface lines they object to the contracts because they allow the substitution of several fares for the one fare and transfer system. To them a contract is sacred only when it is popular in their opinion. That contracts can be reformed by agreement so as to be more popular than those objected to lies outside of their perception, or standard, of public morals. The transfer system, the abuse of which was the cause of its wreck and abandonment, may also be the salvation of the nickel fare. The idea that the transfers cost nothing no longer exists. Passengers who have lost them perceive that they are worth something.

Possibly the practicability of the unification of the entire traction system may turn on the transfer solution. It is surely worth a cent or two to transfer from one subway system to the other or from either subway to a surface line. The transfer system greatly stimulated travel. Its amendment and restoration would not encourage joy riding on the subways, would add nothing to the nickel fare for those who did not transfer.

That, however, is pure conjecture in advance of the finding of the Governor's inquiry. As the Governor says, service is a question superior to the fare question. If a service is offered worth more than a nickel, with the option of paying a nickel and getting less, opponents of the plan will be even more uncomfortable than they now show signs of being. The Governor has shown up the unreasonable obstruction to anything and everything except the "drift to disaster."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Discrimination Without One Excuse.

From bad through worse to worst is evidently the course which is to be taken by the case of the man O'Callaghan. That it yet has arrived at the very limit of impropriety, of illegality, of shameless and insolent disregard of constituted authority, is made probable only because it is so difficult to imagine anything more that can be done for him and his friends by the Department of Labor in furtherance of his and their effort to start a war between the United States and Great Britain. One cannot be sure, however, for Sinn Fein has at its command both intelligence and ingenuity, and if its leaders succeed in thinking up something else for which they can use O'Callaghan here, there is no reason for doubting that they will be allowed to do it unless the Department of State shows more of energy and determination than hitherto in the legitimate—the obligatory—exercise of its forces to protect the national interests.

As the matter stands now this man, whose presence in the country from the moment of his arrival has been an open defiance of our laws, can remain here as long as he pleases, go where he pleases and do and say what he pleases. His nominal status is that of a foreign seaman, waiting for a chance that suits him to sign articles as such on a new ship and go home! The only excuse for calling him a seaman is that he may have done a little work of some kind not specified on the ship that brought him over, nominally as a stowaway. He is not a seaman, as everybody knows—never was and never will be, unless his whole plan and course of life suffer a most unexpected change.

That he is wasting his time here—and the money of deluded contributors to his hopeless campaign—that has nothing to do with the gravity of the malfeasance and nonfeasance of the officials who have allowed him to remain.

They Must Reject or Accept.

Now that the House of Representatives has before it the offer of the Morgan mansion in London for use as an American Embassy, the necessity for settling, one way or the other, the question of acceptance has become well-nigh imperative. But in both chambers the delicacy of the problem has been recognized, and its embarrassments, too.

In the first place, there is in both houses timidity about the effects in the home districts of going on record as favoring, on behalf of the nation, the taking of a valuable gift from a man whose name, to rustic and radical imaginations, personifies "Wall Street" and all its influences. Curiously enough, however, the fears thus aroused have not yet become articulate in either house.

In the second place, not only would there be something of real humiliation in accepting a gift of this kind from anybody by the richest of nations, but it would be a confession that, though there is, and long has been, a real and recognized need for embassies not rented privately, but owned publicly, in all foreign capitals, Congress persistently has ignored that need and apparently is not willing to meet it even now.

Mr. Morgan certainly has a right to an answer, and as he has waited for one almost two years he cannot be charged with showing impatience when he says that unless he gets a reply before March 1 next he will feel obliged to withdraw his offer. The reason he gives—that it is not right any longer, in a city where housing is scarce, to allow this building to remain vacant—is a perfectly good reason, but one may feel sure that it is not his only reason.

Will Congress wait till other countries besides little Chile take pity on our sad case and offer to give us homes for our Ambassadors and Ministers in their capitals?

Prohibitionists Could Answer Him.

One of The Times readers, in a letter printed yesterday, found fault with the people who have been unable to see in the violations of the prohibition amendment and the Volstead act any better reason for abrogating the one and repealing or mitigating the other than there is for similar action with respect to the laws against murder and theft, which also are frequently disregarded.

To make his point the writer of the letter recalled the old distinction of the lawyers between things that are evil in themselves and those that are made evil by statute—"mala in se" and "mala prohibita." The difference is real, of course, but it is not, as the correspondent seems to think, an absolute difference, and it cannot be used safely in an argument against prohibition.

The prohibitionists can answer, if they will, that murder and robbery have not been regarded always and everywhere as evils in themselves—that no small part of the world's inhabitants have held them virtuous when those killed or robbed were members of another tribe, and even within the tribe the Spartans honored the thief who wasn't caught. Again, the prohibitionist—who wouldn't go to the cider press for his typical intoxicant, as did his critic—could make out a case at least fair to middling good against alcohol, when used as a beverage, for inclusion among the things evil in themselves.

After all, the class in which an evil belongs is determined not by an essential difference, but by a preponderance of opinion at any given time and place. That a large majority of the people in this country have come to believe in prohibition is as unquestionable as are their approval of the law about as it stands and their determination to keep it on the statute books.

His Logic Led Him Far Astray.

Despairing, apparently, as to the effectiveness of arguments based on the alleged proprieties, a professor in a Pennsylvania theological seminary appeals to the fears of women in the hope that thus they can be made or persuaded to dress as he thinks they should.

The dear old gentleman is a victim of deductive logic—from the assumption that exposure of the neck is an invitation to pneumonia he concludes that the invitation is accepted. As a matter of fact, this sort of exposure is a protection from pneumonia and the kindred maladies, rather than a condition favoring their development, and if the professor had studied the statistics he would have learned that men, not women, are the most frequent sufferers—in part, at least, because they bundle up their necks so much more than women do.

Admiral Scheer's Claims.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When is a victory a defeat, and vice versa? When described by a German Admiral.

The fine Prussian sophistry of Admiral Scheer might almost win the fair mind to the conviction that the German fleet triumphed in the fight off Jutland were it not for the stark, historical fact that the close of the battle found Jellicoe undisputed master of the situation and the seas, which status was maintained until the surrender and subsequent scuttling of the German fleet nearly three years later.

Nor is Admiral Scheer more convincing when he relates the tale of his second effort to bring the Grand Fleet to battle. The world knows that the August sortie of which he boasts was little more than a grimace through a sally post.

The German Admiral's tactical comments on the Jutland fight are enormously interesting and illuminating, but he reveals a peculiar cast of mentality when he points out how, at a certain phase of the conflict, Jellicoe might have annihilated him, and then proceeds blandly to the conclusion that the British sailor's failure to grasp this opportunity constituted a victory for the German fleet.

A SYSTEM OF BARTER.

How to Get Around the Exchange Barriers.

It has become plain to many thinking men that the exchange of commodities between the various commercial nations must, in order to avert universal bankruptcy, be changed back for a time to the original method before exchange, founded upon its gold value, was made an instrument, and a convenient one, for international transactions.

Our merchants will be obliged, for a time, to submit to a less convenient method, possibly involving less certain profit than heretofore. I refer to the ancient method of barter.

Notwithstanding that we hold approximately two-thirds of the world's supply of gold, viz.: $2,781,831,427, we shall be involved in the catastrophe, as all our surplus products will remain here useless and depress prices.

For instance, in the matter of our surplus production of cotton, we find that the surplus beyond our present needs will be left on our hands, to be augmented by the surplus of 1921. The same thing will happen to our European neighbors, who will be left with an overneed of their products. The gold with which they purchase raw materials is rapidly declining in amount. Both will suffer severely from the lack of the other's products.

The plan proposed is as follows: A merchant here, preferably one who has an agent in any of the markets, purchases and ships a cargo of, say, cotton, which he sells in Europe at the highest price obtainable, payable in the currency of the country, which he expends in purchasing a cargo of that country's products needed by us at the lowest market price. When it reaches this country he, of course, will sell for our currency.

A safer and quicker way would be to charter a vessel for a round trip. If care were used, profits would certainly result from the transactions. Matters could be expedited and made sure by use of the cables.

Banks could be found to assist in the transactions.

Gold was never meant to be a standard of value for commodities further than it came in time to be a standard of exchange. It has ceased that function on account of its temporary unequal distribution. When that is changed by the operation of trade to its normal condition, we shall return to the use of exchange automatically.

Public Library Invasions.

Can nothing be done to prevent the invasion of the New York Public Library by the hordes of high school boys and girls who, on Saturdays and Sundays especially, take possession of the entire place, research as well as main reading rooms, to do the work on their lessons that pupils are supposed to do at home or in school? They create an atmosphere intolerable to all but themselves, and crowd out the regular users of the library—readers, researchers and literary workers—for whom the library was intended in its gift to the city. These young people coming in hundreds, bring with them their satchels of school books—a thing not allowed some years ago—and most of them do not even make pretense of consulting the library books, having in fact no need for them. Many do make such pretense in order to deceive the attendants, and it is open camouflage. They are difficult to keep in order and swarm over the whole building with the utmost license.

The authorities tell us that the building being a public one, it is open to all who come; but it surely is a building for library use only, and free to those who would use it as such. It is not a free study room for the schools, nor free for social assembly use by these girls and boys, who, even when they handle the books, mistreat them, and lower the whole tone of the place by their ill manners and open flouting of the attendants, who are too few and too indulgent. Can nothing be done to restore the library to the purpose from which it is being diverted, so that scholars may again find there a congenial atmosphere in which to work? Many are staying away altogether; or when the boys and girls come pouring in, they pack up their work and leave.

The Albany Argus.

In connection with your editorial today on The Albany Argus, in which you said, "Its partisan orthodoxy could always be depended upon," permit me to quote the following sentence from the final editorial of The Argus in explanation of the policy of the paper during the last year:

"Toward the end of its career The Argus attempted to divorce itself from too restrained a partisanship. It was fettered by no alliance with any political organization. It printed the news as news without conscious bias in favor of any man or group of men. Its opinions were based upon an impartial judgment, and it took sides with Mr. Wilson, Mr. Corning (the new Democratic leader in Albany County) and Mr. Cox not because they were Democrats, but because it believed them to be right."

Mr. Coolidge in the Cabinet.

After reading the views of a correspondent on Mr. Coolidge and the Cabinet, I feel tempted to add the following query. With this new liaison between the White House and the Senate, which will it be most apt to accomplish, preventing the President from going against the will of the Senate or the Senate from doing anything the President may not like? In view of the stout objection offered to the suggestion for a Cabinet post of one of our most respected and prominent statesmen who through never having been a member of the Senate, might not hold that body in the proper respect in the pending millennium, I feel I know the reply.

GUESTS.

My bread is bitter and my cup unblest;
Unbidden children crowd about my board
With piteous appeal; a hungry horde,
I see them stand outside, with faces pressed
Against the pane; and, still beyond, I see
The millions more. Why do they come to me?

I am not rich, that they should haunt me thus!
My utmost gift were but a little thing
Lost in the chasm of their suffering.
(Oh! that pale girl, whose face was tremulous
With transitory hope—and now so bleak,
So like the dying! Did she hear me speak?)

Now, unrelieved, the millions turn away
To ask for life at other hands, but still
Are waxen fingers on my window sill.
Oh, weak and small! More weak for my delay!
And now the pleader falls; his day is done.
Why did I wait? I might have saved that one!

What night may bring my weariness repose
When these have come, and turned away unfed?
Master of Life, oh, multiply the bread
I cast abroad, where little fingers close
Upon the crumbs! (One child has ceased to weep!)
Have mercy, Lord! Help me to give—and sleep!

FORCES THAT MAKE THE LEAGUE INEVITABLE

Attempts to Bind the Nations to Future Economic and Military Action Broke Down on the First Test at Geneva.

By A PRO-LEAGUE REPUBLICAN.

THIRD ARTICLE.

INDETERMINATE PLEDGES.

In the major portion of the Covenant, as we have seen, the sovereign independence of nations is safeguarded with a strictness and a scrupulous care the value of which the League itself is only beginning to appreciate. The source of authority and the ultimate responsibility rest not with the representatives at Geneva but with the several members of the League. And no pledge is called for which commits the member nations beyond a decision as to matters actually in hand.

There are, however, two articles under which nations ratifying the Covenant give serious pledges as to their future action—action with regard to crises the precise nature of which is necessarily indeterminable. By Article X. the members of the League undertake, for all future time, to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members of the League. By Article XVI., if any member of the League wages war in defiance of its agreement under the Covenant, all other members undertake to subject it to an economic boycott and blockade and to consult as to military measures. In both cases action by the members is "automatic." One of these articles prevented ratification of the treaty by the United States. Both of them were repudiated at the first session of the League at Geneva—or that, at least, is the view of Republicans, even of those who are in general warm supporters of the Covenant.

When a nation undertakes, by the formal negotiation and deliberate ratification of a written Covenant, to preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of other nations, is it possible that it is under no obligation to do so? President Wilson himself, who is said to have drafted Article X., declared and reiterated that the nation would be under a moral obligation." absolutely compelling." He recognized, it is true, that in our own case the right to declare war must rest with Congress, and that it could only be exercised at the time of the crisis. From this it resulted that, by ratifying the Covenant, the United States would commit itself in advance to an absolutely compelling moral obligation which Congress, when the crisis arrived, might or might not fulfill. But we are no longer concerned with the question whether such a situation is consistent with national integrity. A legal commission of the League, consisting of delegates from each of the forty-one nations, has declared that all Article X. does is "to condemn external aggression on the territorial integrity and political independence of any member of the League and call on the Council to consider what means," &c. Thus an undertaking to "preserve" a nation against aggression simmers down to an undertaking merely to condemn that aggression. It so happened that, on the same day, Denmark, whose procedure in going to war is similar to our own, reported itself constitutionally unable to contribute its quota of troops to the League forces destined for Vilna. Its excuse, though embarrassing, was accepted.

Article X. might as well have read: "The members of the League undertake to condemn external aggression against the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members." In that case the United States would probably have entered the League, though many of its citizens might have smiled as it did so. But could President Wilson have ever said that the article imposed an absolutely compelling moral obligation? The effort to invest the cause of peace with the sanction of arms is obvious and, abstractly considered, commands sympathy and respect; but it must now be manifest that there are difficulties in the way of making independent nations move automatically to effective action at indefinite future times and in situations that are quite beyond the range of conjecture. One result of this decision was a widespread and apparently growing demand at Geneva for the elimination of Article X.

If the spirit of the men who drafted other articles of the Covenant had prevailed, Article X. would have declared at most that external aggression against any member of the League would be regarded as an aggression against the peace of the world, and that the members, moving through their representatives in the League, would take such action as the crisis seemed at the time to require. But when reduced to these dimensions the article is hardly distinguishable from Article XVI., which in fact covers similar ground in a manner much clearer and more comprehensive. This article declares that a nation waging war in defiance of the Covenant "shall, ipso facto, be deemed to have committed an act of war against all other members of the League," that the other members "undertake" to enforce an economic blockade "immediately," and that meantime the Council is to "recommend" "effective military" measures.

To most Americans the economic blockade seemed a hopeful expedient, admirably calculated to forestall the resort to arms, though many had misgivings as to backing it ultimately with military force in far countries. The recent action at Geneva came distinctly as a surprise, and indeed a shock. Several nations that had accepted the Covenant without reservations flatly refused to hold themselves bound as to future action.

The crucial question was by what authority the blockade should be declared. No means is specified for determining when a nation's covenants have been violated. Questions of fact are involved which are likely to be of the utmost delicacy. The presumption was that the decisions would be made by the representatives in the Council. But this was to vest them with powers primarily judicial and furthermore to give them the authority of a superstate over the member nations as a whole. The Scandinavian representatives insisted upon the right to reject any such decision of the Council. "My country," said Hjalmar Branting of Sweden, "will never yield to the Council the right to decide when a blockade shall be instituted!" Norway and Denmark made similar declarations. Switzerland joined with them and had the best possible reason for doing so. Swiss neutrality is a doctrine of even longer standing than our Monroe Doctrine, and is even more vital to the republic. President Motta declared that Switzerland would never abandon it. To American observers it may seem that under such circumstances the Scandinavian countries and Switzerland should not have entered the League, at least without making clear reservations. There is force in that view; yet much may be said for nations that waived legal scruple in order to unite in the task of rescuing a war-shattered world from destruction.

In these discussions it was repeatedly declared that the Covenant was very ill drafted. The charge is an old one. In Paris in 1919 it was reported, notably in The New York Herald of Feb. 23, that the entire time consumed in conference was only thirty hours. The drafting of the Constitution of the United States occupied something over a year. The statement in The Herald is probably an exaggeration; but during a discussion at Geneva on Dec. 2 Mr. Balfour admitted that the Covenant had been framed with "remarkable rapidity" and that in consequence many amendments would be necessary. Again, on Dec. 7, he spoke of "vagueness and confusion" in the Covenant. Lord Robert Cecil, who is said to have had a hand in the drafting, admitted on Dec. 10 that the provisions as to the economic blockade were "very unsatisfactory." Yet it is noteworthy that the charges of vagueness and confusion relate almost exclusively to Articles X. and XVI., and to only those portions of those articles which involve undertakings of a serious nature as to quite indeterminable crises in an utterly indefinite future.

The objection to these articles, as commonly stated, is that they call for "a surrender of the independence," "an abatement of the sovereignty" of the member nations. It may be doubted whether the phrases, or rather the idea behind the phrases, is exact. Few modern nations or none have preserved their sovereignty intact, yet they are so far from lamenting the fact that they are not really aware of it. Many treaties involve a distinct abatement of sovereignty. In 1817 the United States and Great Britain bound themselves to limit their armaments on the Great Lakes. In the treaty of 1846 with Colombia the United States guaranteed "positively and efficaciously * * * the perfect neutrality" of the Isthmus of Panama. In 1889 the United States agreed by treaty with Germany and Great Britain to recognize the neutrality of the Samoan Islands and to grant one another equal rights within the islands. By treaties with over twenty nations we have agreed to submit disputes for investigation and report to an international commission, and not to resort to war while the investigation is proceeding. The Covenant itself, as we have seen, imposes a similar suspension of the right to make war and the nations have freely accepted it.

Provided only the cause is good, no nation, and few statesmen in any nation, have ever hesitated before even a very distinct abatement of national sovereignty. Theodore Roosevelt was one of the most comprehensive and vigorous advocates of what is now called a superstate—a superstate compelling the resort to law and to arms. In October, 1914, he said:

"The only prominent move for obtaining peace which has yet been suggested with any reasonable chance of obtaining its object is by an agreement among the great powers by which each should pledge itself not only to abide by the decision of a common tribunal but to back with force the decision of that common tribunal. The great civilized nations of the world which do not possess force actually or immediately, potentially, should combine by solemn agreement in a great world league for peace and righteousness."

On several occasions Senator Lodge has expressed himself to similar effect. He recognized, as did Roosevelt, certain difficulties in the organization of world force; yet his ultimate conviction has always been as clear. In May, 1918, at the very height of the war, speaking of Mr. Taft's League to Enforce Peace, he said:

"No one, I think, can feel more deeply than I do the difficulties which confront us in the work which this League undertakes. But the difficulties cannot be overcome unless we try to overcome them. I believe it can be done.

"Probably it will be impossible to stop all wars, but it certainly will be possible to stop some wars, and thus to diminish their number. The way in which this problem is to be worked out must be left to this League. * * * I know the obstacles, I know how squarely we will be met with the statement: 'No nation can submit to the judgment of other nations.' We must be careful at the beginning not to attempt too much.

"I know the difficulties which arise when we speak of anything which seems to involve an alliance; but I do not believe, when Washington warned us against entangling alliances, that he meant for one moment we should not join with the other civilized nations of the world, if a method could be found to diminish war and encourage peace.

"This League has certainly the highest of all ambitions for the benefit of humanity, and because the pathway is sown with difficulties is no reason that we should turn from it."

For the difficulties which Senator Lodge foresaw Elihu Root found a solution in the steady upbuilding of international law—a law which eventually would enable "peaceable nations" to "constrain other nations." Early in the war, in December, 1915, speaking before the American Society for International Law, he said:

"We are all familiar with the distinction in the municipal law of all civilized countries between private and public rights, and the remedies for the protection or enforcement of them. Ordinary injuries and breaches of contract are redressed only at the instance of the injured person, and other persons are not deemed entitled to interfere. It is no concern of theirs. On the other hand, certain flagrant wrongs, the prevalence of which would threaten the order and security of the community, are deemed to be everybody's business.

"If, for example, a man be robbed or assaulted, the injury is deemed not to be done to him alone, but to every member of the State, by the breaking of the law against robbery or against violence. Every citizen is deemed to be injured by the breach of the law because the law is his protection, and if the law be violated with impunity his protection will disappear. Accordingly, the Government, which represents all its citizens, undertakes to punish such action, even though the particular person against whom the injury was done may be content to go without redress.

"Up to this time breaches of international law have been treated as we treat wrongs under civil procedure, as if they concerned nobody except the particular nation upon which the injury was inflicted and the nation inflicting it. There has been no general recognition of the right of other nations to object. * * * If the law of nations is to be binding, if the decisions of tribunals charged with the application of that law to international controversies are to be respected, there must be a change in theory, and violations of the law of such a character as to threaten the peace and order of the community of nations must be deemed to be a violation of the right of every civilized nation to have the law maintained, and a legal injury to every nation. When a controversy arises between two nations other nations are indeed strangers to the dispute as to what the law requires in that controversy, but they cannot really be strangers to a dispute as to whether the law which is applicable to the circumstances shall be observed or violated.

"Next to the preservation of national character, the most valuable possession of all peaceable nations, great and small, is the protection of those laws which constrain other nations to conduct based upon principles of justice and humanity. Without that protection there is no safety for the small State, except in the shifting currents of policy among its great neighbors, and none for a great State, however peaceable and just may be its disposition, except in readiness for war."

That men who have framed so many honorable and advantageous treaties, who, before the great war as during it, stated so clearly the problems of a league to secure peace—that such men oppose the Covenant merely because it detracts from national sovereignty, does not seem credible. Nor do I think that that was the real motive of those nations which at Geneva repudiated their obligation under Article XVI. and called for the elimination of Article X. It is not so much the obligation to which they object as its indefiniteness. In any contract the prime requisite is that the terms shall be specific, determinable. Lacking that, it is, in the words of the Republican platform, "certain to produce the injustice, hostility and controversy among nations which it proposes to prevent." In the present state of world opinion and organization, an attempt to bind the nations to wage war at any future time and in indeterminable crises is not only unwise but impossible. However one may regret the fact, it is now evident to the world, as it was to the men who framed the Republican platform.

That in its other articles the Paris Covenant is ill-conceived or essentially ill-drafted has nowhere been asserted. To have survived its first stormy session would in itself have been a triumph. And in the face of an upheaval which encouraged its enemies to cry shipwreck it accomplished results momentous to the peace of the world, and in a manner not only absolutely novel but capable of almost limitless extension.

Like most Republicans, I believe that in order to fulfill its highest mission the League should encourage, and eventually enjoin, the collective use of the forces of peaceable nations, and I believe that in the slow course of time it will do so. To that end, however, something more is needful than indeterminate pledges relying for their fulfillment upon political action. It is with regard to the new International Court that the late conference at Geneva was most illuminating.

LICENSES FOR DYES.

Why the American Manufacturers Want the Longworth Bill.

May I reply to the letter in The Times from E. S. Graves regarding the Longworth bill which has for its object the licensing of the imports of dyes into this country? Evidently Mr. Graves has never read the text of the bill itself, as he not only makes misstatements concerning it, but also displays such an erroneous knowledge of the whole subject that to allow his letter to go unanswered would constitute a breach of faith to the entire dye industry, as it would leave in the minds of those who read his letter an incorrect idea of the whole question.

The Longworth bill, which has already passed the House of Representatives and which, with certain modifications, was reported favorably by the Finance Committee to the Senate, specifically states that such dyes as are not manufactured in this country may be imported. Even those dyes which are made in this country, but which are not made here in sufficient quantities or on reasonable terms as to price, quality or delivery, may also be brought in, according to its provisions. Where, then, would be the plight of the textile manufacturer as Mr. Graves sees it, and how would the textile mills be prevented from obtaining any of the dyes which their foreign competitors use?

Space does not permit me here to go into the merits of the licensing plan, as opposed to the high tariff on dyestuffs, which latter idea Mr. Graves says would be "entirely in order." If he will but wade through the voluminous testimony taken by the House and Senate committees on this subject he can come to no other conclusion, as the House of Representatives and the Senate Finance Committee themselves have done, than to be certain that a licensing plan is the only feasible scheme which will foster a dye industry in this country.

Rather than stultify the ingenuity and desires of the American dye manufacturers, the Longworth bill will, quite to the contrary, have the effect of stimulating their efforts in developing the manufacture of dyestuffs which are not made here, and of necessity compel them to deliver the dyes they do make in sufficient quantity and on reasonable terms as to quality, price and delivery, on pain of having foreign dyestuffs come into the country, which they would automatically, according to the provisions of the bill.

I fully agree with Mr. Graves when he says that competition is the life of trade, but if the American dye industry is not fostered by a licensing plan, as England, France and Japan have seen fit to do, then our own dye industry will succumb and the German Dye Trust, not amenable to the trust laws of this country, will reign supreme and the life of trade in dyestuffs shall be an empty phrase indeed.

SOCIETY AMATEURS EXCEL IN OLD PLAY

AID ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL

1,000 in Costume at Mozart Society's Masked Ball at the Astor in Aid of East Side Clinic.

A large and brilliant assembly of society witnessed the amateur performance staged last night at the Plaza by the Junior Auxiliary of the Society Service Department of St. Luke's Hospital. Anatole France's "The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife," with dances and songs of other days interpolated, was the principal attraction, with young men and women of society appearing in the cast and dances. The performance will be repeated tonight.

The production was put on with careful detail in costuming and lighting effects, and the performance ran smoothly and sparkled with novelties. Miss Grace R. Henry, who produced it, has the magic of raising an amateur affair to the plane of the professional. Many were present who recalled Granville Barker's production of the quaint play some years ago, at old Wallack's Theatre.

Miss Henry outdid Mr. Barker, with the material she had in hand, with the innovation of interpolated songs and dances, all in keeping with the spirit of the play. Society audiences are critical, but they approved the production by rounds of applause and frequent encores.

Miss Henry showed her dramatic ability even by the selection of the cast. Emerson MacMillan 3d, as the blind fiddler, and Miss Helen Hoadley, as the singing girl, stepped into immediate favor by the artistic rendering of two old French songs, "Plaisir d'Amour" and "Chanson de Colin." When the lines of the play became a little drawn out, in the first act, she introduced a strolling magician. Fairfax Burger is hardly in Keller's class yet, but he did some of the clever tricks one sees in big time vaudeville with grace and ease, and when he produced a bottle and brought forth every sort of "hootch" that has passed into history, the house, in the vernacular, roared.

Leonard Cox, son of the late Kenyon Cox, the artist, appeared to advantage in the leading male rôle, that of Judge Botal. Mrs. Herbert Groesbeck Jr., as Catherine, his wife, was fair to look upon, and wore her quaint costume with charm. Mrs. Leonard Cox, as Mme. de la Bruine, and Miss Dorothy Post Clapp, as Mlle. de la Garandiere, wore fetching costumes and were well received, as also Miss Edyth McCoon, who was a servant.

Others in the cast who helped carry the production to success were John Haven Stone, as the Chickweed Man; Valentine E. Macy Jr., an apprentice; Van Henry Cartmell Jr., who was Adam Fumee, and Alfred L. Manierre, who took the part of the candle man. Cyril S. Butler as Simon Colline, Robertson L. Cleveland as the surgeon, and Jacob Berry Underhille Jr. as Dulaurier were well cast. Miss Janet Brower was a servant of charm, and the Misses Ethel Potter and Emily Hammond, two attendants, nice to have around.

The moonlight dance of Mrs. Margery Shannon Bowen as Pierette and Miss Elizabeth Moffat as Pierrot was most pleasing, and the Misses Dorothy Leary and Julia Shanley, with John H. Stone, appeared in a delightful interpolation, "Before Dawn." Arcadelt's "Ave Maria" of 1550 was sung by Kenneth Burton, George W. B. Hartwell, Harry Kemp, Ferdinand D. Sanford and Harold Williamson.

Gerald Reynolds, known to all Y. M. C. A. workers overseas, directed the music and arranged the overture. In the dance of the children in the first act were the Misses Florence Clendenin, Eleanor Coward, Katherine Knapp, Genevieve Mangan, Dorothy and Elsie Morrill and Betty Merchant. In "Les Petits Tambours" appeared the Misses Virginia de Haven, Emily Hammond, Edyth McCoon, Geraldine McAlpin, Martha Ottley, Ethel Potter and Helen Trevor.

The gypsy dance and the dance of the court ladies, a gavotte, wound up the last act. In the former were the Misses Alice Goddard, Mary Hurd, Elizabeth T. B. Hyde, Katherine Knapp, Eleanor Landon, Helen Lee, Hope Lincoln, Mary Lincoln, Marie Lamarche, Mariquita Penlman and Elizabeth Thompson, with young men as partners.

The court ladies included the Misses Currie Duke Mathews, Grace Hendricks, Ruth Mannierre, Carolyn Ferriday, Elizabeth Moffat, Virginia Hagen, Isabel MacMillin, Victorine Kellogg, Margaret de Forest and Rita Boker.

Mrs. Howland B. Jones, Mrs. Deas Murphy and the Misses A. Dorothy Battie, Marjorie Cleveland, Ruth Manierre, Dorothy Collins, Mary Hurd, Eleanor Cromwell, Elizabeth Swords, Lisa Todd and Sophie B. Duer composed the Entertainment Committee.

Carnival at the Astor.

More than a thousand guests in picturesque costumes attended the bal masque and carnival which was held last evening in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor under the auspices of the Mozart Society, of which Mrs. Noble McConnell is President. The proceeds from the ball will be used toward the maintenance of the East Side Clinic for children in the interest of which the affair is held annually.

The border of the ballroom was made over into a miniature representation of the Rue de la Paix and the Boulevard des Italiens with attractively decorated shops facing the promenade, from which cigarettes, candy, toys and chinaware were sold, and in addition there were beauty shops and sweetheart shops which attracted a large patronage.

At midnight the carnival began with a parade of the maskers and prizes were awarded for the most original, most picturesque and most humorous costumes worn. A prize was also presented to the designer of the best decorated shop.

R. W. Goelet Wed by Religious Rite.

BORDEAUX, France, Jan. 25.—The religious ceremony uniting in marriage Robert Walton Goelet of New York and Mlle. Anne Guestier, daughter of a Director of the Orleans Railroad, was celebrated this morning in the Church of St. Louis here in the presence of a large gathering.

ENGAGEMENTS.

Miss Jennie S. Jordan to Wed Harold Hunter Kissam.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bailey Jordan Jr. of Hempstead, L. I., formerly of Brooklyn, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jennie Stafford Jordan, to Harold Hunter Kissam, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Ryerson Kissam of Kent, Conn., formerly of Bayshore, L. I.

Miss Jordan was graduated from St. Mary's School at Garden City. Mr. Kissam is a graduate of Andover Academy, Williams College and the New York Law School. He was admitted to the New York bar in 1914, and the following year was made Deputy District Attorney on the staff of Charles Perkins. During the war he served with the U. S. N. R. F.

Gibb—Kenyon.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Doris Kenyon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Kenyon of this city, to Howard Gibb, was made recently at a luncheon given at the Hotel Gotham. Mr. Gibb is the son of the late Howard Gibb and Mrs. Gibb of 11 East Sixty-eighth Street.

SOCIAL NOTES

GIVES WOMEN SPECIAL CARS.

Albany Bill Provides Exclusive Rush-Hour Trolleys for Them.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 25.—Trolley cars for the exclusive use of women during rush hours are provided in a bill introduced today by Senator George M. Reischmann and Assemblyman John O. Gempler of New York. The measure authorizes the Public Service Commission to designate a minimum number of cars for such use.

The drive for legislation designed to curb careless automobile drivers began with the introduction of two bills. One introduced by Assemblyman Mitchell Trahan of Westchester would require every motor vehicle owner to file with his application for registration an indemnity bond or insurance policy for not less than $10,000. The other, offered by Assemblyman Griswold Webb of Dutchess, would permit the Secretary of State to suspend or revoke a certificate of registration or a chauffeur's license on the conviction of the holder of petit larceny. The law now applies only to those convicted of a felony.

No person will hereafter be permitted to hunt or fish on private grounds used for agricultural purposes unless the written consent of the owner or agent has been obtained, if a bill, backed by sportsmen's organizations, the Republican Party and the farmers of the State, is enacted.

Assemblyman Mario G. Di Pirro, New York City, Republican, introduced a bill which would permit football games where an admission is charged on Sunday after 2 P. M., where local ordinances are passed approving the game.

The Assembly Agricultural Committee sponsored a bill to repeal the Daylight Saving Law. There are already five such measures before the Legislature, but the committee bill is expected to be passed with the aid of most upstate Republicans.

ELIZABETH WILLARD TO WED

Ambassador's Daughter Engaged to Mervyn Herbert, British Diplomat.

MADRID, Jan. 25.—Elizabeth Willard, daughter of Joseph Willard, United States Ambassador to Spain, is betrothed to Mervyn Herbert, Secretary of the British Embassy in this city, it is announced by La Epoca.

Miss Willard's sister, Miss Belle Wyatt Willard, was married in June, 1914, to Kermit Roosevelt, second son of the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt.

PADEREWSKI TO RETURN.

Pianist and Polish Statesman Is Going to His California Ranch.

Ignace Jan Paderewski, the pianist and Polish statesman, is coming to America for a lengthy visit, according to letters and cables received by W. O. Gorski, the son of Madame Paderewski. He will sail for America from Havre on La France Feb. 6.

The stepson of the "Father of the Polish Republic" said yesterday that the visit was not to be of a political nature and that he doubted whether Paderewski would visit Washington. He will spend a few days in New York and then go to Paso Robles, Cal., where he owns a ranch.

Mrs. Kathleen H. Bibb in Songs.

With Frank Bibb at the piano, Mrs. Kathleen Hart Bibb gave a first recital at the Princess yesterday. An artificial style marred her natural gifts of a light, bright voice, but she interested her hearers in many rare songs. Among these were arrangements by Mr. Bibb from Handel and James Hook, four "Seasons," by Fevrier, composer of "Monna Vanna"; airs from "old" operas, including Flotow's "l'Ombre," and a group in memory of a New York composer, the late Edward Horsman.

Toscanini Gives Last Concert Here.

Mr. Toscanini conducted his third and last Metropolitan concert last evening with his orchestra of the Milan Scala, again playing to a sold-out house. It was the Italian organization's fifth appearance in Manhattan alone, and its seventh, counting those recently in Brooklyn and Newark, near by. Toscanini's program, which included additions to those of the previous performances, comprised Mozart's E flat symphony, Wagner's prelude to "The Master Singers," Elgar's "Symphonic Variations" and Sinigaglia's "Piemonte" suite, this last a novelty based on songs of the peasants of Piedmont. There were rising recalls after three of the numbers, even an encore after one; and at the close of the concert the leader was cheered.

Miss Anglin's Painting From Daly's.

The huge proscenium painting from Daly's Theatre and the medallions of Shakespeare and Molière which were inserted over the boxes have been purchased by Margaret Anglin, who was the last lessee of Daly's, and will be shown for the first time this afternoon at the Frazee Theatre, where Miss Anglin is appearing. The painting, which represents a Roman festival, will be hung over the proscenium, as at Daly's, and the medallions will be temporarily exhibited in the lobby.

Eleanor Reynolds Reappears.

Eleanor Reynolds, contralto, appeared in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon after seven years abroad, where she sang lately in the Mahler festivals at Vienna. She displayed a voice of fairly thrilling power for the small hall, its rich timbre well controlled if not colorfully varied, and her diction was admirable in Italian airs, songs in English and groups in French and German. Coenrad Bos was at the piano, and two American composers in the list were Lambert and Rogers.

NEW BISHOP LIKELY TO BE CITY RECTOR

READY FOR VOTING TODAY

Prelate, for the First Time in Ninety-one Years, Will Immediately Head the See.

When the clerical and lay delegates from the Diocese of New York meet today in Synod Hall to elect an Episcopal Bishop for New York it will be the first time in ninety-one years that a Bishop has been chosen to immediately become the head of the see. The Bishops chosen since then always have been elected to assist a Bishop still living. The See of New York has never been vacant since Sept. 10, 1830, when the Right Rev. John Henry Hobart, third Bishop of New York, died, until Dec. 20, last, at Bishop Charles S. Burch's death.

Leading churchmen are agreed that the convention beginning today will elect a New York rector to the bishopric. The choice lies between the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires of St. Thomas's Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street; the Rev. Dr. Charles Lewis Slattery, rector of Grace Church, Broadway and Tenth Street, and the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning of Trinity Church.

The Right Rev. Nathaniel R. Thomas, Bishop of the missionary district of Wyoming, is scheduled to be nominated, but even his firmest supporters express little hope for his election unless there is a deadlock between the three local candidates.

If all the delegates entitled to sit in the convention attend there will be 873 present. Of these 315 will be clergymen and 538 will be laymen. All of the clergymen have a vote. The laymen are made up of three vestrymen from each of the 167 parishes and thirty-seven laymen from that many missions. Each parish has one vote and each mission has one-half a vote.

There was a report late last night that if the deadlock which has been predicted between Dr. Stires, Dr. Slattery and Dr. Manning should develop there might be a conference of the leaders who have been supporting the three local rectors, and that they might agree to concentrate on the Rev. Dr. Alexander Mann, rector of Trinity Church, Boston. If Dr. Mann could not win sufficient support speculation added the names of two other local men. One is the Rev. Dr. Milo H. Gates, Vicar of the Chapel of the Intercession, Broadway and 155th Street. As Dr. Gates is one of the Vicars under Dr. Manning it is known that he will not permit himself to run unless there is no chance for Dr. Manning. The other is the Very Rev. Howard Chandler Robbins, Dean of the Cathedral.

A canon provides that the convention shall sit in executive session when electing a Bishop. At the last convention this rule was waived, but today it is the purpose to observe the canon because of the large number of delegates and the lack of space provided.

The Rev. Dr. Edward C. Chorley, however, will introduce a resolution asking that reporters from metropolitan daily newspapers assigned to report the convention be admitted. In this he will be backed up by Justice Vernon M. Davis.

FEWER CRIME CONVICTIONS.

This State's Record for 1920 Shows a Decrease of 13,477.

ALBANY, Jan. 25.—A marked decrease in the number of criminal convictions in the State in 1920 as compared with those of the preceding year was shown in statistics on crime issued by the Secretary of State, John J. Lyons, today. The number of convictions in Courts of General Sessions last year was 33,835, as against 47,312 in 1919, or a decrease of 13,477. Males were largely in the majority, there being 31,062. Females numbered 2,773.

The report showed that twenty-two persons were pardoned last year as compared with twenty-five the year before, and that 157 commutations were granted as against 116 in 1919, while 241 were restored to citizenship as compared with 164 in 1919.

WEDDINGS.

John de P. Douw Marries Miss Anne Olyphant in St. Bartholomew's.

The wedding of John de Peyster Douw of Annapolis, Md., a son of the late Volckert Douw and grandson of John de Peyster Douw of Albany, and Miss Anne Morss Olyphant, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Olyphant of 911 Park Avenue, was solemnized at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the chantry of St. Bartholomew's Church by the rector, the Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks.

The bride walked with her uncle, F. Murray Olyphant, who gave her in marriage, her father being an invalid. She wore an afternoon gown of brown cloth having touches of gold, topped by a hat of cloth of gold, combined with brown tulle and feathers, and a corsage bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. Her only attendant was her little niece, Silvia Olyphant Strong, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Prentice Strong.

Mr. Douw had no best man. The two ushers were Murray Olyphant, a cousin of the bride, and Dorr Viele. A small reception for the families and a few intimate friends of Mr. and Mrs. Douw was held at the Women's City Club. They will live in Annapolis. Mr. Douw served during the war as a Major.

Scharman—Parker.

The marriage is announced of Mrs. Dorothy Martindale Parker, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Boardman Martindale of 100 West Fifty-seventh Street, and August C. Scharman, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Scharman of 150 West Fifty-eighth Street, which took place on Monday in the Church of the Heavenly Rest.

The bride's father, the late J. B. Martindale, was President of the Chemical National Bank of this city and a member of the Hamilton and other clubs.

Mr. Scharman, who is a graduate of Yale, class of '12, and of the Columbia Law School, class of '14, is a member of the law firm of Washburn, Carruth & Scharman.

Pollak—Kuba.

The marriage has just been announced of Miss Rae D. Kuba, daughter of Louis Kuba of 255 West Ninety-seventh Street, to Joseph F. Pollak, son of Moses C. Pollak of Jacksonville, Fla., which took place on New Year's Day at the residence of the Rev. Dr. Seldman, who performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Pollak are sepnding their honeymoon on a motoring trip, and will be at home in Jacksonville after Feb. 15. The bride was well known as a business woman in the real estate field in this city.

George—Jones.

Miss Marjorie Denison Jones, daughter of Mrs. Henry Eugene Jones of Riverside, Conn., was married to Philip Edward George of this city at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Riverside yesterday afternoon, the Rev. H. Baxter Liebler, rector of the church, officiating. A small reception followed at the home of the bride.

Miss Mildred Worth of Brooklyn attended the bride as maid of honor, and George H. Baldwin of Bridgeport acted as best man.

Mrs. George is a graduate of the Rye Seminary of Rye, N. Y., class of '16, and during the war she was a member of the Red Cross Motor Corps of Greenwich. Mr. George was with the United States Marine Corps overseas and was wounded in action.

LETTER TOO STRONG FOR WOMEN ON JURY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—For the first time in an English divorce court six women shared the jury box today with six men. Sir E. Marshall Hall, of counsel engaged in the first case, was uncomfortable in the presence of these jurywomen and twice he suggested they should not be obliged to hear it.

"This is a most unfortunate case to be the first heard before a mixed jury," he said, but Justice Horridge replied that cases must be taken as they come.

Later, when correspondence in the case was being read, there was one document which the Judge agreed was not a pleasant thing for women to see.

"Some of them may not be married, and it is a terrible thing for them," said the lawyer.

The Judge replied that it was the law and he couldn't help it, but they need not see the document if counsel agreed they needn't. Some of the jurywomen were unmarried, and it was decided it would be sufficient if the male jurors saw it.

One of the married jurywomen afterward was emphatic in expressing the opinion that no young women should be empaneled.

ART NOTES.

Porcelains on View at the Museum of French Art.

The fourth official loan exhibition at the Museum of French Art consists of porcelains of the eighteenth century. The discreet and quiet aspect of the room is due to the high aristocracy of the beautiful wares, as innocent of display or boisterous gayety as a maiden of the ancient régime.

Here is a rare piece of Rouen faience, a vegetable dish with a cover, lent by Walter E. Maynard. It has the strong color and general vigor of aspect of the early work. Small ewers and basins used for rose water range from a soft paste example of 1767, with a ground of "Bleu de Roi," to a hard paste "porcelain d'Angoulême" with an apple-green ground, lent by Mrs. George T. Bliss. Mrs. Bliss also lends a remarkable little clock—did any other century so love to mark the passage of time—with the figure of a Poussah at the base in enameled Chantilly ware, with mountings of gilt bronze. A pair of horses, very rare examples, in Moustiers faience, are lent by Mr. Myanard. Other figure pieces are a statuette of a boy, lent by Miss Margaret B. Gould; a group of boy and girl with bagpipes and book seated on a rock, lent by E. F. Bonaventure; a group, "Les Mangeurs de Raisins," lent by Henry Symons & Co., and "La Bergère Assise," lent by Miss Gould, all, whatever the date and whatever the ware, bearing the eighteenth century stamp of incredibly combined childishness and sophistication in the characterization.

Several factories of countries other than France are drawn upon, and the ringing black of Wedgwood basalt makes a striking contrast with the vivacity of the French wares. A historic note is struck by a Staffordshire mug with handles, decorated with emblems commemorative of the peace of Europe, signed at Paris, 1814.

Among those who have lent objects of importance to the exhibition, besides those already mentioned, are Mrs. McDougall Hawkes, Mrs. George J. Whelan, the Rev. Alfred Duane Pell, French & Co., Arthur S. Vernay, Mrs. Henry G. Bartol, Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, Mrs. Leo Kessel and Miss Diane del Monte.

Empress Carolina Sinking.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The condition of Princess Charlotte of Belgium [usually known as the Empress Carlotta, widow of the late Maximilian of Mexico], who is seriously ill with grip, is causing the gravest anxiety, says a Central News dispatch from Brussels today. King Albert and Queen Elizabeth are at her bedside, the dispatch adds.

Mrs. Reginald Ronalds Entertains.

Mrs. Reginald Ronalds entertained eighty friends at a dinner dance in the Marble Ballroom of the St. Regis last evening. There were three tables which were decorated with pink roses, and the ballroom was festooned with Southern smilax and Spring plants. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Oliver C. Harriman, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Craig Biddle, Reginald C. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, Mrs. James B. Haggin, Harry Black, Mr. and Mrs. James Lowell Putnam, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Pell, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Brown, Mr. and Mrs. James Deering, Mr. and Mrs. Charles DeL. Oelrichs and Mr. and Mrs. Rawson Lyman Wood.

Edmund Johnson Spitta.

HOVE, England, Jan. 25.—The death is announced of Edmund Johnson Spitta. He was a licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians, London.

Edmund J. Spitta was born in Clapham in 1853 and was a Past Vice President of the Royal Astronomical Society and of the Royal Microscopical Society. Among his publications was an article on the kidney in "Gray's Anatomy," 1874. He received a silver medal for contributions to photomicrography at the Paris Exhibition in 1900 and a gold medal at the St. Louis Exposition in 1903.

William Kenefick.

William Kenefick of Kansas City, Mo., President of the Missouri, Oklahoma & Gulf Railway, died yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Arthur Day, in Garden City. Mr. Kenefick was 63 years old. He constructed many of the trunk lines of the West. He did construction work on the Wabash Road tunnel running into Pittsburgh and he built roads in Jamaica and Costa Rica. He also built the Missouri, Oklahoma & Gulf Railway, of which he was President. Mr. Kenefick carried out several irrigation projects and also founded a million dollar zinc corporation in Missouri.

INSTRUCTION

The Uncrowded Profession
Accountancy is an uncrowded profession—a profession that is in actual need of genuinely qualified and properly trained men. The rewards which the successful practice of this profession offer in compensation and in responsible business positions are well worth the effort required in securing the requisite training.
The Walton School offers you this necessary training, and Walton results of the past are your guarantee.
Day as well as evening classes for the new term are now being formed
Cost Accounting — General Accounting — Auditing
Business Law — Economics
A new course in cost accounting, theoretical and practical, will be offered to qualified applicants.

NEW YORK BOXERS THRASH CANADIANS

MILTON WEISS IS BEATEN

Amateur Champion Welterweight of State Is Knocked Out by Harry Henning of Toronto.

Father Knickerbocker's sturdy amateur boxers repulsed the invasion of Canada's best ringmen to the complete satisfaction of about 3,000 followers of the amateur sport last night in the international tournament held at Madison Square Garden. In a series of eight contests, ranging in weight from the flyweight to the heavyweight divisions, the local lads vanquished the amateurs from the Dominion in seven contests. Five of the metropolitan successes were scored by knockouts, clean or technical, and in two other bouts the Gotham boxers carried off decisions.

The one shocking exception to the night's rule came in the 147-pound class when Milton Weiss of the Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A., State and district welterweight champion, bowed in defeat before the withering fire of Harry Henning, a Toronto youngster, in two rounds. A crashing right to the jaw after an excited exchange of blows sent Weiss down and out 1 minute and 45 seconds after the start of the second session.

Tries Vainly to Stand Erect.

The local champion gamely tried to gain his feet, and succeeded after a manner at the count of nine, but he crumpled backward again before becoming erect without being struck, and almost fell through the ropes out of the ring. The referee then stopped the bout.

The result came as a complete surprise. Through the first round Weiss outpointed his rival by a wide margin. Henning was wild and ineffective against the clever fast stepping, shifty local champion. A right on the jaw soon after the second round started floored Weiss for a short count. Arising Weiss was groggy and dazed, and with a right to the jaw Henning finished the New Yorker.

Bill Spengler, policeman boxer, supplied the seventh victory for New York in the closing bout of the night. Spengler engaged Harry Ellis, Toronto, at 175 pounds, and forced the Canadian to quit in the second round. Ellis was completely outclassed while the bout lasted. A right to the jaw toppled Ellis in the first round and only the bell saved him. In the second round Ellis decided he had taken enough and quit.

James J. Fanning of the Hudson Guild, New York State champion, started the evening auspiciously for the local boxers in the first of the international bouts. The little west sider engaged Willie Gabbre, Toronto, in the first bout, a clash at 112 pounds. The contest ended abruptly after 1 minute 49 seconds of boxing in the first round, with Fanning the victor by a knockout. The local lad twice sent Gabbre to the canvas with crushing rights to the jaw. The second tumble convinced Referee Tom Smith that the Canadian was outclassed and Gabbre was sent to his corner. The Canadian claimed an injury to his ankle after the bout had been stopped.

The second international clash at 118 pounds furnished one of the best bouts of the evening. The principals were Willie Singer, metropolitan bantamweight champion, and William Wagman of Toronto. Singer received the decision of Referee Smith, when the judges disagreed at the end of the three sizzling rounds. The verdict was disapproved by some of the spectators.

Victor Has His Hands Full.

Wagman gave Singer a decidedly interesting session, and landed frequently with damaging right and left swings. The local champion was sent down in the second round, and on two other occasions when partly off balance Singer slipped down under Wagman's assault. The local lad, however, forced the fighting steadily and kept up an uninterrupted attack throughout the bout.

Jack Stark, Bronxdale A. C., added another victory for New York, when he stopped Cliff Graham, Toronto, in the second round of their bout at 126 pounds. The end came 2 minutes and 5 seconds after the start of the second round, when Stark sent his rival down with a right to the jaw. Stark floored Graham in the first round for a short count with a snappy left hook.

Archie Walker, the local lightweight champion, outboxed Walter Newton, Toronto, in their bout at 135 pounds. The contest was fast and full of action. Walker received the judges' decision.

Mortimer Seligman, Pastime A. C., added the fifth New York triumph in a spectacular bout with Pete Murray, Toronto, at 160 pounds. Seligman forced his rival to quit in the third round, after 1 minute 49 seconds of fighting.

A right to the jaw floored Murray for a count of four soon after the third round began. When the Canadian regained his feet Seligman plied him with buffeting rights and lefts until Murray staggered helpless into his own corner, motioning that he had had enough.

In the previous rounds Murray, a free-swinging type, rocked Seligman several times with rights and lefts, but the local boxer recovered and turned defeat into victory.

The results:

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 25.—A bill designed to give municipalities the right to decide whether football games can be played on Sundays after 2 o'clock was introduced in the Legislature today by Assemblyman M. G. Di Pirro, Republican, of New York.

Phillies Trade Tragresser.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—The Philadelphia National League Club today announced it had traded Walter Tragresser, catcher, who has been with the club several years, for Frank Bruggy, catcher, of the Buffalo International League team.

Oregon Offers Dobie $8,500 To Coach Football Eleven

EUGENE, Ore., Jan. 25.—Gilmour Dobie, football coach at Cornell, has been offered $8,500 to coach football at the University of Oregon, according to announcement here today.

Gilmour Dobie won his first fame as a football coach in the West. For nine consecutive seasons he coached the University of Washington and did not suffer defeat in that time. On Thanksgiving Day of 1916 he resigned and came East to handle the reins of the Naval Academy. Last season he secured his release from a contract and coached the 1920 Cornell team. He is still under contract with Cornell, although his name has been frequently mentioned in connection with posts at other colleges.

RICKARD TO CONFER WITH MONTREAL MEN

Arranges Meeting Tomorrow Regarding Transfer of Dempsey-Carpentier Bout.

Promoter Tex Rickard, who is prepared to conduct the Dempsey-Carpentier bout independently, yesterday received a telegram from C. F. Graham and F. O. Goodspeed of the Eastern Canada Securities, Ltd., expressing regret because of delay in starting the trip and seeking an appointment with the Garden promoter tomorrow. The telegram read:

"Regret delay. Leaving for New York tonight. Wire me immediately if convenient to meet Thursday; any time and place; re staging Carpentier-Dempsey fight in Montreal."

Promoter Rickard replied advising the Canadians that they could consult with him on the removal of the match to Canada tomorrow afternoon between 11:30 and 1 o'clock. In the absence of any positive information on the proposition which the Canadians are reported ready to submit, Promoter Rickard refused to discuss the situation. He declared, however, that the Canadian offer might hold some interest for him, adding that he was prepared to consider the proposition for holding the bout in the Dominion.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 25.—Rival would-be promoters of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight in Montreal will probably combine forces.

It has been known for some time that Tom Duggan, prominent fight promoter of this city and Managing Director of the Mount Royal race track as well as the Mount Royal Arena, has been interested in bringing the world's heavyweight championship bout to Montreal. Yesterday it was announced that C. F. Graham and F. O. Goodspeed of the Eastern Canada Securities, Ltd., were also after the fight and that they had their representative in New York, who would interview Rickard. Now there comes the news that these two interests are negotiating to work together.

This morning Jimmie McKimmie, well-known matchmaker, made arrangements with Mr. Graham for a meeting between the latter, Mr. Goodspeed and Mr. Duggan. Mr. Duggan will offer his track as a place to hold the title bout and will offer aid in financing the fight.

As regards his representative in New York, Mr. Graham said that when that man does meet Rickard it will be through the medium of one of the most prominent lawyers in the American metropolis, and not satisfied with that alone, Mr. Graham will leave for New York in person tonight. So intent is he upon staging the bout here that he feels that if "a thing is to be well done, do it yourself," and therefore has decided to see Tex Rickard in person.

It is expected that an amicable agreement can be arrived at between the two factions. They believe, that in the interests of this city the fight ought to be brought on here, and therefore instead of opposing each other it would be much better to work together.

The Mount Royal race track would make an ideal place for such a big event, and Tom Duggan is anxious that this be the spot where preparations should be started.

"If no man has interviewed Rickard on our behalf yet," said Mr. Graham, "it is not because he does not want to, but because Rickard has not had the time or opportunity. To make sure of things, however, I have decided to go to New York tonight, and I have an appointment with Rickard in person for tomorrow."

LAY PLANS FOR BIG BOUT.

Dempsey-Willard Match May Be Arranged Next Tuesday.

Details of the proposed return bout between Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, and Jess Willard, the giant Kansan who relinquished the title to the present possessor of the crown, will not be definitely closed until Feb. 1, it was announced yesterday by Promoter Tex Rickard, who plans to conduct the match over the fifteen-round route at Madison Square Garden March 17. Rickard and Willard were in conference yesterday discussing tentative plans for the out, but the Garden promoter announced that he would await the return here of Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, before actually closing arrangements for the match.

In the course of his conference with Rickard yesterday Willard agreed to the bout without imposing any exorbitant financial conditions. The former champion is eager for another chance at the title which once was his, and to gain this opportunity Willard says he will agree to anything within reason. Jess said after his conference with Promoter Rickard that he had agreed to box on a percentage basis and was prepared to begin training for the match just as soon as it is positively closed.

Part of the day Willard spent in discussing preliminary arrangements for the training course he contemplates undergoing in order to fit himself for the prospective return match against Dempsey. With his business manager, Ray Archer, the former champion discussed with friends and admirers plans for a training site and a number of sturdy camp assistants who will be capable of extending the Pottawatomie giant in his preparatory work. It is planned to select a quiet, isolated camp, possibly in the Adirondacks or the mountains of New Jersey, where Willard can settle down to a strict, rigorous training siege of perhaps two months. The former champion plans to secure a number of fast, sturdy and hard-hitting boxers to assist him as sparring partners. Possibly four or five partners will be engaged for the task of assimilating Willard's punches and retaliating. A special trainer will also be selected, according to present plans, to superintend Willard's training. It is possible also that a physician will be engaged to examine Willard as he progresses in his training.

3 SKATERS IN DEAD HEAT.

Jewtraw, Leitch and Moore Finish Even in One-Mile Struggle.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Jan. 25.—A dead heat between three ice skaters in a one-mile race resulted here today between Charles Jewtraw, Al Leitch and Joe Moore, all of Lake Placid. Jewtraw and Moore recently tied for the national championship at Newburg.

Jewtraw, who was making his first appearance on the ice since he was slightly injured in a fall ten days ago, won the quarter and half mile events. Moore took second place in each race. Leitch was third in the quarter, and Leslie Boyd of New York third in the half.

CANOE BROOK GETS JERSEY GOLF PLUM

Summit Links Chosen by State Association for Amateur Championship Tourney.

The Canoe Brook Country Club will be the scene of the next New Jersey State amateur golf championship tournament. The Summit course was chosen at the annual meeting of the New Jersey State Golf Association yesterday, being favored over the Knickerbocker Club of Tenafly by a margin of six votes to five. The Shackamaxon course at Westfield polled two votes.

Although no course was chosen for the junior championship which was inaugurated two years ago, this tournament came in for considerable discussion. While the two championships held thus far have been successful events, it was the consensus of opinion of the meeting that it can be made an even more pretentious affair. Whereas the past two events drew some twenty odd entrants, it is felt that at least twice that many and probably more should turn out. By way of stimulating interest in the event delegates were urged to exercise as much influence as possible toward having their clubs encourage the youngsters to enter.

Three clubs submitted invitations to the association to hold the junior meeting over their courses. They were Upper Montclair Country Club, Glen Ridge Country Club and the Hackensack Golf Club. The matter of making a selection from this trio or others that may desire to stage the tournament was left to the Executive Committee as was the matter of dates for the tournament.

It is quite probable that another annual open event will materialize this year as the result of yesterday's meeting. The association took up the matter of staging an annual State open championship, and only one consideration now stands in the way of such an event. The association is short on funds owing to the increased cost of practically everything having to do with golf. The treasurer's report showed that a balance of less than $50 remains in the treasury. This state of affairs led to a proposal to increase annual membership dues, which at present are only $10.

According to the report of the Treasurer, expenses of last year's amateur championship exceeded the receipts of the asociation from annual dues by 50 per cent. With its membership of some fifty clubs, the receipts were around $500, while expenses at Arcola last year ran to $750. Some increase is necessary to meet this state of affairs, and it is proposed to make the additional amount sufficient to defray the expense, including prize moneys, for an open championship.

Two new clubs were admitted to membership during the last year. They are the Pine Valley Golf Club of Sumner and Weequahic Golf Club of Newark. These bring the membership of the association up to fifty members.

The death at his home at Prestwick, Scotland, Monday night, of Charles Hunter, removes one of the very few old pillars of the game of golf in the land which is conceded to have originated the game as it is now played. The veteran professional was 84 years of age, and his activities on the links date well back to the time of Old Tom Morris, the most notable figure in the early days of the game.

Hunter played in the British open championship as far back as 1865, while Old Tom won his last championship in 1867. Though Hunter never won the title, he was a prominent figure in the annual tournaments for years. Some years ago he celebrated his fiftieth anniversary as the professional at Prestwick St. Nicholas, and many years ago was made a life member of the club. David Hunter, professional at the Essex Country Club at Orange, N. J., is a son of the Prestwick veteran, and he has two brothers engaged in professional golf on the other side.

At a recent meeting of the organizers of the Grassy Sprain Golf Club of Bronxville the personnel of three committees to carry on work that remains to be done on the proposition was announced. George de Kay Gilder, Alfred O. Hoyt, Harold Fowler, A. J. McAllister and W. H. Crandall were named for the Committee on Membership. S. A. Scribner, Edward Meinel, Michael Wilson, John G. Anderson, John M. Haffen and B. E. Smythe were designated as the Committee on Course and Clubhouse. James H. McIntosh, L. D. Garrett, P. E. Bisland, Charles H. Neely and William G. Hamilton were selected as the Committee on Final Organization.

The club proposes to adhere strictly to a membership limit of 250. A subscription fee of $2,000 will be levied on all members, payable $1,000 on call of the Organization Committee and the remainder in instalments of $250 each at intervals of not less than three months. The course was reported as progressing nicely, and will be open for play by May 1 of this year.

Following the precedent of the last few years, the leading women golfers have decided on the first week in October for the women's national championship tournament. The actual dates this year will be Oct. 3-8. As previously announced, the tournament will be played at the Hollywood Golf Club, at Deal. N. J. Thus far these dates have not been officially announced by the United States Golf Association, but as long as the players themselves have selected these dates, they will undoubtedly be accepted.

MEDAL TAKEN BY PERKINS.

Special to The New York Times.

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Jan. 25.—N. B. Perkins, a sturdy golfer from Kentucky, made low score today in the qualifying round of the Tomoka Sweepstakes here. Making the best score here is more or less a habit of his, for this is the third time he has performed the feat. His card was 81 and one of the strokes was an incurred penalty for striking another player's ball on a green.

There were only two others below 90. E. W. Van Houten of Arcola, with an 85, was one of them and another metropolitan golfer, Charles Longnecker of the Engineers, was the other with an 86.

Among the cards were the following: N. B. Perkins, Williamsburg, Ky., 42, 39—81; E. W. Van Houten, Arcola, 45, 40—85; Charles Longnecker, Engineers, Roslyn, L. I., 45, 43—88; B. S. Colburn, Asheville, 44, 46—90; George Potts, Flatrock, Willsboro, N. Y., 46, 45—91; J. J. Gray, Nashville, 46, 45—91; F. L. Brown, Columbus, 49, 44—93; Paul McKell, Morgantown, 48, 46—94; Wells Bassett, Exmoor, 46, 49—95; W. J. Nichols, Bridgeport, 50, 46—96; Ashton Harvey, Point Judith, 51, 45—96; W. F. Hite, Huntington, W. Va., 51, 46—97; Calhoun Latham, Bridgeport, 51, 47—98; Dram Scott, Evansville, 52, 48—100; J. B. Knox, Anniston, Ala., 51, 49—100; A. Deronde, Knickerbocker, 53, 48—101.

WILLOUGHBY GOLF WINNER.

Defeats Wetzel, 6 and 4, in Tourney on Lake Worth Links.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 25.—Hugh L. Willoughby Jr. of the Merion Cricket Club, medalist in the annual Lake Worth golf tournament, won his match today, putting out F. J. Wetzel of Trenton by 6 and 4.

Darwin P. Kingsley of Garden City, President of the New York Life Insurance Company, again played the same steady game that won him a position in the first flight in the qualifying round, and put out M. A. Carroll of Oshkosh, who was the winner of the medal round last year. The score was 3 and 1.

The summary of the first sixteen:

Hugh L. Willoughby Jr. beat F. J. Wetzel, 6 and 4; W. L. Kingsley, Rome, N. Y., beat George A. Easton, Engineers Golf Club, 4 and 3; George C. Heintzman, Hamilton Country Club, Canada, beat Colonel Ernest Smith, Wilmington, 7 and 6; Darwin P. Kingsley, Garden City, beat M. A. Carroll, Oshkosh, 3 and 1; James R. Hyde, South Shore, beat J. S. MacNichol, Oshkosh, 4 and 2; Harry C. Clarke, Myopia Hunt Club, beat George Kingsland, Lenox, 4 and 2; George Altmeyer, Woughheoghen, beat C. F. Bacon, Braeburn, 2 up; W. B. Langford, Chicago, beat O. F. Woodward, New York, 2 and 1.

Urban, Three-Letter Athlete, Now Member of Hockey Team

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—Luke Urban, a crack catcher in baseball, a sure shot in basketball, a second all-American choice as a football end and a former captain or captain-elect in each of these sports at Boston College, has turned to hockey for further honors. He has won selection as a goal of the varsity team, notwithstanding that until two weeks ago he had not played the game and could not skate. This fact has recalled to those familiar with his advent at the college that Urban had never played football until he was taken in hand by Coach Charley Brickley.

HARVARD CLUB IS VICTOR AT SQUASH

METROPOLITAN LEAGUE SQUASH TENNIS STANDING, CLASS B.

| Club. | Won. | Lost. | P.C. |
| Yale | 8 | 0 | 1000 |
| Columbia | 6 | 2 | .750 |
| Crescent A. C. | 5 | 3 | .625 |
| Harvard | 5 | 5 | .500 |
| Princeton | 3 | 7 | .300 |
| D. K. E. | 2 | 6 | .250 |
| Army and Navy | 1 | 7 | .125 |

Class B squash tennis players had a banner day of it yesterday with the class individual championship being continued at the Squash Club and team matches in progress at the Columbia, Harvard and Yale clubs. The individual tournament at the Squash Club suffered as a result of the team matches for only one match was played. It was between F. A. Seller of the Montclair Athletic Club and Alfred Moses of the Columbia Club and the former had very little difficulty in winning in two straight, 15—10 and 15—6.

The Princeton Club seven took seven straight matches from the D. K. E. team on the Yale Club courts while the Harvard Club team defeated the Crescent Athletic Club seven by a single match, the score being four to three, and that deciding match was not won till the third game. It was between E. H. Heminway of the Harvard Club and N. F. Torrance of the Crescent Athletic Club.

The other team match of the day was between the Yale Club and the Columbia Club. The result will not be known until Thursday for, at the conclusion of the play yesterday, each team had three matches to its credit. The seventh match was to have been between J. A. Victor of the Yale Club and F. M. Simonds Jr. of the Columbia Club, but, by mutual agreement it was postponed until Thursday and now the coaches of both clubs will have their hands full preparing these two class B players for their coming tussle on which so much depends.

The feature of the Princeton-D. K. E. team match was the match between Robert Monks of the Princeton aggregation and F. Jenkins, who a couple of years ago was runner up to the Class B. champion. Monks put up a very good game and took the first by the score of 15—4, whereupon Jenkins came back and just reversed the score. Monks proved the stronger in the third game and won by the score of 15—6.

The only close match in the Columbia-Yale contest was that between W. A. Kimbel of the Columbia Club and J. F. Tronstine of the Yale Club, which the former won by the score of 17—18, 15—11, 15—10. J. Walker 3d of the Eli seven was the first victor for his team. He defeated Willis Putnam, 15—5, 17—14 in a match that had numerous streaks of brilliancy. In the next match between R. V. Mahan of Columbia and Reginald Roome of Yale, the latter seemed to be the favorite and the first game, which went to 17—14 in favor of Mahan, was hard enough fought out to cause the observers to believe that Roome might come back in the next, but he did not, as the score was 15 love.

Four of the seven matches between the Harvard Club and the Crescent Athletic Club went to three games, the first being that between F. S. Whitlock of Harvard and A. Baxter Jr., which Whitlock won, 15—10, 8—15 and 15—9. Then James Doig of the Half-mooners returned the compliment by defeating Murray Taylor, 15—10, 6—15, 15—10 and the Crescent seven took the lead when K. F. MacVaugh won from W. M. Carson in a two-game match, 15—8, 17—14. C. W. Dingee of the Crescent seven then added another to his team tally by defeating C. J. Coulter 16—18, 18—16, 15—7, and it was a most interesting match.

The summaries:

Princeton Club, 7; D. K. E., Club, 0.

R. H. Monks, Princeton, defeated F. Jenkins, D. K. E., 15—4, 15—9, 4—15, 15—9; H. Rowe, Princeton, defeated W. W. Taylor, D. K. E., 11—15, 15—4, 15—6; J. Cromwell, Princeton, defeated G. G. Davidson, D. K. E., 6—15, 15—12, 15—11; L. Beekman, Princeton, defeated E. L. Ward, D. K. E., 3—15, 15—11, 15—1; G. A. Walker Jr., Princeton, defeated H. E. Thorne, D. K. E., 15—4, 15—4; J. T. Dennison, Princeton, defeated P. M. Whelan, D. K. E., 15—10, 15—1; R. L. Farrelly, Princeton, defeated J. O. Brotherhood, D. K. E., 15—6, 18—17.

Yale Club, 3; Columbia Club, 3.

J. Walker 3d, Yale, defeated Willis Putnam, Columbia, 15—5, 17—14; R. V. Mahan, Columbia, defeated Reginald Roome, Yale, 17—14, 15—0; Lindsay Bradford, Yale, defeated F. W. Chambers, Columbia, 15—9, 15—8; J. A. Kimbel, Columbia, defeated J. F. Tronstine, Yale, 17—18, 15—11, 15—10; C. Schermerhorn, Yale, defeated Donald McClave, Columbia, 15—12, 15—9; Harold Kellock, Columbia, defeated H. C. Holt, Yale, 15—5, 15—4; J. A. Vietor, Yale, meets F. M. Simonds Jr., Columbia, in deciding match on Thursday.

Third Round Class B. at Squash Club.

F. A. Seller, Montclair Athletic Club, defeated Alfred S. Moses, Columbia Club, 15—10, 15—6.

19 FOR CRESCENT FIVE.

Half-Mooners Win Another at Basketball, Downing Y. M. C. A. Team.

Another team succumbed to the prowess of the Crescent Athletic Club's basketball team last night, making nineteen consecutive victories for the half-mooners from Brooklyn. The latest addition to the list of vanquished is the Washington Heights Y. M. C. A., and the score was 34 to 20 in favor of the Crescents.

The Brooklynites took no chances, but started off with a dash, and at half time had rolled up a score of 18, while their adversaries had managed to score 11. Parmele was the star of the winning team, although Stewart also added materially to the score.

The line-up:

| CRESCENT A. C. (34). | | WASHINGTON H'TS Y. M. C. A. (20). |
|---|---|---|
| Parmele | R. F. | Drew |
| A. Stewart | L. F. | Harrison |
| McTigue | C. | Schilling |
| Griffin | R. G. | Yorke |
| Simms | L. G. | Pinckney |

Field goals—Stewart (4), Parmele (2), Griffin (2), Simms (2), Drew (2), Harrison (2), Schilling (2), McTigue, Pinckney. Goals from foul—Parmele (8), Pinckney (2), W. Stewart (2), Broman (2), Drew, Harrison. Substitutions—Crescent: W. Stewart for Griffin, Butler for Simms, Heath for A. Stewart. Y. M. C. A.: Broman for Harrison, Elliott for Broman, Meskrop for Yorke. Referee—Ed Thorp, De La Salle. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

SALLEE PUTS NAME TO GIANT CONTRACT

Walker, Recruit Outfielder, Also Signs — Another Football Game for Polo Grounds.

Secretary Joseph D. O'Brien reported yesterday the receipt at the Giants' offices of the signed contract of Harry F. Sallee, the lofty twirler, who, although 6 feet 3 inches from the ground upward, barely casts a shadow, and is familiarly known as Slim. Sallee paraded at the Polo Grounds as a member of McGraw's forces during part of the 1916 season and throughout the two following campaigns. In 1919 he went to the Reds, and was secured from Moran late last season to help the Giants in their belated rush for the pennant—the rush that fell short. The Higginsport Sheriff didn't set anything on fire in those nerve-racking weeks of Autumn, his chief duty appearing to be finishing games that other parties had started disastrously. Still, McGraw regards him as a valuable man to have around, or, perhaps, to send away in the course of a trade.

Curtis Walker, an outfielder, purchased last Fall from the Augusta Club of the Southern Association, also sent in his signed contract for 1921 to the Giants' headquarters yesterday. Walker reported only a fortnight before the season of 1920 closed and got no try-out hereabouts, but Arthur Devlin, the scout, who recommended him to McGraw, is highly impressed with his ability in the outer garden.

The far-sighted gentlemen in the Giants' offices are already looking far beyond the close of the coming pennant fight, and have begun work on the football schedule for the Polo Grounds in the coming Autumn. Yesterday they closed with the management of the Fordham and Lafayette elevens for a game to be played in the Brush stadium on Oct. 22.

BUCK HERZOG IS RELEASED.

Veteran Infielder Turned Loose by the Cubs.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Charles "Buck" Herzog, the veteran National League infielder, who has been with the Chicago Cubs for the last two seasons received his unconditional realease today. Herzog's name was mentioned several times in connection with the investigation of dishonest ball playing, but President Heydler of the National League, after making an investigation, declared there was nothing in the player's conduct which implicated him in any wrongdoing.

In a letter sent to the player today President William Veeck of the Chicago club said the release was not "the result of any known conduct on your part that reflects in any manner upon your honor and integrity." The action was said to be in conformity with the policy of Manager John Evers to reconstruct the club with young men.

MAY PUT TEAM IN CHICAGO.

Continental League Asks Colored Aggregation to Join Circuit.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—The new Continental Baseball League contemplates invading Chicago, it was learned today, when a letter was received from Secretary George M. Riley, inviting the American Giants, a colored professional team, to join the new circuit. The letter stated that two strong colored teams had joined, the Boston Tigers and the Knoxville Giants, and two more colored teams were sought by the organization. The Giants are owned by George Schorling and own the grounds at Thirty-ninth Street, which was the old home of the White Sox.

CLARK WINS GOLF MEDAL.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 25.—Donald Clark of Huntington, W. Va., won the qualifying medal in the first tournament of the season here today, with a score of 39, 48—87.

Clark played beautiful golf going out, finishing in only three strokes over par. On the ninth hole he ran down a long putt for a birdie two. Coming back, the West Virginian was off color in his iron play and thus ruined his chances for a fine score. Of the half dozen New York players who competed, only one qualified in the first sixteen. He was Dr. D. L. Culver, former trap-shooting champion. The doctor managed just to nose in.

The summary:

Donald Clark, Huntington, W. Va., 39, 48—87; W. A. Knight, St. Augustine, 42, 46—88; Hugh MacKenzie, Washington, 48, 43—91; O. P. Goode, St. Augustine, 44, 47—91; F. W. Nix, New York, 45, 50—95; O. C. Fuller, Milwaukee, 45, 51—96; C. A. Usina, St. Augustine, 47, 50—97; A. M. Taylor, St. Augustine, 51, 46—97; R. P. Barnard, Washington, 48, 51—99; O. J. Demoll, Washington, W. S. Lawson, York Beach, Me., 47, 52—99; C. C. Spades, Chicago, 48, 53—101; W. K. Stevenson, Ireland, 55, 47—102; A. F. Wolf, Wilkes-Barre, 49, 53—102; A. Lehman, Peoria, Ill., 56, 47—103; Dr. D. L. Culver, New York, 51, 54—105; T. W. McGregor, Detroit, 55, 51—106; F. V. Culver, New York, 52, 55—107; George Dantzler, St. Augustine, 55, 52—107; George Worthington, Bennington, Vt., 53, 55—108; M. D. Connor, Philadelphia, 56, 60—116; H. T. Williamson, New York, 62, 54—116; J. L. Weaver, Washington, 57, 62—119; Harry Prentiss, Arcola, 59, 63—122; D. S. Cilver Jr., New York, 61, 63—124; R. A. Wilson, Washington, 58, 72—130; H. A. Fish, Toronto, 68, 66—134.

PROMISING BOUTS TONIGHT.

Pal Moore to Meet Young Montreal in Ring at Garden.

A card of forty-six rounds of boxing is scheduled for this evening at Madison Square Garden. Two fifteen-round bouts feature the bill. In one of the limit contests Pal Moore, Memphis bantamweight, will make his first appearance here against Young Montreal, rugged young Providence ring midget, who is clamoring for a championship match. Boy McCormick, Irish light-heavyweight, will make his metropolitan début in the other fifteen-round match against Johnny Howard, veteran Bayonne (N. J.) boxer.

Paul Doyle of the east side and Barney Adair, Harlem welterweight, will be the principals in a ten-round contest. A six-round encounter, which will open the show, will bring together Sam Mosberg, former international amateur champion, and Frankie Conifrey, veteran Harlem lightweight.

SELLERS CAPTURES 880-YARD LAURELS

He Defeats Good Field in Championship Struggle—Emes Takes Standing High Jump.

In a finish that was entirely too close street leel. The aerage temperature yester for his own comfort, Jack Sellers of the New York A. C. and former holder of the national 600-yard title, won the 880-yard metropolitan senior indoor championship, which was the chief event of the annual games of the Bankers' Athletic League at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory last night. When Sellers shot over the line he was but a few inches in front of Sydney Leslie, who ran unattached and who forced the New York A. C. runner to extend himself to the limit for the entire last lap of the journey. O. Higgins of the New York A. C. was third, less than a yard from the leaders, and he also had a chance to win to within a few yards of the finish.

This event brought out some of the best athletes who took part in the games, and was a good contest from the time the pistol was fired. Clarence Sherman of the St. Christopher Club took the lead for the first lap, but Sellers was never far away from him, and in the last lap the Mercury Foot runner fought his way to the front and held it to the end. Leslie, however, appeared to have him beaten as they turned the half way mark on the last lap, but just when his chances seemed brightest he ran against the rail and was partly thrown off his stride. This accident may have cost him the victory. He made up for it quickly, and once more pressed close to Sellers, but could not overtake him.

Wefers Scores in 220.

Bernie Wefers of the New York A. C. never left much doubt about the 220-yard metropolitan senior championship. Not but what he had strong contention, but he also had all the speed for the race. Jumping to the front at the very start, he led the procession all the way, and had a comfortable margin in his favor at the end. Second to him was Ed Farrell, running unattached, and third was R. W. Georgi of the New York A. C. Farrell made a desperate effort, but Wefers was never threatened by his rival.

Edward L. Emes, who formerly represented the Bronx Church House, staged a successful comeback after a long absence from athletics when he captured the standing high jump. Emes appeared in the colors of the New York A. C. There was considerable interest attached to his appearance, as it was a question if he could come back to his old-time form. Whether he is as good as ever was not determined, but he was good enough to take the event he was entered for. He registered 4 feet 10 inches, and that gave him the event, with two inches to spare. E. Berguist of the Mohawk A. C. and J. Erbel of the same organization tied for second place with 4 feet 8 inches, and Berguist was awarded second on the draw for the position.

Mile Handicap to Williams.

The one-mile handicap, closed to members of the Bankers' Athletic League, was won by George Williams of the Central Trust Company, who started from scratch. Though he had to concede some large handicaps to some of his rivals, he ran a strong race, gradually wore down the erstwhile leaders and finished with a good margin to his credit. V. F. Miller of the Manufacturers' Trust Company, with a handicap of 85 yards, ran a bang up race, and was second, with A. Stone of the Guaranty Trust Company, handicapped at 15 yards, third. Stone was never able to catch Miller, though he disposed of a number of men who had started ahead of him.

The running high jump, an event closed to the B. A. L., was won by R. Dally, Liberty National Bank, who made a mark of 5 feet 10 inches and easily disposed of his nearest rival, L. Burk, of the City Bank Club. The latter had 5 feet 4 inches to his credit, and third went to Howard Hevern with 5 feet 1 inch.

The team of the St. Anselm's A. C. captured the medley relay A. A. U. handicap, W. Hannon, V. Tally and the Bennett brothers being the winning runners. The Brooklyn A. C. took second and the West Side Y. M. C. A. was third.

Man o' War Leaves in Special Car for Kentucky Stud Farm

BERLIN, Md., Jan. 25.—Man o' War, Samuel D. Riddle's famous three-year-old racing champion, left here this afternoon for his future home in the Blue Grass country of Kentucky, where he will enter a stud. He was accompanied by two other horses as companions. Only about twenty-five persons saw the departure.

The great racer left the Riddle Farm, five miles from here, shortly after noon accompanied by the other two horses, Trainer Feustal and three attendants. Man o' War was well blanketed for the trip to the railroad, being led all the way. The weather was cold and blustery.

The attendants experienced no trouble in getting the three horses in the specially prepared car for the trip. The car will be switched to a Western express at Philadelphia tonight.

HORSE SHOW BODY ELECTS VANDERBILT

President of A. A. H. S. Renamed at Annual Meeting—4 New Member Clubs Added.

At the annual meeting of the Association of American Horse Shows, at the Biltmore Hotel yesterday, Reginald C. Vanderbilt was again elected President of the organization, which in addition to electing officers, also awarded dates for exhibitions to be held during the coming season.

The other officers elected were: Thomas G. Aston, Vice President; J. Macy Willets, Secretary and Treasurer; and Cecil F. Colton, Assistant Secretary-Treasurer. The Board of Directors selected consists of the following members: Thomas G. Aston, John McE. Bowman, G. Howard Davison, William du Pont, Robert A. Fairbairn, Fred F. Field, A. Henry Kigginson, Prescott Lawrence, Pierre Lorillard Jr., Alfred B. McClay, Reginald C. Vanderbilt, Norman Van Voorhis, J. Macy Willets, J. K. Dering and John R. Valentine.

The annual report was particularly pleasing to the members, as it showed a decided and steady gain in the number of exhibitions held during the past three years as well as a gain of four members, making a total of forty-five clubs. Two of the new clubs are Canadian, and it is the hope of the association that more of the Canadian organizations can be added to the membership in the near future. A rule against importing horses from Canada has kept some of the Canadian organizations from seeking membership, but this handicap is partly overcome now by the permission to import horses under bond where the animals are to be exhibited in shows open to the public.

It was reported that there had been but one case of misconduct of an exhibitor or agent under the rules governing the shows. In this instance, the report declared, the horse shown was not as represented in the entry blank and the Directors decided that all entries of the stable responsible for the entry be refused for a period of one year. This ruling included the suspension of all persons connected with the stable.

The name of the stable was not stated, but the only case of violation of the rules which came to public notice during the past year was that of Little Fire Lady, owned by Miss Patty Vauclain of Philadelphia. Patrick O'Connell, manager of the Broad Lawn Stables, was suspended by the A. A. H. S. for one year.

April 5-6, Pinehurst; 20-23, Brooklyn; 26-29, New York Spring.

May 5-7, Philadelphia, indoor; 11, Wynnewood, pony; 25-30, Devon.

June 3-4, Tuxedo; 6-8, West Point; 15-18, Westchester County; 25, Islip, polo.

July 27-30, Monmouth County.

Aug. 5-6, Stamford; 29-31, Newport; 30-31, Canadian National, Toronto.

Sept. 1-3, Canadian National, Toronto; 2-6, New England State Fair; 5-10, Rochester; 12-16, Syracuse; 19-24, Springfield; Eastern States; 21-23, Mineola; 24, Greenwich; 27-30, Bryn Mawr; 30, Piping Rock.

Oct. 1, Piping Rock; 1, Bryn Mawr; 4-7, Brockton; 8-15, National Dairy; 15, Monmouth County Colt Show.

Favorite a Head in Front of Mythology in New Orleans Feature Event.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 25.—Giving his backers considerably more thrills than they bargained for in a heavily played odds-on choice, Tableau d'Honneur won the Aero Handicap, a five and a half furlong dash which was the chief event on the program at the Fair Grounds today. He won by the proverbial whisker in spite of the fact that he was probably much the best of the very ordinary field of sprinters that tried for the purse, for he got home just a head in front of Mythology, and his supporters never breathed easily until he was over the finish line.

Although Tableau d'Honneur has been performing rather consistently, he usually wins or loses by very narrow margins; but today he seemed to stand out in his company so decidedly that he was made a 1 to 2 favorite while there was little support for any of the others. He might have won much more easily but for the fact that he broke from the outside and was forced to go wide for the entire trip, just getting up in the stretch in time to gain the decision.

Mythology showed surprisingly good speed and taking the lead at the start held sway all the way to the last sixteenth. The winner kept improving his position until at the turn into the stretch he was within striking distance, but was obliged to go out to the middle of the track to keep out of close quarters. Once he was straightened out for home he moved up fast and, catching Mythology, fought it out gamely. Grayson was third after being well up with the pace throughout, but none of the others was ever a strong contender. Daydue showed speed for five furlongs but hung badly in the final sixteenth.

The Sunnyland Stable's Ultra Gold accounted for a six-furlong dash in which he easily defeated Crystal Ford and Herald among others after coming from far back. Panaman and Redmon raced with each other in making the early pace, and both were through when they turned into the stretch. Panaman quit utterly and Redmon dropped back into the ruck while Ultra Gold slipped through and closed with a rush. Crystal Ford also finished strongly but was too far back when he made his bid to get to the winner.

FOUR STRAIGHT FOR DOWNS.

Defeats Flynn in Tournament for Snooker Pool Honors at Doyle's.

William Downs defeated Leo Flynn last night in their tournament game for the amateur championship at snooker pool in Doyle's Broadway billiard room by a score of 70 to 43. This gives Downs four straight victories and virtually assures him of winning his section. He has still one game to play with Lou Paley. Should he win this he cannot be tied, and will then play George La Rue, who won the other section for the title.

In the English billiard tourney William Lake won a well-played match from Robert Craig by a score of 150 to 114, while at 18.2 balk line Nelson Mayo defeated Jackson Wood, 150 to 147, in thirty innings.

WEST VA. INVITES STEVENS.

Hoboken College Asked to Send Eleven for Game on Oct. 1.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 25.—Stevens Institute of Technology of Hoboken, N. J., was today invited by the athletic authorities of West Virginia University to send its football team to Morgantown on Oct. 1 next, it was announced by Harry A. Stansbury, director of athletics. The invitation was extended, Mr. Stansbury said, after a communication had been received from the New Jersey institution requesting the Mountaineers to consider a game with them on Oct. 1, 15 or 29.

Harvard to Lose Wrestling And Basketball Captains

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 25.—With James McDonnell, Captain of the varsity wrestling team, being graduated next month, Harvard Winter sports will probably lose still another leader, Jim Tolbert, Captain of the basketball team, who is under the care of a surgeon. He has fallen arches and will be unable to face the Massachusetts Aggies tomorrow. McDonnell has the distinction of being elected varsity wrestling captain three years in succession. His loss will be a serious one. Tolbert has been playing a strong defensive game for the basketball five.

APPLEBY DEFEATS MIAL IN 18.2 PLAY

Wins by 300 to 222 in Second Match of Eastern Class A Title Tourney.

| Clarkson | 1 | 1 | 0 | 1000 |
| E. T. Appleby | 1 | 1 | 0 | 1000 |
| Gardner | 1 | 0 | 1 | .000 |
| Mial | 1 | 0 | 1 | .000 |

The second match of the Class A Eastern 18.2 balkline championship tournament of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, held last night at the club house of the New York Athletic Club, was a pretty slow, go-as-you-please affair between Dr. L. L. Mial and Edgar T. Appleby. The contest, which ran for forty-one innings, was finally won by Appleby by the score of 300 to 222.

Dr. Mial played a careful, cautious game throughout. He was better at nursing the balls in the earlier innings of the game than was his opponent, but after the ivories once got away from him he generally had difficulty in bringing them together again. Dr. Mial made the high run of the evening, nevertheless, a cluster of 43. Appleby's best collection was 37 buttons. Seventeen innings blank for the doctor, however, tell the story of his defeat. Appleby was blanked for eleven sessions, and after both men got above the 200 mark, the winner averaged about 17 for six innings, the most consistent playing of the evening. Neither player ran a very startling average for the whole route, that of the winner being 7 13-41, while 5 17-41 is all that can be recorded for the loser.

The seventeenth inning proved to be the best for Dr. Mial. He got the balls back together several times when they had strayed apart, and made some very good massé shots. One particularly difficult one, when the ivories were in a row, evoked applause. This was the inning in which Dr. Mial ran his cluster of forty-three. He finally missed on an alignment of the spheres which could not be played close enough to prevent the cue ball from going a hair's breadth too wide.

Appleby did his best work, not in his high-run inning, but in his succession of consistent innings toward the close. His trouble at the outset seemed to be a tendency to strike a little too hard, driving the object balls wide apart. In the latter innings he played with a more delicate stroke, keeping the ivories well together, and his massé shots were particularly successful.

The contestants in the game tonight will be Francis Appleby and E. W. Gardner. Gardner lost to Clarkson on the opening evening.

The scores:

Edgar T. Appleby—1 3 0 7 0 0 4 0 13 2 3 12 19 3 11 10 3 12 15 0 6 8 0 0 3 37 1 0 0 4 1 7 20 0 0 23 4 17 11 21 19—300. Average—7 13-41.

Dr. Mial—0 6 0 1 0 0 1 4 4 22 14 0 2 0 19 0 43 0 3 1 7 13 22 0 0 3 1 0 0 0 21 9 4 0 1 19 1 0 0 0 1—222. Average—5 17-41.

Referee—Myer Dall.

Church Easily Outplays Grogan.

Arthur Church defeated Charles Grogan last night in the continuation of the professional pocket billiard championship of New York State at Lawlor's Academy. The score was 125 to 43. Church had a high cluster of 28, while Grogan amassed 20 in a single run. Leo Silver meets George Clark tonight.

SCOTT WINNER OF HERCULES TROPHY

New York State Shooter First in Eastern Live Bird Championship Match.

Special to The New York Times.

READING, Pa., Jan. 25.—Killing twenty-four out of his twenty-five fliers, with the second dead out of bounds, Asher C. Scott of Morton, N. Y., won the fifth annual Great Eastern handicap, emblematic of the live bird championship of the East, shot here under the auspices of the Hercules Gun Club today.

William H. Clegg of Philadelphia, a former Keystone State title holder, led the classic field of fourscore of gunners, the cream of the amateur wingshots of the East, up to the twenty-third round, when the Quaker City shooter lost two, which put him back with George A. Brown of Seneca Falls, N. Y.; Harry B. Seigler of Schwenksville and Edward Shank of Philadelphia, who tied for the Runner-up Cup in the shoot-off of the trophy. Brown won by killing five straight.

Frank M. Troeh of Vancouver, Wash., the international live bird champion, finished three down. Of the New York Athletic Club gunners competing David Wadsworth 3d was high with 20 kills. Ben S. Donnelly, who was a member of the American Olympic trap shooting team, finished with 19; Reginald Sinclair, 17; Martin J. McVoy Jr., 19; Walter H. Bauer, 16; M. B. Orr, 19; R. F. Rice, 19, and E. B. Collins, 15.

The New York Athletic Club representatives finished third in the team shoot for five-man teams, scoring a total of 94 kills. The Fortside Gun Club of Philadelphia carried off the trophy with 109 birds scored, with the Spring Valley Shooting Association of Reading runner-up, registering 105 kills.

LAYTON WINS TWO BLOCKS.

Three-Cushion Champion Scores Over De Oro by Steadiness.

Those who witnessed the continuation of the three-cushion billiard match between Alfredo De Oro and John Layton, the champion, yesterday at Kline's Strand Billiard Academy were reminded of the fable of the hare and the tortoise. Layton won both afternoon and evening blocks of 50 points each, the former by the score of 50 to 49, which is the reverse of the result on Monday afternoon, and he won the evening block by the score of 50 to 45, which makes the grand total to date 200 for Layton and 182 for De Oro.

De Oro made numerous spectacular and good clusters during the afternoon, the longest being 10, made when he went to the table the second time, but Layton kept at his steady plugging game with deadly accuracy as regards angles, and, although the Cuban had tallied other clusters of 5 and 8, still in the thirty-ninth inning the champion passed De Oro. But a couple of innings later De Oro again assumed the lead and held it till he had his full count of the block of 49 when Layton, who had 42 at that time, kept up his steady work and by runs of 2 after 2 managed to win out before De Oro could get that needed extra point. Layton missed three difficult shots as a result of kiss-offs and De Oro lost two, in five consecutive attempts the two made to score, and in every case the cue ball was directly headed for the object ball.

In the evening game both made numerous unusual shots which brought forth volleys of applause from the large gallery. A forced draw shot by Layton was his most difficult shot, while the one that brought the greatest applause for De Oro was a timed shot that failed to make, but it came so near to counting and was so difficult that the gallery gave him the benefit. In the evening session De Oro took the lead just as he had in the afternoon game, and in the forty-fifth inning the score was 38 to 26 in his favor, but again the tortoise overhauled the hare by indomitable plugging, and, in this case, by runs of 7 and 4, which, along with singles, put him on even terms with the Cuban in the forty-ninth inning. The match will be continued this afternoon and tonight.

Collegiate Five Adds Another.

Collegiate School's basketball team added another to its list of season's triumphs yesterday when it defeated the Hoboken Academy quintet in a game on the latter's court by the score of 16 to 8. A rally in the second half enabled Collegiate to score its victory. At the end of the first half the Hoboken lads were in the lead by a margin of 5 to 3.

TO ASK CURE BY LAW FOR BAIL BOND EVIL

Investigators Urge Making Surety Concerns Responsible and Recording of Collateral.

WOULD LICENSE BAIL GIVER

Recommend 2 Per Cent. Fee and That All Who Write Bonds Be Employed Under Salary.

Legislation limiting the granting of authority to write bail bonds so that surety companies may be made directly responsible for every bond written and the collateral given to secure it will be urged as the result of the John Doe investigation into the system of procuring bail bonds.

The report will recommend that the surety company itself be represented through an executive of the committee, and not by irresponsible agents, in the writing of every bond, and that collateral pledged for the security of the bond be a matter of public record on file in the District Attorney's office and the court where the bond is issued.

Limitation of the fee charged for a bond also will be recommended in the report, it being the belief of those who inquired into conditions that a 2 per cent. charge should be made for ordinary bonds, such as is charged at present, with a fixed charge based upon the hours of service at night or under other unusual conditions. And that all persons writing bonds be in the employ of the surety company and paid a salary.

The issuing of blanket powers of attorney to agents to be by them passed on to other persons over whom the company has no control, will be condemned by the report, as one of the greatest sources of evil, in the present bonding system.

The committee suggests that a license be required for all persons and corporations engaged in the bonding business.

Discussion of the recommendations for legislation made by the Bar Association Committee, of which Edward J. McGuire is Chairman, will take place at a meeting of the association tonight.

Estates Appraised.

DUNLAP, AMELIA N. (May 2, 1920). Mrs. Dunlap created a trust fund of $174,081, making the Columbia Trust Company trustee for the benefit of her four children, who are to be paid the income in equal shares during the life of their mother. When Mrs. Dunlap died the trust was to cease and three-quarters of it was to be paid to her three daughters, Minnie D. Baker, Fannie D. Lawson-Johnson and Daisy D. Thompson, in equal portions. The fourth quarter was to form a life estate for her son, William Allen Dunlap. Mrs. Lawson-Johnson died on Jan. 27, 1919, so her son, John Robert Lawson-Johnson of Hotel Van Rensselaer, West Eleventh Street, receives $65,280. Mrs. Thompson died Sept. 11, 1919, without issue, so her share went to her sister and nephew. Mrs. Minnie D. Baker of 74 Chestnut Street, East Orange, N. J., $65,280, and William A. Dunlap of 305 West Eighty-first Street has a life estate in $13,520.

JONES, JAMES H., Lakeland, Fla. (Oct. 29, 1919). Estate of $202,984, with large real estate holdings in Lakeland, consisting of a farm and orchard, the value of which is not given, with $132,186 in securities and $4,211 in jewelry taxable in New York. Teachers' College, New York City, and the Children's Aid Society, New York City, receive $15,000 each. His nephew, Newbold Morris of 115 East Seventy-fifth Street, receives the Lakeland farm and one-fourth of the residue; his niece, Eva V. C. Hawkes of 8 East Fifty-third Street, one-fourth of the residue; his sister, Cordelia S. Steward of Lausanne, Switzerland, receives all of the jewelry and one-half of the residue.

SOLLACE, FREDERICK A. (Aug. 5, 1918). Total assets, $111,067—cash, $37,421; personal, $5,270; stocks and bonds, $12,678; interest in Sollace & Wojan, $32,777; in Pennant Mills, $15,224. The whole estate goes to his widow, Mary E. Sollace of 210 West Seventy-ninth Street.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The storm that was central Monday night over Kansas moved southeastward and Tuesday night its centre was over Alabama. This disturbance has been attended by rains in the Gulf and South Atlantic States, Tennessee and Arkansas, snow and rain in the lower Ohio and central Mississippi Valleys, and snow in the Missouri Valley and upper lake region. Another storm has its centre off the north Pacific Coast and it has been attended by rains and strong winds along the north Pacific Coast.

The weather has become considerably colder since Monday night in the Eastern States, the Ohio Valley and the southern Plains States and warmer in the Northwest.

In the New England States the weather will be partly cloudy Wednesday and unsettled Thursday, with gradually rising temperature. In the Middle Atlantic States the weather will be unsettled Wednesday, probably with snow south of Pennsylvania, with gradually rising temperature.

In the South Atlantic States there will be rain Wednesday and probably Thursday, with cooler weather in Georgia and Florida. In the East Gulf States the weather will be cloudy and colder Wednesday and fair and colder Thursday. In Tennessee and Kentucky there will be rain or snow and colder weather on Wednesday and cloudy weather Thursday. In the upper Ohio Valley and the south lake region the weather will be unsettled Wednesday and Thursday, with probably snow. In the upper lake region the weather will be partly cloudy Wednesday and Thursday, with slowly rising temperature.

FORECAST FOR TODAY AND THURSDAY.

New England—Partly cloudy and not quite so cold Wednesday; Thursday cloudy, with rising temperature.

Eastern New York—Cloudy and not quite so cold Wednesday; Thursday unsettled, with rising temperature.

New Jersey—Cloudy and not quite so cold Wednesday; Thursday unsettled, probably snow, with rising temperature.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

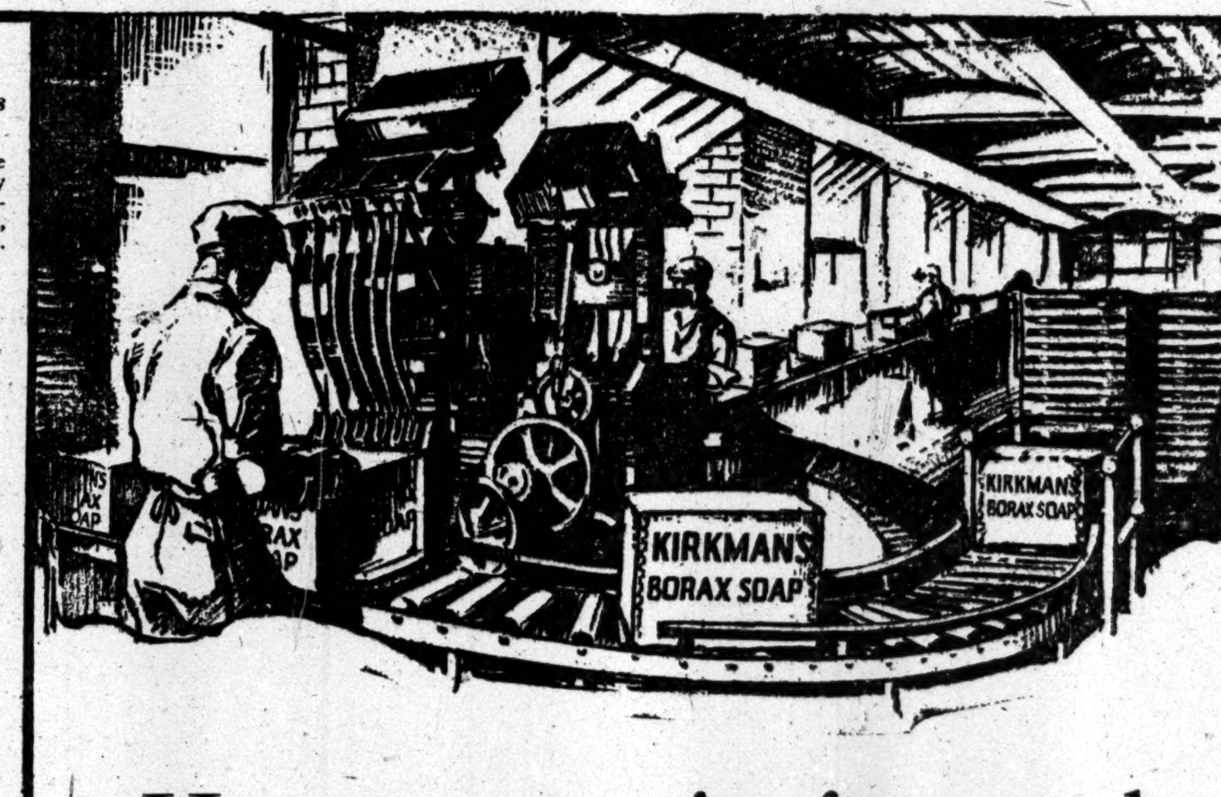
LAMSON SERVICE



He never waits for work

Neither does he lift the full cases to nail on the covers. As fast as one is nailed, another is at his hand ready to push under the machine. As soon as that is nailed, it is carried away from him.

That is only one operation in this plant, which is equipped with a Lamson System of mechanical conveyors. The saving in this operation is multiplied in every operation where the speed of production is regulated and maintained automatically.

The basis of efficient production—of making the most in the least time and space—is the continuous flow of goods through the plant.

A Lamson System of automatic conveyors applied to your business would give you this stream of production—saving costly floor space and overhead, and positively increasing production to a point where the installation would be a profit-maker. Lamson Conveyors are installed unit by unit without interference with production. Each unit starts to pay for itself as soon as it begins to operate.

Metal Musical Instruments.

Quite a good deal of interest is being taken by the trade in a line of stringed musical instruments made of metal which has just been introduced. The samples shown include mandolins, guitars, banjos and Russian instruments, selling at retail from $1.75 to $4.50. A metal mandolin is 21 inches long 9 inches wide and retails for $3. The instruments have been designed chiefly for use as toys to stand the hard knocks usually given such articles. Good orders have been placed on the line, and manufacturers of wooden instruments are watching the results obtained.

Straw Hats Banned.

While it is fashionable in some things to reverse the seasonal order and wear furs in Summer, silk hosiery in Winter, etc., this rule does not seem to apply to millinery. The socially elect, according to investigators of the Retail Millinery Association, are sticking strictly to velvet hats and are passing up those of the straw variety. An investigation of the style trend conducted along Fifth Avenue showed that the straw hat has its following, but not among those who set the fashions. Their support of the velvet head covering is expected to make the straw hat passé, as far as its appearance in January is concerned.

Keeping Teeth in Luxury.

Not since a woman customer asked the cost of making a solid silver cage for her birds has anything so unusual come to the attention of an executive of a local silverware concern as a demand made very recently by a wealthy man for a solid silver receptacle in which to let his false teeth soak at night. The clerk to whom the order was given was "stumped" and put the matter up to his chief. The latter, after some hard thinking, suggested that the customer be shown a certain type of silver box originally designed for a far different purpose. This was done and the customer soon departed with the box.

Gray Goods Prices Break.

Further lack of trading in the local gray goods market was evident yesterday, as were some recessions in prices. Nearby sales of 39-inch 73-76 printcloths were put through at 10¾ cents. In the other printcloths 38½-inch 64-60s were more or less nominally held at 8½ cents, although some sales were known to have been made at 8⅜ cents. Buyers again paid 7¾ cents for 38½-inch 60-48s, which are apparently in not very large supply. Not a great deal was done in sheetings during the day, although some business was reported in 5.50s at 6½ cents.

What Dress Goods Demand Does.

Conditions from the standpoint of both selling men's wear fabrics and from buying the materials out of which they are produced are not considered satisfactory in that branch of the woolen industry. The demand for clothing fabrics has still quite a distance to travel, it is pointed out, before a normal business is secured. At the same time the situation has so improved in dress goods that the wool and yarn markets are stiffening. This uneven state of trade as between the men's wear and the dress goods division is not one that is relished by producers of the former materials. They see the prospect of being forced to pay more for their raw products even though the condition of their own trade does not warrant it.

Silverware Prices Revised.

Although salesmen for leading silverware concerns in this market have not been in their territories long enough to turn in any sizable orders, the impression prevails here that a good Spring business will be done. This belief is based not only on the knowledge that retailers' stoks are low for the most part, but also on the improvement that is reported in other lines of business. An important factor in making retailers buy, it was said yesterday, will be the reductions that have been made in the prices of all varieties of plated and sterling ware. A sample of the reductions that have been made was cited yesterday in which a certain style of sterling tablespoons had been reduced from $85 a dozen to $60.

Frequent Trips for Buyers.

Although the aggregate of orders received for ready-to-wear of various kinds and for other store merchandise is said to be reaching very satisfactory totals, individually the amounts required are small. This has been the experience of manufacturers and wholesalers in many lines. An instance given yesterday was of a buyer from Texas who is back again in the market after a trip he made only two weeks ago. At that time, he secured just enough merchandise to carry along the department over the intervening period, it was explained, and he must replenish his stocks. This policy is understood to be more or less of a general one, and the second trips are expected by wholesalers to yield much better orders in view of the stiffening of the markets.

Georgettes Have Improved.

If georgettes were an index to conditions in the silk market, that trade might confidently point to a greatly improved situation. Popular makes of this fabric have advanced half again over their most depressed price. Makes which were selling not long ago in the "distressed goods" market at 67½ cents are now reported to be quoted at 97½ cents. The latter price is still understood to be somewhat below actual cost of production. The market, however, awaits an even better price with the final cleaning up of accumulations of this material and the closing out of the great quantities of cheap makes which glutted the trade. Good constructions are in active demand, and sellers can make about their own price, if they do not value their product too highly.

Offers New Cigarette Case.

Something different in cigarette cases is now being offered to the wholesale jewelry trade by a Rhode Island manufacturing concern. Not only is the new case of different shape than the usual flat style, measuring about three inches long by two wide by one thick, but it is especially designed for smokers of the brands of popular-priced cigarettes that are packed twenty to the package. Instead of taking the cigarettes out one by one and inserting them in the case, as is done with the usual type, in the new case the whole package is inserted in the holder portion at once. Then the top of the package is torn off by means of a serrated edge with which the holder is made, leaving enough of the cigarettes exposed to make them easy to get hold of. Made of nickel silver, the new case is said to be non-tarnishable.

Expect Better Jewelry Sales.

The jewelry business was described yesterday as being somewhat in a state of coma at the moment, largely due to the quiet which usually prevails during the retail inventory season. Optimism is general in the trade, however, and a market improvement in sales is expected soon. High-priced goods, in particular, are expected to do better in the near future, as retail stocks were pretty well depleted by the holiday demand. That the retail trade, as a whole, is in a healthy financial condition was said yesterday to be shown by the promptness of payments and the small number of failures. Platinum has now dropped to prices ranging from $70 an ounce for the soft metal to $105 for the hard, and an upturn in quotations in the near future would not come altogether as a surprise.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Milton Lichtenstein & Co., resident buyers, 25 West Thirty-third Street, have taken additional quarters at 18-20 West Thirty-fourth Street, where they are conducting a jobbing department for their accounts in dry goods, piece goods, notions, underwear, hosiery, &c. Louis Bernstein is in charge.

The surplus Textile Exchange, commission brokers, have removed from 21 East Fourteenth Street to new quarters on the fourteenth floor of the Metropolis Building, 31 Union Square.

The twenty-seventh annual entertainment and reception of the Julius Kayser Mutual Aid will be held at the Thirteenth Armory Hall, Sumner and Jefferson Avenues, Brooklyn, on Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock. Music will be supplied by the Thirteenth Regiment Band.

LEGAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

AT A SPECIAL TERM, PART I. OF THE Supreme Court of the State of New York, held in and for the County of New York, at the County Court House, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the fourth day of January, 1921.—Present: Hon. EDWARD R. FINCH, Justice.—In the matter of the application of FRENCH HEROES AND ALLIED APPEAL COMMITTEE, INCORPORATED, a corporation duly organized and existing under the Membership Corporations Law of the State of New York, for voluntary dissolution.

On reading and filing the petition of Mrs. William Astor Chanler, Mrs. Jeanne L. Etty, Marion E. Holmes, Jacob C. Klinck, John Moffat, Irene E. Morton, Richard Shippen, Henry J. Whigham, Louis Wiley and Mrs. Henry J. Whigham, a majority of the Directors of French Heroes and Allied Appeal Committee, Incorporated, a corporation created under the Membership Corporations Law of this State, having its principal office located in the Borough of Manhattan, City and County of New York, and the schedule thereto annexed, duly verified by the petitioners on the 23rd day of December, 1920, from which petition it appears that the case is one of those specified in Section 170 of the General Corporations Law; and it further appearing to the satisfaction of the court from the said petition that the corporation should be dissolved, and on reading and filing the notice of this application dated December 27, 1920, with due proof of service thereof, and of said petition and schedule and a copy of this order on the Attorney General of the State of New York;

And after hearing Charles E. Kelley, of counsel for the petitioners, and no one representing the said Attorney General in opposition thereto;

NOW, upon motion of Charles E. Kelley, attorney for the petitioners, it is ORDERED that all persons interested in the said corporation show cause before this Court, at a Special Term, Part I. thereof, to be held at the County Court House, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 18th day of February, 1921, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, why the said corporation should not be dissolved; and it is further ORDERED, that a copy of this order be published at least once in each of the three weeks immediately preceding the said 18th day of February, 1921, in the New York Law Journal and New York Times, newspapers published in the City and County of New York.

EUROPE FOR TESTING IMMIGRANTS THERE

Caminetti Tells Senate Committee That Project Meets General Favor Abroad.

GIVES STEAMSHIP PLANS

Says They Are Fixing Up Barracks at Ports and Preparing for a Flood to America.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Secretary Wilson's suggestion that the admissibility of immigrants to the United States be considered at the source, so as to avoid the "tragedy" of aliens breaking up their homes and coming to America only to be excluded, has met with the instant approval of European Governments and American diplomatic and consular officers overseas, Anthony Caminetti, Commissioner General of Immigration, declared today before the Senate Immigration Committee.

Mr. Caminetti described his recent trip through Europe to obtain first-hand information as to the immigration problem and told of the very extensive preparations being made by steamship lines, Foreign Governments and various organizations for handling the expected flood of immigrants bound for the United States.

Incidentally, Mr. Caminetti said there was a general impression among the peoples of Europe that the American Government, through various organizations operating to assist immigrants on their way to this country, was inviting aliens to come here. He declared that this was not the intention of the organizers, "nor has it at any time been their purpose, but the effect is as stated, and great masses of people left their homes last Fall and this Winter, enduring hardships and suffering to reach ports of embarkation."

The committee was told by the Commissioner General that transatlantic steamship lines seemed to be "deeply engaged" in making provisions for the handling of immigrants for the present as well as for the future. He said the immigrant barracks or hotels at embarkation ports in use before the war had either been placed in commission again or preparations made for their further use, and that new barracks along improved lines were being constructed.

The Red Star Line is planning such barracks at Antwerp, he said, while the White Star and Cunard lines plan barracks at Cherbourg. Much activity also is being shown at Southampton, Mr. Caminetti added.

WAR ON RUM REMEDIES.

Dry Officials Plan to Curb the Sale of Disguised "Hard Liquor."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Active steps are soon to be taken by Federal prohibition officials to block the distribution of intoxicating beverages masquerading as patent medicines.

Prohibition officials said tonight that permits for the manufacture of medicinal preparations in which alcohol was used would be limited as much as possible. The Bureau of Internal Revenue, one official said, was determined to curb "the well-known abuse of the patent medicine permits."

Thousands of applications, officials said, were coming in for permits and renewals of permits to manufacture patent medicines containing alcohol. Every application will be scrutinized with the utmost care, and it is the intention of the prohibition enforcement forces to weed out all except strictly medical preparations.

TO EXPERIMENT ON APES.

Pasteur Institute Gets Donation for Anti-Tuberculosis Test.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—A first subscription of 30,000 francs has been sent through the Matin to the Pasteur Institute toward the expenses of outfitting a laboratory in West Africa where it is proposed to carry on experiments on anthropoid apes, with the view of discovering an anti-tuberculosis vaccine.

As cabled last week, experiments carried on by Dr. Calmette and others at the Pasteur Institute, have been so far advanced that it is thought advisable to continue them by experimenting on apes. Money is, however, needed to set up a laboratory in West Africa, where apes could be kept in a semi-wild state. Toward this work a check for the sum mentioned above has been sent by Georges Cahen Leon, a Paris merchant, who in his letter, expressed the hope that others will join in subscribing toward the 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 francs necessary for establishing the laboratory.

Experiments on other animals have so far proved so successful that every hope is entertained that a real preventive inoculation against tuberculosis has been discovered and by experiments on apes it is hoped to carry the discovery a stage forward before experimenting on human beings.

DAWES OUT AS BANK HEAD.

But Stays as Chairman of Central Trust Company of Illinois.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Charles G. Dawes, whose name has been prominently discussed as the possible choice of President-elect Harding for Secretary of the Treasury or, failing that, some other Cabinet post carried out this afternoon his announced intention to resign as President of the Central Trust Company of Illinois which he founded in 1902. He was immediately elected Chairman of the Board of Directors, and Joseph E. Otis, First Vice President, was chosen to succeed him in the Presidency.

Mr. Dawes stated that the change was being made in accordance with a plan inaugurated by himself several years ago.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "it is really a change in title instead of a change in work. I'll be here right along as before."

Wilson Uses Pen Signature Again.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Congress received from President Wilson today the first message signed with pen and ink since the President was taken ill a year and a half ago. The message had to do with changes in customs districts. Since his illness and up to this time the President has used an indelible pencil in signing communications to Congress.

Ties Up 20 More Merchant Ships.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Government-owned merchant vessels aggregating 122,000 deadweight tons will be withdrawn from service under orders issued today by the Shipping Board. Twenty vessels were ordered tied up at various ports.

Won't Sell Army Docks.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The War Department does not intend to sell docks or terminals built for the army during the war, Secretary Baker advised the Senate today in response to a resolution by Senator Jones, Chairman of the Commerce Committee.

WOULD ADD A YEAR TO LEGAL TRAINING

Need of More College Work to Be Urged Upon City Bar by Columbia Dean.

Recommendations that would add a year of college study or its equivalent to legal training in an attempt to raise the standard of the profession will be made tonight before the Bar Association of the City of New York in a report by Harlan F. Stone, Dean of the Law School of Columbia University, as Chairman of the Committee on Legal Education.

The changes advocated have aroused some opposition. The recommendations were made last year, although they did not become public and were not acted upon. This year they have been renewed by Dean Stone and his associates on the committee, with a request that action be taken upon the report.

The resolution suggests that candidates for the bar should not begin their legal studies without "having first received some intellectual training in an institution of college grade, and preferably without having first pursued a college course."

Dean Stone bases this recommendation on the conclusion that "there are annually admitted to the bar of this State large numbers of men who are unfitted for its responsibilities by training and education and who are without natural or acquired inclination to uphold its traditions," and adds that "New York is more solicitous for the health of its horses and dogs than it is for the preservation of the rights of its citizens."

The tendency of present educational methods, even where the candidate attends law schools, is to train lawyers in precise rules of law rather than to develop general intellectual ability, the committee says.

"Criticisms which have come to our attention are directed toward the lack of a developed moral character on the part of candidates," says the report, "and the absence of the kind of training and intellectual development which fits them to conform to the intellectual and ethical standards which are essential to the bar. Too often the license to practice law becomes a license to prey upon the public.

"The superiority as a whole of the English bar over our own, despite its inferior legal education, is due, we believe, to the fact that most of its members are educated at the universities."

CALDER ON TAX EXEMPTIONS

Senator Advocates Freeing Mortgages Under $40,000.

Tax exemption of amounts up to $40,000 invested by individuals in mortgages was advocated by Senator William M. Calder last night in a speech in the West Side Y. M. C. A., at 318 West Fifty-seventh Street, on the housing situation.

"High taxes have driven men of large means to withdraw their money from real estate and mortgages and invest it in tax-exempt securities," the Senator said. "I don't believe in any kind of tax exemption, but so long as there are $15,000,000,000 worth of tax exempt securities in this country, we must make mortgages attractive investments at this critical time in order to interest capital in building."

Senator Calder said he was about to introduce another bill in the Senate, operative for five years, providing that any one who sells at a profit any kind of dwelling house built since the armistice, shall be relieved of taxation on that profit, provided he reinvests it in a new building. Mr. Calder said that while some legislation was necessary to keep down rents, he thought that the rent laws had done as much as anything else to divert capital from building dwellings.

FILE BANKRUPTCY LIST.

O'Neill Sugar Concern Shows $6,417,282 in Liabilities.

Schedules in bankruptcy were filed in the United States District Court here yesterday, for A. R. O'Neill, Inc., sugar brokers, of 68 William Street, following the filing of schedules by creditors last September. A receiver was appointed at that time by Judge Martin T. Manton.

The schedules show liabilities of $6,417,282, of which $4,098,490 are secured claims, $2,117,566 unsecured claims and $200,000 in taxes, and debts due the United States Government. The assets of $4,256,828 include $3,915,782 in merchandise held as collateral; $224,169 on deposit in banks; $29,702 due on open accounts; $60,000 in promissory notes and securities and $24,174 in stocks and negotiable bonds. H. & J. J. Lesser are attorneys for the firm.

WANT FRESH EGG TARIFF.

American Producers Alarmed at Recent Imports From China and Japan.

Eggs from China and Japan have been received in this country in such large quantities in the last few weeks as to cause American producers to agitate for an import duty on fresh eggs, according to a statement issued yesterday by Mrs. Louis Welzmiller, Deputy Commissioner of Public Markets. There is an import duty now on frozen eggs, Mrs. Welzmiller said.

The so-called fresh eggs from China and Japan reach this market about a month after they leave those countries. They are recandled and sold here as Western eggs at 50 cents a dozen and up wholesale. Mrs. Welzmiller said that they compared favorably with storage eggs.

BETTER GAME LAWS WANTED

Protective Association Asks Special Care of Fur-Bearing Animals.

Dr. E. W. Nelson, Chief of the United States Bureau of Biological Survey, and Game Commissioners from many States addressed the annual conference and dinner of the American Game Protective Association held last evening in the Waldorf.

A resolution was adopted favoring the creation of a United States Department of Conservation, expressing sympathy with the movement to lessen the destruction of fur-bearing animals and advocating the establishment by all States of long closed seasons and licensing of trappers and all dealers in raw furs. The conference went on record as favoring the adoption of anti-alien gun laws and supporting a system of Federal game refuges.

CRAIG SEES BUS 'BUNGLING.'

Wants City Conveyances, but Opposes Methods Used to Get Them.

Controller Charles L. Craig did not accompany the members of the Board of Estimate to Albany yesterday to plead with the Governor and Legislature to allow the city to purchase and operate buses. The Controller said he was in favor of municipal buses, but did not approve of the methods of the present administration to get them.

"I believe in buses," he said, "and I further believe that if legislation had been properly presented to the Legislature favorable laws would have been enacted. But the whole matter has been badly bungled in presentation."

Washington Bookplate Brings $180.

The sale of the library of Mrs. Franklin Bartlett and bookplates, gathered by the late Dr. Henry C. Eno, was concluded yesterday at the American Art Galleries. The session brought $1,979. The total for the sale was $4,986. The highest price was $180, paid by F. Caplin for the bookplate of George Washington. The same buyer also gave $100 for the bookplate of Paul Revere, probably engraved by himself.

RETAINS CONTROL OF NIAGARA POWER

NEW CANAL PLAN OFFERED

Project Is to Connect Erie and Ontario, but the Present Commission Will Not Act on It.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The temporary continuance of the Niagara Falls Power Company's control over all water diverted from the Niagara River above the falls for power purposes became assured today through an agreement between the companies applying to the Federal Power Commission for water privileges along the river, and through the decision of the commission to consider no applications which would depend upon ratification of the pending treaty with Canada.

The agreement entered into by three of the applicants not to press their petitions at this time, and the action of the commission in its hearings today in ruling out several other applicants left as the only active applicant the City of Buffalo. The Buffalo application was thereupon merged with that of the State of New York, and pressure for its consideration by the commission was held up, pending action by the New York Legislature on all matters pertaining to Niagara Falls water power. New York State officials yesterday announced their intention of testing in the courts the authority of the Federal Power Commission to approve or disapprove applications.

The commission in virtually concluding its hearings on Niagara power projects today received from Millard F. Bowen plans for a proposal involving the construction of a canal from a point south of Buffalo to connect Lakes Erie and Ontario. Secretary Baker, a member of the commission, pronounced it a "daring project," and intimated that, as it could not be undertaken before the change in Administration, no action would be taken on it by the present commission.

Another project, which would include tunnels under Goat Island and a dam across the gorge below the falls, was presented by Peter A. Porter of Niagara Falls and Dr. Kennard Thomson of New York.

WOULD CONTINUE AIR MAIL.

Senate Committee Inserts $1,500,000 for Service in Appropriation Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Continuance of the transcontinental airplane mail service was recommended by the Senate Post Office Committee today in reporting the annual Post Office Appropriation bill. The committee inserted an appropriation of $1,500,000 for this service.

When the bill was before the House the appropriation was stricken out on a point of order.

Ford's Gain Now 2,495 Votes.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—A net gain of 2,495 votes had been made by Henry Ford over Senator Newberry when the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections closed its work today in the recount of the Michigan Senatorial ballots, with 1,718 of the 2,232 precincts recanvassed.

SAYS COAL GOUGERS MADE $1,500,000,000

BILL AIMS AT MIDDLEMEN

He Asserts That the Purpose Is to Tax Them Out of Existence.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Taxes on coal dealers as provided in the Calder coal regulation bill have purposely been set high "to drive the coal straight from the mine to the consumer." This statement was made today by Senator Calder, Republican, of New York, before the Senate committee which is considering his measure.

It was the intention of the bill to "tax out of existence" many unnecessary middlemen, Senator Calder said, adding that it would be shown before "this investigation ceases where coal moving on the rails has been sold three or four times between the mines and the consumer."

The Senator appeared before the committee to reply to statements made yesterday by ex-Governor Oakley C. Curtis of Maine that the tax provisions of the bill as affecting coal dealers would aid profiteering.

The American public last year, Senator Calder said, was "mulcted out of a billion and a half dollars by men in the coal trade."

"Very well, but how about the shoe man, the flour man and the rest?" interjected Senator Reed, Democrat, of Missouri.

"The coal industry we are reaching first," Senator Calder retorted. "Coal is a necessity."

J. M. Armstrong, General Manager of Mines for the Pittsburgh Coal Company, the largest mine operator in the United States, testified that the "payroll cost" of producing coal, which included all labor charges, had increased 136 per cent. since 1916.

"A man driving a mule in the mines gets $7.50 a day, and we figure this the base rate," he said, "while an ordinarily efficient miner taking out coal earns about $12.

"Loaders, shovelling coal into cars under ground," he said, "ought to earn from $8 to $10 under present scales."

Mr. Armstrong said that if not prevented from running full time by "lack of cars, lack of business, and lack of miners," the Pittsburgh Company could produce "20,000,000 tons of coal instead of the 11,000,000 we produced last year."

Coal production costs and labor conditions will receive further attention from the committee tomorrow.

LUMBER INQUIRY ORDERED.

Senate Committee Will Start It Next Week, Using Trade Commission Data

WASHINTON, Jan. 25.—An investigation of the lumber price and supply situation on the basis of the recent report of the Federal Trade Commission on the activities of lumber associations will be started next week by the Senate Reconstruction Committee, according to an announcement made today by Chairman Calder. Senator Kenyon, Republican, of Iowa, will direct the examination of witnesses before the committee.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 25.—A statement that "it would be practically an impossibility for the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association or any other organization to control either the output or the prices of lumber if they should attempt to do so," was made today by O. T. Swan of Oshkosh, Wis., Secretary of the Northern Hemlock and Hardwood Manufacturers' Association, in reply to a query from the convention division of the Milwaukee Association of Commerce.

BOY HELD UNDER DRY LAW.

Two Policemen Accuse Lad of Carrying Two Bottles for Father.

Michael Igioria, 13 years old, is the youngest person arrested in this city on a charge of violating the Volstead act. Commissioner Barmore, in Brooklyn, yesterday held him in bail for examination. The boy was arrested near his home, at 270 Union Street, Brooklyn, by Patrolmen Siegel and Goldstein. The police said he was carrying two bottles of wine for his father. The lad is a student at the Sacred Heart Academy.

Joseph Fenimore, a storekeeper at Bergen Street and Classon Avenue, Brooklyn, was found guilty by a Federal jury in Brooklyn, yesterday of violating the Volstead act. He will be sentenced today. Mrs. Eleanor Herrman, of 1,305 Lincoln Place, Brooklyn, testified that she bought liquor at Fenimore's place on Dec. 2. She alleged that while there a fur coat and a diamond ring were taken from her.

When eleven men were tried before Judge Chatfield in the United States Court in Brooklyn yesterday on a charge of transporting liquor without a permit, it became known that some of 42 cases seized by the police at Coney Island on Sept. 5 last, had disappeared, while in many of the others water had been substituted for whisky supposed to have been in the bottles when the seizure was made. The liquor, it was said, was turned over to Marshal Power three days after the seizure. The liquor was being transferred from an automobile truck to a sloop at West Nineteenth Street, Coney Island, when the police arrived. The defendants were convicted and will be sentenced today.

TELLS AMERICA TO WAKE UP.

John H. Patterson Warns of Conditions in Europe.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, Jan. 25.—A cable has been received from John H. Patterson, President of the National Cash Register Company, in which he urges America to wake up to conditions in Europe before it is too late. Mr. Patterson is in Europe studying business conditions, problems of capital and labor and foreign exchange.

"The world's business is in trouble," says Mr. Patterson's message. "Some nations cannot sell their surplus of agriculture, industries and minerals. Other nations greatly need them. Plenty of idle ships to carry them. Millions of people out of employment.

"Nations are still spending money for war like drunken sailors. The world's business has no directing head. It needs an association of nations whose object is to do good to all the people, to stop war and fight with brains, not with bullets; to stop Bolshevism, to extend international credit, to prevent disease. Civilization is at stake. Wake up, America, before it is too late!"

FARMERS ARGUE FOR TARIFF

Needed "to Put Pep Into Agriculture," One of Them Says.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Farmers of the country will reduce their production if Congress fails to provide tariff protection for their crops, T. W. Monell of Colorado declared today before the House Ways and Means Committee. Mr. Monell urged duties which would serve as a stimulant to production, saying that was what was needed "to put pep into the agricultural industry."

"We do not know exactly what the duties should be," he continued, "but we know we have reached a point where some help must be provided. Our farmers cannot go on strike because they are under contract with the Government in reclamation work. They are not quitters, but unless they have help their production will be decreased, and that is the case everywhere."

W. A. Wentworth, representing the Iowa Dairy Council, said heavy importations of butter substitutes were causing losses to the American dairymen and farmers, and advocated high duties on ingredients of such products.

MRS. DREWES TESTIFIES AT TRIAL OF BRINES

Evidence Gives Movements of Dartmouth Student and Accused on Days Preceding Murder.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—Mrs. Christian T. Drewes, mother of Elmer C. Drewes, the Dartmouth senior found slain last October, testified here today at the trial of William P. Brines, a University of Pennsylvania undergraduate, accused of her son's murder.

Brines's counsel lost a point when the court refused to strike out testimony relating to conversations alleged to have taken place between Drewes and friends. The defense maintained that these were irrelevant.

Witnesses today included Howard L. Heath of Trenton, N. J., roommate of Drewes at Dartmouth; Charles Schloss of New York, a friend of Drewes; Thomas C. Gauntlett, janitor at Brines's apartment; Mrs. Rita Fillmore and Mrs. Thomas Reeves, who live near where Drewes's body was found, and Mr. and Mrs. Drewes.

The more important testimony brought out through these witnesses was as follows:

Drewes left Hanover, N. H., on Oct. 15, and traveled to New York and Atlantic City, and then to his parents' home here; he received a letter from a man in Reading offering to sell him an automobile; he had expressed to another student at Dartmouth his intention to come either to Philadelphia or Reading to buy an automobile; Brines last attended classes at the University of Pennsylvania on the Monday after the killing and then disappeared from that institution; on the same Monday morning Brines spoke to the janitor of his apartment concerning some papers which had been thrust down the waste pipes; Drewes and Brines were chums; Drewes was last seen by his parents at home on the Saturday night preceding his death; a car seen at the spot where the body was found just before the crime is supposed to have occurred is one similar to that belonging to Brines.

WOMAN TRIES TO KILL ASSAILANT IN COURT

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 25.—Mrs. Lillian Bangham, 25 years old, a member of the exclusive Forest Hills colony, today in the court room of Justice of the Peace A. O. Winnerbog, tried to shoot and kill William Wilson, negro, whom she had identified as the one who invaded her home Dec. 11 and brutally mistreated her.

Her unfamiliarity with the automatic pistol prevented her from carrying out her intention of killing her assailant. She had failed to release the safety lock with which the pistol was equipped.

Shouting "I'll kill you," she leaped from the witness stand, where she had been relating the story of the negro's attack, whipped an automatic pistol from a pocket in her skirt, thrust aside her husband, who barred her path, pressed the revolver against the negro and vainly pulled at the trigger. Crying hysterically, she was disarmed by county detectives.

Immediately there was a rush of crying, shouting women, trying to reach the cowering prisoner, who sought refuge in a circle of detectives. Mothers with babies in their arms and children tugging at their skirts, urged the frantic Mrs. Bangham to wreak vengeance upon the negro. "Kill him, we'll stand behind you," they shouted.

As detectives forced a passage through the crowd, increasing as persons rushed in from the streets, the women sought in vain to strike down the prisoner. Wilson was finally placed in an automobile and taken to the county jail.

Mrs. Bangham testified that Wilson entered her home, beat her almost into insensibility and then carried her into a cellar. She escaped by leaping through a window when the negro turned to shut the door through which he had carried her.

MOVIES TO AID HOOVER FUND

Theatres Begin Today Their $2,000,000 Drive for European Children

Motion picture theatres in this and other cities will begin today their campaign to raise $2,500,000 for the $33,000,000 fund of the European Relief Council for the children of Central and Southeastern Europe.

On Saturday morning special matinees are to be given in the theatres, and today motion picture actors will appear before the screens and urge audiences to buy tickets for those special performances. It is suggested that the adults buy the tickets and then give them to children for use because the performances are intended especially for young persons.

The price of the tickets is 50 cents, and it is estimated that at least 500,000 will be sold. The theatres in this city and Philadelphia have agreed to race for the honor of selling the largest number of tickets. A special midnight performance is to be given in the Capitol Theatre tonight, and Herbert Hoover will tell the audience of the need of raising the entire fund of $33,000,000. Walter Damrosch will direct part of the musical program.

An appeal for support of the work of the Near East Relief Committee in Armenia was made yesterday by Major Gen. Leonard Wood, who said:

"You are going to have many appeals, but of all the appeals that come to us there is none which ought to receive more prompt or more generous response than the appeal from Armenia."

BAGPIPES AT BURNS PARTY.

Caledonian Society Observes 162d Anniversary of Scotch Poet's Birth.

The anniversary of the birthday of Robert Burns, Jan. 25, 1759, was observed by the Caledonian Society of New York with a dinner in the Hotel Pennsylvania last evening, at which many of the old Scottish clans, Camerons, MacKenzies, MacDonalds and others were represented. Two champion bagpipers, Angus M. Fraser and Murdoch MacKenzie, dressed in full regalia, greeted the diners with their music, and after the dinner there were songs, Highland dancing and speeches.

The chief speakers were the Rev. David R. Wylie, pastor of the Bethany Presbyterian Church of this city, and Duncan MacInnes, Chief Accountant in the office of the City Controller. Many of Burns's favorite verses, among them "A Man's a Man for a' That" and "The Deil's Awa' wi' the Exciseman" were sung, and the program ended with "Auld Lang Syne." The chief of the society, James R. Donaldson, presided, with ex-Chief John Maclean as toastmaster.

One of the dishes served was "haggis," a famous old Scotch pudding, eaten only on gala occasions, and Burns's "Essay on Haggis" was read to the diners by Andrew Gillies.

HIRSHFIELD OPENS INQUIRY.

Brother of Girl Killed by Soldier Complains of Injustice in Case.

Acting under instructions from Mayor Hylan, Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield yesterday began investigating the complaint of Stanley Siemietkowsky, whose sister, Mathilda, 16 years old, was shot and killed on Dec. 7, 1919. Half a dozen witnesses testified that the girl, while visiting Mr. and Mrs. Max Schubert of 191 York Street, New Brighton, was shot by a soldier named Anthon Marzalik, stationed in Hoboken, and who lived at Port Richmond, S. I.

Marzalik was indicted on March 3, 1920, for manslaughter and for carrying concealed weapons. On recommendation of the District Attorney the indictment for manslaughter was dismissed, but Marzalik was sentenced to the Elmira Reformatory for carrying concealed weapons, and discharged from there twenty-two days later. The girl's brother complained that his family had not received justice.

PLEADS HER POVERTY ON $10,000 A YEAR

JURY DISMISSED, PUZZLED

Major's Letter Read in Which He Says, "Don't Worry Over Money, I'm Used to Bills."

The household accounts of Mrs. Elizabeth C. Smith proved too much for a jury in the Queens County Supreme Court yesterday. She submitted them in support of her contention that she was "dreadfully poor" on an income of $10,000 a year. This dire poverty, she said, prevented her from offering her friends even the simplest private entertainment. Her exposition of her financial condition was interposed as a defense to the suit of her husband, Major Julian C. Smith, who wants her to account for moneys he left with her or sent to his wife while he was in the A. E. F. in France.

The array of items was so bewildering that Justice Faber finally suggested the jury might be hopelessly puzzled. Attorneys for both sides suggested that the jury be dismissed and the Judge himself decide the case. Justice Faber consented. At the close of the testimony he took under advisement the suit, Mrs. Smith's counterclaim and a second suit brought by Major Smith to recover possession of three life insurance policies for $5,000 each now held by the wife as surety for the premiums she paid.

The only bone of contention between the Smiths not now before the court is the coolness which has resulted in a separation. This grew out of the discovery by Mrs. Smith of letters written to her husband after his return to this country by one "Jane," an affectionate Frenchwoman. It has been left to the attorneys to decide whether these letters are to be made the basis of divorce proceedings.

Among the items which Mrs. Smith charged to her husband's account were $352 for trips she made to St. Louis to see about an inheritance; $80 for dues in the Douglaston Association; sums for personal gifts to her church, the Red Cross, the Salvation Army; the cost of gift photographs and clothes and cigarettes for her son Donald, who is "self-supporting." The cigarette item was justified on the ground that Mr. Smith told the wife to buy a present for the boy.

Excerpts of letters designed to prove that Smith approved of his wife's expenditures were read into the record. One of them said:

> I was prepared to read a lot from you about finances or lack of finances, and was not disappointed. Am awfully sorry that I had to leave same in such bad shape, but it was impossible to help it. You know, I left New York practically without a cent, and living here is horribly expensive. The insurance premiums, about $79, must be paid every three months. Then there is another insurance premium, payable once a year, due some time in June, about $150. The taxes should be paid as they fall due. So don't worry over money matters as long as you have a few hundred dollars in any bank. It is not worth while making any remarks about the list of bills, &c., that you write of. I have been so used to bills that they have ceased to worry me, and over here it is a pleasure to forget them altogether (or try to).

The evidence showed that $8,000 of Mrs. Smith's income was her own and $2,000 came from her husband. Justice Faber reserved decision and allowed the attorneys until Feb. 15 to submit briefs.

ASKS COURT TO HALT NEW JERSEY SEWER PLAN

Hughes Presents New York's Plea Against Passaic Valley Pipes Emptying Into Bay.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The Supreme Court heard final argument today on the application of the State of New York for an injunction against the State of New Jersey to prevent the Passaic Valley Sewerage Commission from carrying out its plan to empty the sewage of Passaic, Paterson, Newark and other New Jersey cities into Upper New York Bay near Robbins Reef through the pipes now being laid.

Charles E. Hughes appeared for New York and Adrian Riker, counsel for the Passaic Valley Commissioners, and George W. Wickersham, former Attorney General, for New Jersey.

It was contended by Mr. Hughes that the waters of New York Harbor already were dangerously polluted by the sewage flowing from the North and East Rivers, and that to add the sewage from the Passaic Valley towns would not only create a nuisance but would endanger the health of New York's inhabitants.

Mr. Wickersham met this contention with the argument that his client contemplated treating the sewage in a scientific manner that would prevent the creation of a nuisance or the endangering of health. He asserted that the watershed of the Passaic River is as truly tributary to the waters of the Upper Bay as the Hudson, Harlem and East Rivers.

Mr. Hughes said that 200,000,000 gallons of sewage was poured daily into the Upper Bay from the Harlem and East River alone, and an additional 150,000,000 gallons from the Passaic Valley sewer, as contemplated under the proposed plan, would create an insufferable situation. A project was now under consideration by the City of New York, he said, for erecting a disposition station off Red Hook, near Governors Island, to care for the sewage from the Harlem and East Rivers, and this plan would be disrupted if the Jersey sewer emptied into the bay only about a mile distant. If the Passaic Valley sewer was built as proposed, he declared, the Harlem and East River station would have to be moved several miles out to sea.

"There is plenty of room in the Meadows," Mr. Hughes said, "for a great number of scientific methods of disposal instead of insisting on this comparatively inexpensive method of pouring through a tunnel into New York Bay an immense amount of Jersey sewage simply because New York City follows that natural method."

"Has New York the right to step in and stop Jersey's scientific methods of sewage disposal when New York itself does not use any scientific methods of disposal at all?" asked Mr. Wickersham, in opening his argument.

HARDING PLAYS GOLF ON FLORIDA LINKS

Game Follows a Leisurely Progress of His Houseboat Toward Miami.

VERO, Fla., Jan. 25.—The houseboat Victoria, bearing President-elect Harding on his vacation trip, anchored off here after another day of uneventful sailing down the Indian River. She will continue her journeyv tomorrow and may reach Palm Beach by tomorrow night.

Today's run was completed in time to permit the President-elect and his companions to play eighteen holes of golf at the Vero links and take a surf bath before nightfall. Mr. Harding was welcomed at the golf club by members of the Ohio Winter colony, but in deference to his wishes plans for a formal reception in his honor were abandoned.

At the present rate of travel the Victoria should reach Miami, the southern point on her trip, by Friday. She has no fixed schedule, however, and it may be decided not to go into Miami until Saturday or Sunday.

LOSES FALSE ARREST SUIT.

Watchman Fails to Convict Ex-Police Inspector Henry and Others.

The jury before Supreme Court Justice Tierney which heard a suit of John Bohan, a private watchman, against ex-Police Inspector Dominick Henry and Detectives John J. Gunson and John Maloney for assault and false arrest, gave a verdict for the defendants last night after being out less than an hour.

Detective Gunson testified that in the raiding of a house in West Seventieth Street, which was under suspicion and in which the police believed Bohan took a hand by tipping off the proprietress, Bohan made no complaint at the police station of being assaulted or when he was arraigned in the Magistrates' court.

Ex-Inspector Henry testified that in raiding the house he was performing his duty as a police official and that his detectives did their duty when they arrested Bohan.

SHERIFF CENSURES BOARD.

Says Cut in His Budget Means Operating on $33,000.

Sheriff David H. Knott censured yesterday the approval by the New York Real Estate Board of Trade of the report of Edward P. Doyle, Bureau of Information and Research, recommending to the Board of Estimate that the Sheriff's budget for the current year be cut $150,000. The Sheriff said that if Mr. Doyle's views were adopted he would be compelled to run his office with eighty employes for $33,000.

The Sheriff pointed out that in 1920 the city appropriated $207,075, of which $40,682 was for Ludlow Street Jail. The office collected $160,552, which was paid into the city treasury, making the net cost of running the office, excluding the jail, $5,846. The office has been allowed $183,866 for this year.

SAYS EX-DETECTIVE TOOK 'HUSH MONEY'

Sing Sing Inmate Tells of Stolen Auto Dealings With Plant, Now on Trial.

PAID HIM $25 A WEEK

"I'll See You Get a Light Sentence," Said Plant, When Witness Was Arrested.

MINEOLA, L. I., Jan. 25.—Matthew O'Neill, who is serving seven and a half years in Sing Sing for receiving stolen automobiles, testified today in the trial of Carmen Plant, former county detective, that he had paid Plant $25 a week for protection. The latter is charged with conspiracy and receiving stolen goods.

When O'Neill was arrested Plant said he would fix it so that O'Neill would get a light sentence if he pleaded guilty. O'Neill said that when he first began to pay Plant the sum was fixed at $35 a week. When he protested to ex-Sheriff Harvey about the amount, Harvey spoke to Plant and the sum was reduced to $25.

"I told Plant I was talking with Sheriff Harvey," said O'Neill. "He told me he had arranged for me to do business with Plant, who said: 'Yes, I know about it; you will meet a man named Pettit.' I told Plant that Harvey had arranged for Pettit to meet me in Freeport, and I was to pay him $35 a week, and Pettit was to turn the money over to Plant. It was to protect Solano, myself and Hoffman in selling cars in Nassau County." O'Neill said Plant told him he was to meet Aubrey Pettit, former Superintendent of County Buildings, through whom the money was to be paid over.

O'Neill said they got a Buick car for Plant in 1919 and charged him $300, with the understanding that this amount should be deducted from the sum paid for protection. The car was delivered in front of the Lynbrook court house, and Plant told him not to forget to change the numbers. Mrs. Marie O'Neill testified that on the day her husband was sentenced Plant said that "it was all fixed."

TO WED HIS RESCUER.

Allan Topp Engaged to Miss Lindner, Who Saved Him From Drowning

A romance was revealed last night in the announcement of the engagement of Miss Gladys Lindner, 18 years old, daughter of Mrs. Alfred Lindner, 79 East Thirty-second Street, Flatbush, Brooklyn, to A. Allan Topp, 20 years old, formerly of Troy, N. Y., now owner of a garage in Brooklyn. The couple met last Summer in the sea at Manhattan Beach, when the young man, who had attempted to swim from Sheepshead Bay to Manhattan Beach, was seized with cramp. He was being tossed about among the rocks some distance from the beach, when he was seen by Miss Lindner, who went to his aid and succeeded in getting him ashore.

After he revived the young man escorted his rescuer to her home. He became a frequent caller and the friendship soon became love. The wedding, it was said, will take place in the Summer.

DOES NOT COVER FARMING

234,243 IN NEW YORK CITY

Automobile Trade Shows Largest Reduction of Workers, Reaching 69 Per Cent.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Figures made public today by the Employment Service of the Department of Labor indicate that there has been a decrease of 3,473,466 in the number of persons employed in industry in the United States in January, 1921, as compared with the number employed one year ago.

The service bases its calculations on "comparative information" from thirty-five States and the District of Columbia and on estimates of unemployment from the thirteen other States.

It is explained by John B. Densmore, director of the bureau which made the survey, that the estimated decrease of 3,473,466 must not necessarily be taken as meaning that that number of persons now are actually out of work. It is, he says, "quite possible" that some of those on the labor rolls a year ago are now employed on farms or in some other occupation not covered by the survey, which was confined to pursuits classed as "mechanical industry."

|---|---|
| Comparative information from thirty-five States and the District of Columbia indicates the number employed in industry January, 1920 | 9,402,000 |
| Number employed in industry January, 1921 | 6,070,648 |
| Reduction in employment | 3,331,352 |
| Estimated unemployment in Mississippi (not included above) | 35,000 |
| Estimated unemployment in Alabama (not included above) | 40,000 |
| Estimated unemployment from forty-one leading industrial centres in Arkansas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Texas, Montana, Idaho, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Nevada and Kansas | 67,114 |
| Total | 3,473,466 |

The survey goes with some detail into unemployment in various industrial centres, supplying figures as to 182 cities. The total unemployed for these cities, which have a population of 32,560,953, is put at 1,802,755 at this time. Unemployment today in New York City is estimated at 234,243.

Unemployed in New York Cities.

Buffalo, 35,000; Rochester, 18,000; Syracuse, 10,000; Schenectady, 7,000; Niagara Falls, 2,000; Troy, 8,000; Utica, 8,000; Albany, 3,500.

Unemployment in Newark, N. J., is put at 41,000; Jersey City, 15,000; Paterson, 20,000; Passaic, 12,000.

The estimate for Philadelphia is 70,000; Pittsburgh, 12,500; and Scranton, 18,000. Chicago is down for 86,000 unemployed and Detroit for 160,000. Cleveland has 81,000 unemployed; Cincinnati, 24,000; Akron, 20,000, and Toledo, 38,625.

In the cities of New England, Boston is listed as having 25,000 unemployed; Manchester, N. H., 21,000; New Bedford, Mass., 30,000; Lawrence, Mass., 14,500; Lynn, Mass., 12,000; Lowell, Mass., 11,000; Providence, R. I., 17,500; Bridgeport, Conn., 20,000, and New Haven, Conn., 10,000.

The statement of the Employment Service has this to say:

"The largest reduction is indicated in the State of Michigan, which shows 82 per cent. reduction in employment between the period of January, 1920, and January, 1921. Ohio and Indiana follow with 50 per cent. reduction; Illinois third with 44 per cent.; Connecticut, 43 per cent.; Massachusetts, 38 per cent.; New York, 28 per cent.; Wisconsin, 32 per cent., and New Jersey, 22 per cent.

Relative Importance of States.

"The relative importance of these States as to number employed in January, 1920, to the total number employed in industry in all States is as follows:

| State. | P. C. | State. | P. C. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Michigan | 7 | Massachusetts | 5 |
| Ohio | 10 | New York | 17 |
| Indiana | 3 | Wisconsin | 3 |
| Illinois | 10 | New Jersey | 5 |
| Connecticut | 2 | | |

"The largest percentage of reduction, as compared with January, 1920, in specific industries occurs in automobiles and accessories, which indicates about a 69 per cent. reduction.

"Second in rank in reduction is the building trades, with about 52 per cent. The other industries follow, with their relative importance:

| Industry. | Relative Import. Per Cent. | Reduction. Per Cent. |
|---|---|---|
| Textiles and products, clothing, hosiery and underwear | 19 | 35½ |
| Leather and its products, boots and shoes | 4 | 35 |
| Lumber, house furniture, boxes and wood products | 8 | 32 |
| Metals and products, machinery, electric goods, foundry products | 30½ | 35½ |
| Clay, glass, cement and stone products | 5 | 19 |
| Packing and food products | 11 | 19 |

"The relative importance mentioned indicates the percentage of those employed in each industry in January, 1920, to the total employed in all industry reported.

"The census report for 1910 shows 10,658,881 as the total gainfully employed in manufacturing and mechanical industries, or about 28 per cent. of the total gainfully employed (38,167,336). The reports received from District Directors of this service, covering thirty-five States and the District of Columbia, as of January, 1920, show 9,402,000 employed in industry."

Declares Figures Too Low.

The Government figures of unemployment are disputed by the American Federation of Labor, which insists that they are too low. Frank Morrison, Secretary of the Federation, said that reports received from central federations in the cities throughout the country showed that the number of the present unemployed was between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000.

Requests for information as to unemployment had been sent by the Federation to central trade union bodies in 917 cities, Mr. Morrison said, and replies had been received from 340. These replies showed that the unemployed numbered 2,334,282. From the remaining 577 cities, said Mr. Morrison, the reports, it was expected, would bring the total number of unemployed to more than 4,000,000.

Mr. Morrison asserted that unless the large employers of labor would devote themselves to evolving means of putting men to work instead of reducing wages, lengthening hours of labor and reducing standards of labor, they would find their efforts resented by the employed as well as the unemployed.

Carson Declines Premiership Of New Ulster Parliament

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, declined the Premiership of the new Ulster Parliament, which was offered him today by an Ulster deputation in London. He thanked the deputation for the honor, but said he felt his age and lacked strength to undertake the arduous duties involved. He agreed, however, for the present to accept the Chairmanship of the Ulster party in the Imperial Parliament.

It is expected that the offer of the Premiership will now be made to Sir James Craig, who represents Mid-Down in the British Parliament and is Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty, who would probably accept.

COAL WAGE PARLEYS END IN NO AGREEMENT

Anthracite Operators Assert There Will Be No Further Meetings Unless Asked by Miners.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—The joint conference of anthracite mine workers and operators, which has been discussing increases in wages, the extension of the eight-hour day and the adjustment of inequalities, said by the miners to exist, came to an end today after a two days' session without any agreement being reached. There will be no further meetings unless one is asked by the representatives of the miners, it was said.

The miners are working under an agreement signed last September. This agreement is based on the award made by the United States Wage Commission appointed last Summer by President Wilson after the operators and miners failed to reach a settlement for a new wage contract to take the place of the one that expired last Spring. The award of the commission granted the men about 17 per cent. increase in wages, and the eight-hour day for certain groups of workers. The miners had contended for a wage advance equal to that granted by a commission to bituminous miners.

With the signing of the new agreement a vacation strike was started in the hard coal fields which reduced production about 70 per cent. in September. It lasted about three weeks when the miners and operators held a meeting to adjust differences. The miners asked for ageneral increase of 18 per cent., but this was refused by the operators who agreed to adjust any inequalities that might exist and also correct any cases of injustice done under the award.

Ten days ago the miners made a new proposition asking the mine owners to extend the eight-hour day to men still working longer hours, to increase the rates to contract miners employing laborers so as to enable them to pay their laborers the full amount of the increase provided by the wage agreement, to grant proportionate increases to other contract miners equivalent to 7 per cent. and similar advances to inside men, and to restore the wage differential of outside men over the minimum rate for laborers.

It is understood the operators told the miners they could not go into all these things without opening the wage agreement, although they still stood ready to adjust individual inequalities for alleged injustices.

DECLARES SINN FEIN FOUGHT US BITTERLY

Admiral Sims Tells Boston Audience It Cost Many American Lives in War.

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—Rear Admiral William S. Sims said at a mass meeting arranged by the Loyal Coalition here tonight that to him it was inconceivable that American citizens of Irish nationality could support the Sinn Fein, "knowing what they do about them."

"How any American of Irish descent can support a party that was our implacable enemy during the war passes my understanding," the Admiral said.

Sinn Fein activities, he asserted, necessitated the diversion of vessels from the convoy of troops and of merchant ships.

"And you people here in America," the Admiral continued, "have a great many of your sons at the bottom of the sea today because we were obliged to divert those vessels and could not give adequate protection.

"We were fighting against the Germans and the Central Powers, but they were fighting in the open. They fought the submarine under the water, but that is the way to fight the submarine. The Sinn Fein were fighting us just as bitterly and behind our backs."

Characterizing many of the differences between the United States and Great Britain as "pin pricks," Admiral Sims said that, although pin pricks were usually of little consequence, sometimes they caused "blood poisoning—the poison being supplied skillfully by propaganda."

"Enough pin pricks," he added, "will make a dangerous situation. The world will not stand for another great war. Even were the world so disposed, it could not stand another great war. The nations must find a way to compose their differences."

Admiral Sims expressed the opinion that promotion of the spirit of the Allies in fighting side by side in the war depended chiefly upon Great Britain and this country taking the initiative. A permanent understanding between them, he said, "will inevitably result in peace and good will throughout the world."

"I cannot see," he went on, "that there need be any misunderstanding if we approach our inevitable commercial and other difficulties in a friendly spirit. If people can co-operate loyally under the fierce stress of national interests and personal ambitions in war, surely they can with good will co-operate in peace. In my estimation, as a student of war, a failure to co-operate with a certain degree of cordiality is a danger."

LORD MAYOR HERE.

O'Callaghan Outlines Cork's Needs to Relief Committee.

Lord Mayor O'Callaghan of Cork came here on his last visit to this city yesterday before returning home. He said he did not know just when he would leave the United States. At a meeting in the Hotel Biltmore, the Lord Mayor briefly outlined the needs of the Cork district for the American Commitee for Relief in Ireland. Other heads of Irish municipalities now in this country also told of the requirements of their districts.

O'Callaghan said that the burning of Cork had thrown about three thousand persons out of employment and that in all about seven thousand persons in Cork were unemployed. He appealed to the committee to send relief in the shape of money, and urged that it take up the question of rebuilding devastated areas in Ireland.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The State Department refused today to reverse its decision in the case of Lord Mayor O'Callaghan of Cork, when appealed to by a committee representing the American Commission for the Independence of Ireland of New Jersey.

THINKS IRISH ARMY IS BREAKING UP

SAYS IT MAY LAST A YEAR

But Is Hopeful That "Official Reprisals" Policy May End It in Less Time.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The progress made in repressing Irish outrages has been discussed by Major General Strickland, Military Governor of the martial law area of Southern Ireland, with a representative of The Evening Standard.

He says he believes the organization of the Irish Republican army is being broken up and is becoming more localized. Local bodies have now to take more responsibility than before because of the smashing of communications. With that sort of situation it is easier to deal.

"The position today," he said, "is very different from a year ago. Then the Irish Republican army had centralized headquarters in Dublin and had established communications throughout the country. Its battalion commanders had facilities for calling up whatever number of men they required from different companies for attacks on police barracks. That is no longer possible. Now we are taking their officers, local commanders here, intelligence officers there, somebody else in another place, and so on that breaks their communications."

In answer to the suggestion that last week's simultaneous attacks on police barracks in different parts of Tipperary seemed to show effective organization, the General replied that the attacks were far less formidable than formerly.

"Nothing has been accomplished by them," he said. "In all cases they are easily beaten off, and the attackers withdraw after half an hour or so. It is complimentary to suggest that the improved communication and the nobility of our patrols and reinforcements compel the early abandonment of these attacks, but I think it is due rather to lack of brawn on the other side."

General Strickland admits that small local bands may be able to carry on guerrilla warfare for a year or more if the general public does not get tired of it and assert itself. He is satisfied that the people are weary of present conditions and are also feeling a sense of growing relief from the pressure which the revolutionary organization applied to them.

Speaking of "official reprisals," the General explained that it was wrong to presume that every house within sight of am ambush was destroyed, and that no account was taken of the fact that it might easily happen that householders aware of the preparation of an ambush might have no power or time to warn the police, or might run almost certain risk of being shot if they did.

"It is only when a resident refuses to give information, as many of them do, on the ground of Republican sympathy, or is known as a Republican, that we destroy his house."

General Strickland believes that the official reprisal policy has already in some cases forced the Irish Republican Army to abandon ambushes it had begun on account of the protests of residents in the neighborhood.

COURT-MARTIAL BEGINS FOR DUBLIN KILLINGS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Jan. 25.—In the room at the City Hall where the Dublin Corporation is accustomed to hold its meetings three men were placed on trial today for their lives. They are charged with the murder of one of the officers shot on the morning of Nov. 21, when fourteen members of the forces of the Crown were killed.

The accused are Francis Teeling, William Conway and Edward Potter, all between 20 and 30 years of age. They are being tried by court-martial.

For the first time it was publicly stated that the officer whose death was the subject of the trial was living under an assumed name. Up to the present time he had been described as a Lieutenant or alternatively "Mr. McMahon," but counsel for the Crown stated that he was Lieutenant H. Angliss of the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, who "for good and sufficient reasons was living in Dublin last November under the name of McMahon."

The crime was committed at a house in Lower Mount Street. Armed men gained admission and McMahon, as he was described throughout today's proceedings, was shot while lying in bed. Incidentally, counsel related how by acute presence of mind a brother officer, sleeping in the same bed, saved his life when McMahon was shot. This officer jumped as if the bullet had struck him, too, fell and rolled beneath the bed.

This is the first of the series of court-martials to be held on the cases of the murdered officers.

A daring ambush of a police lorry was carried out near Four Courts, Dublin, tonight. Two lorries were proceeding from Kingstown and at one, which was travelling on the south side of the Liffey, three or four bombs were thrown. Immediately the police opened fire and the occupants of a lorry on the north quay came to their assistance and joined in the firing. Details are scanty, but it is stated that casualties were inflicted on five or six civilians as they were running away. There were no police casualties.

Further official information comes to hand with reference to the ambush at New Birmingham, County Tipperary, in which the Crown forces suffered eight casualties. A trench was cut across the road at the point where the ambush took place, while a wall directly in front had been loopholed. From this wall and from both sides of the road fire was concentrated on the party of military and police.

Attacked thus from three sides, the Crown forces were at a great disadvantage. They replied to the fire, however, and for half an hour there was a sharp fight. The attackers fled.

An official report states that a farmer, 65 years of age, has been found dead near his house in Bandon District, County Cork, with a bullet wound through the brain and a note pinned on his clothing, stating that he had been shot after conviction by a court-martial held on the night of Jan. 22 for intending to inform the enemy of the presence and movements of republican troops.

Some excitement was caused in the vicinity of Dublin Castle last night. A sentry at one of the inner gates thought he saw a man on the roof and opened fire. The object disappeared. As no casualty is reported it is assumed either that the sentry was too imaginative or that a cat on a nocturnal expedition has lost one of its nine lives.

CORK, Jan. 25.—Mary Bowles, about 16 years old, was tried by a court-martial today charged with being in possession of a revolver, twenty-five rounds of ammunition, an automatic pistol and a machine gun. A sturdy girl of the farming class, Mary refused to plead and maintained an attitude of indifference while police witnesses related the story of her capture.

On patrol in a lorry passing Clogheen Church, a policeman saw a girl in a field drop a large bundle, which proved to be a machine gun, wrapped in a waterproof covering. The accused appeared to be unnaturally shaped about the shoulders. Under her coat she had a steel body guard. Besides the arms, she had in her possession several documents, included a book entitled "Hotchkiss Portable Machine Gun." The finding of the court will be announced later.

White Boys' Killing of Sacred Pigeons Starts Bombay Riot and Closes Exchanges

BOMBAY, Jan. 24.—The Stock Exchange and cotton and bullion markets were closed today, and a general hartal, or religious strike, is proposed in consequence of a grave incident yesterday, attendant upon the killing of two pigeons in the street by two European boys. The natives consider pigeons sacred. A crowd of angry Indians gathered and remonstrated with the boys. The police took charge of the lads and also several Hindu boys with whom they had been fighting.

The crowd followed, demanding the release of the Hindu boys, whereupon the police charged, and scenes of intense excitement ensued. The natives stoned the police, and several persons were injured and seventeen arrested.

BRAZIL SUPPORTS WILSON ON RUSSIA

President Pessoa Approves Views Expressed in Note on Armenia.

VISIT FROM AMBASSADOR

State Department Officially Informed of the Brazilian President's Accord.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Señor Augusto Cochrane de Alencar, the Brazilian Ambassador, informed the State Department today that President Pessoa was in thorough accord with the views and policies indicated by President Wilson in the telegram addressed to President Hymans of the League of Nations assembly, on Jan. 18, regarding Armenia.

Brazil is the first great power to respond immediately to the appeal of the President for an agreement to refrain from armed action against Russia and for a compact between the powers for the preservation of Russia's territorial integrity.

The decision of the American Government to stand by Russia has been most favorably received by Russian liberal leaders, anti-Bolshevists spokesmen, Russian exiles in this country and Europe, and is expected to give great impetus to the work of the Russian Liberal Conference now in session at Paris. It is the confident belief of Government officials that it will also have a widespread and beneficent effect upon the peasant and other anti-Bolshevist masses throughout Russia, as soon as the note's contents become known within Bolshevist territory.

All the best confidential reports to the State Department regarding conditions inside Russia are construed as showing that the masses are anti-Bolshevist. They are also strongly opposed to foreign aggression, imperialistic or otherwise. If Russia is not threatened with partition or invasion it is believed the masses will have an opportunity to react properly and naturally against the Soviet régime.

The State Department's information reveals that the peasant population, which is being looked to as the backbone of the Russian Liberal movement for the redemption of their nation, is managing its own rural affairs without much serious interference from the Bolsheviki, while the city population, especially in Moscow and Petrograd, has been hit hard by the miserable economic conditions precipitated by the Soviet attempt to saddle its communist experiment upon the people.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 24.—In a wireless message to Foreign Minister Bekzadian of Armenia, part of which was picked up, Nikolai Lenin, Russian Soviet Premier, is quoted by Armenian sources as saying: "For the present Armenian territorial aspirations must be sacrificed to the interest of world revolution."

The Armenian Foreign Minister had complained to the Moscow administration that the country's condition had become worse since the establishment of a Soviet Government, and asked that Bolshevist troops protect Armenia against bands overrunning the country. Lenin refused the request but promised to send food supplies.

Mixed Up in Plot to Murder Lithuanian Government, It Is Charged.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 25.—A special dispatch from Helsingfors to the Berlingske Tidende says it is now proved that the arrested terrorists at Kovno, who were planning to murder the Lithuanian Government, have been closely associated with the Russian Soviet Representative Axelrod, who tried to bring about the coup. The papers demand that he be expelled.

According to the same dispatch Russian and Ukrainian troops of the garrison of Kiev have mutinied, and with the railwaymen have driven the Soviet troops and commissaries out of the town. Peasants joined in the revolt, taking the suburbs.

RED TROOPS REVOLT NEAR LETTISH BORDER

Similar Outbreaks Reported in Other Districts—Moscow Denies Kiev Mutiny Rumor.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Soviet Russian troops at Opotshka, near the Lettish frontier, have mutinied and killed several commissars, says a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Copenhagen quoting advices from Riga. The uprising is said to have been quelled by force, but similar disturbances are declared to have been reported from other districts. They are said to have been due to the fact that the soldiers are hungry and ill-clad.

Enforced requisitions upon villages in that district, it is asserted, have caused rioting among civilians.

Another Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen quotes Finnish newspapers to the effect that a number of secret organizations are systematically preparing for a new rebellion in Finland with the object of enabling the proletariat to assume power with the help of troops from Russia.

The Minister of Home Affairs, adds the message, has refused any information on the subject, but admits that a grave situation exists.

A wireless dispatch from Moscow today says there is no truth in Helsingfors advices received in Copenhagen to the effect that part of the Kiev garrison mutinied recently, seized several strategic points and compelled the Soviet troops to withdraw after sanguinary encounters.

GIOLITTI OUTLINES INDUSTRIAL PLAN

It Gives Workers in Most Trades Sole Membership in Control Boards.

BOARDS OF MASTERS, TOO

Latter Are Permitted to Name an Equal Number of Representatives for Negotiation.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Jan. 25.—Ever since the memorable factory-seizing campaign in Italy the industrial world of both hemispheres has been waiting to know precisely in what way the Giolitti Government would redeem its pledges to the workers for joint control of the larger industries.

The full text of the Government's bill for establishing and consecrating the principle of control was finally given to the press tonight. Nowhere in the bill is the much debated term "control" formally defined.

Its objects, however, are explained as aiming at familiarizing the workers with the conditions in which industries live, move and have their being; bettering the technical instruction of workers and their moral and economic status within the limits permitted by the conditions in which the manufacturers carry on their task; insuring the execution of the whole body of laws framed for the protection of the working classes; facilitating betterment in methods of production, with a view to making production itself more fruitful and economical, and rendering more and more normal and peaceful the relations between the givers and the undertakers of labor.

Now, what about active control? Active control means that the workers' commissioners will have the right to be supplied with all necessary data for understanding thoroughly the methods adopted in buying, for understanding cost prices in production, as well as administrative and executive methods, excepting whatever depends on the secrets of manufacture. They will also have the right to know how a firm's capital is constituted; what are its real profits; what are the salaries of employes; how the laws safeguarding those employes are observed and enforced, and everything regarding the system of taking on fresh hands or discharging them.

Factories employing fewer than sixty workers are excluded from the proposed regulations; so, too, are brand-new ventures and infant concerns that have not yet attained their fourth birthday anniversary. State-worked industries, such as railways, mines and tobacco manufacture, are likewise exempt; but, outside these few exceptions, the principle of control is instituted separately for each kind of industry, and emphatically so in those handling iron, steel and machinery; in textile, chemical and electrical industries; in mines and quarries other than those Government owned; in land and water transport; in building trades, and in hotel and allied interests.

In drawing the articles in the bill affecting the formation of joint commissions and the participation of workingmen in these bodies Giolitti seems to have profited by the proposals lately put forward for British industrial reconstruction by the Manchester new Liberal school, the embodiment of which in Professor Ramsay Muir's book has intensely interested him.

Workers who belong to each category of the larger industries, and who have reached their majority, will elect on a proportional system a Commission of Control, comprising nine members. Six of these members will be chosen by the rank and file, and the remaining three by the engineers, higher employes and technical managers engaged in that particular industry.

For each factory or workshop contemplated in the bill, whether it be in the hands of a limited liability company or depend upon sleeping partners or private traders, the commission will delegate two or more workers, according to the size of the establishment, to exercise control and furnish the commission with reports.

The manufacturers, or, more accurately, the industrialists, in each branch of industry will in similar fashion nominate ther own Commission of Nine for the requisite negotiations with the Commissions of Control for forcing the industrial masters to conform to the law or for the purpose of choosing two representatives to attend the Control Commission meeting.

Labor bureaus are to be set up under the joint management of employers and employed. Political considerations must never be allowed to influence the engagement or dismissal of the staff, special regulations for which will be determined after the Board of Trade approval for each separate industry. But any firm may refuse the re-engagement of persons who have undergone heavy sentences for common crimes or have been dismissed from work for grave breaches of discipline.

Should reduction of the staff become imperative, no workers can be turned adrift until the working week shall have been reduced to thirty-six hours, and as subsequent endeavor, if necessary, shall have been made to divide the available work among the empolyes in turn. When methods of this sort proves insufficient to meet the crisis the senior and married members of the staff must enjoy preferential treatment.

All controversies arising from these courses are to be decided, without appeal, by two arbiters chosen from either side, under the Presidency of a third persons selected by the workmen's delegates, or nominated, in case of disagreement, by the President of the tribunal.

From the hurried inquiries which I made tonight I find the factory owners fiercely opposed to the extent of control outlined above. Many declare that they will go into liquidation rather than submit to the provisions of the bill.

SENATORS ARE TOLD OF YAP DEADLOCK

LATTER'S STAND CRITICISED

Lack of Written Agreement, Senators Believe, Does Not Justify Retention of Former German Cable.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Concerned over the insistence of Japan upon retaining sole possession of the former German cables in the Pacific, Norman H. Davis, Acting Secretary of State, went voluntarily before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations today and brought the situation to the committee's attention. After he had given his testimony, which was made to include other questions of Japanese-American relations, members of the committee showed that they shared the State Department's feeling, and some of them expressed an inclination to have the Government adopt measures to indicate its dissatisfaction with Japan's course.

One of the suggestions made informally after the testimony of Mr. Davis had been heard was that the United States publish the entire record of the Yap transactions in order to show that the United States had acted in good faith, but had failed o legalize its rights by documentary agreement. Japan, it was declared, had taken advantage of the absence of documentary proof.

While his original purpose was to confine his statement to the Pacific cables, Mr. Davis's testimony took a wide range, due to close questioning by members of the the committee. Senator Knox was particularly insistent upon knowing the intimate details of the killing of Lieutenant Langdon of the United States Navy by a Japanese soldier at Vladivostok, and many of the inquiries were directed to ascertaining why Japan continued to hold Vladisovtok and Eastern Siberia under military control. Mr. Davis was questioned also as to the Japanese seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railroad.

British Position Discussed.

The British Government's part in the controversy was also brought into the examination of the Acting Secretary. In the course of his testimony Mr. Davis produced correspondence with Great Britain regarding Japanese retention of exclusive control over the German cable station in the Island of Yap. This showed that the British Government held that, as there was no written evidence that the United States had served notice at the Peace Conference that it reserved the right to object to Japanese sole control of the Yap cable, Great Britain was disposed to regard Japan's claim to exclusive control as valid. It was brought out also that Great Britain had joined with Japan in bringing this matter to the attention of the League of Nations at its recent meeting at Geneva and that the League had confirmed Japan's claim to exclusive control. The State Department has not verified this statement. Its position is that as the German islands in the Pacific were ceded to the allied and associated powers by the treaty of Versailles, these islands and German property upon them cannot be disposed of without the consent of the United States, one of the allied and associated powers.

Acting Secretary Davis produced today before the Foreign Relations Committee some of the minutes of the Paris peace conference, including minutes of the council of the five great powers. It came out incidentally that the State Department did not possess a complete record of the proceedings of the peace conference, minutes of many of the sessions of the so-called Council of Four never having been obtained.

An examination of the minutes produced served to show that the council had discussed reservations made by President Wilson to Japanese control of the Island of Yap cable, but the Acting Secretary was not able to produce any evidence that this reservation had been made in writing or preserved in any formal way. In this connection resort was had to the transcript of the stenographic record of President Wilson's conference with the members of the Committee on Foreign Relations on Aug. 19, 1919, shortly after his return from Paris. In that conference the President had stated that as Yap was one of the bases and centres of cable and radio communication in the Pacific he had made the point in the peace conference "that the disposition or rather control of that island should be reserved for the general conference which is to be held in regard to the ownership and operation of cables."

The President added that "the subject is mentioned and disposed of in this treaty (the Versailles Treaty) and that general cable conference is to be held." The verbatim report continues:

Senator Moses—Was the stipulation that that should be reserved for the consideration of the cable conference a formally signed protocol?

The President—No, it was not a formally signed protocol, but we had a prolonged and interesting discussion on the subject and nobody has any doubt as to what was agreed upon.

International Control Our Demand.

The Acting Secretary of States gave an outline of the position of the Government with respect to the future of Yap and its cable station. This was that Yap should be internationalized and must be used as an international cable landing station and not under the control of any one power. The American understanding was that the status of Yap would be determined along with the settlement of other cable questions by the International Communications Conference which met in Washington recently. President Wilson, Mr. Davis informed the committee, had said that he was not willing that Yap should belong to a single power. It was true, he said, that Japan and Great Britain had had an interchange of letters by which Great Britain supported Japan's claims to possession of the islands in the Pacific north of the equator.

Since the Communications Conference adjourned without coming to an agreement on the Yap cable question Great Britain and Japan had reached an agreement in regard to mandates growing out of the Peace Treaty. It was brought out that in the Communications Conference the Japanese delegates made the point that there was nothing in the Peace Conference record to show that the United States had made a stipulation in writing that it reserved rights in the Yap cable.

The attention of the committee was called to the fact that Mr. Balfour recently informed the House of Commons that an agreement had been made between the allied powers respecting Class C mandates and that this agreement had been submitted to the Council of the League of Nations at Geneva on Dec. 17 and approved. According to unofficial reports, which the State Department has not verified, the agreement gives to Japan the right to apply Japanese laws to all the German Pacific islands north of the Equator, including Yap.

Japan is understood to contend that as her laws provide for ownership and control of all means of communication in Japanese possessions by the Japanese Government, exclusively, the cable landing at Yap must be administered solely by the Japanese Government.

Some of the Republican members of the committee were disposed to criticise President Wilson for having failed to make a stipulation in writing concerning his reservation in regard to Yap and its cable station. At the same time, it was said, there was a very general feeling in the committee, shared by Republicans and Democrats, that the Japanese Government had not acted in good faith in its insistence that the failure of the President to produce a written record of his reservation relieved Japan from any obligation to consent to American participation in the disposition of the Yap cable.

Earned His Living by Slipping on Banana Peels

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 25.—Banana peels, which Frank Smith, of Philadelphia, says have netted him "easy money," today landed him in jail for six months. He was arrested yesterday in the offices of the Public Service Railway Company here, where he presented a damage claim for injuries sustained in a trolley car on Sunday night when he slipped on a banana peel. His insistence that his claim be settled out of court aroused suspicion.

The police say they learned that Smith had presented similar claims against the Philadelphia and Reading Railway and the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company. He is alleged to have admitted he worked with a companion who preceded him into the cars and dropped the peel, and that he had worked the scheme in many cities.

WELSH LIBERALS FIGHT LLOYD GEORGE

DROP COALITION CANDIDATE

Champion of the Anti-Lloyd George Liberals Put Up Against Premier's Secretary.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—A political sensation has been created today by a rebuff which Premier Lloyd George has received in his own territory. The Cardigan Liberals have refused to accept as their candidate in the forthcoming by-election the coalition candidate, Captain Ernest Evans, and have nominated instead Llewellyn Williams, a champion of the anti-Lloyd George Liberals.

When the vacancy occurred it was assumed that the seat would go to Evans as a matter of course. He is one of the Premier's private secretaries and a former member of Parliament. M. L. Vaughan-Davies, who has received a peerage, was returned by the constituency in 1918 unopposed.

It looked as if Evans would not even have to fight for the election. Moreover he had been "nursing" the constituency for some time. However, the Independent Liberals in Wales have been growing restive with the coalition policy for some months, and Llewellyn Williams had the courage to voice their dissatisfaction publicly and vehemently before the Premier's face in a speech which he made at Llandudno on Oct. 9, in the course of Lloyd George's Welsh tour. Since that time he has been a prime mover in forming the new Welsh Liberal Federation.

Captain Evans, it is stated, will run in spite of his rejection by the Cardigan Liberals, and consequently a contest of extraordinary interest and great importance as far as Lloyd George's political future is concerned is now in prospect.

MAY OPEN A NEW ERA IN TELEGRAPH SERVICE

Norwegian Invention Said to Reproduce Photographically at Any Distance.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—A Christiania dispatch to the London Times says:

"The morning newspapers here publish detailed accounts of the demonstration given at Sandefjord on Saturday of an important improvement in telegraphy invented by Hermod Petersen, chief manager of the radio department of the telegraph service.

"This invention, in the opinion of experts, will revolutionize telegraphy. It is the result of four years' work and consists of a new system based on the alternating current instead of the continuous current system hitherto used.

"One of the many benefits which this invention is expected to bring is a big reduction in the number of operators needed. It is estimated that work which now requires 117 of the best operators in Norway could be done by sixteen. The new system eliminates errors of any kind and reproduces with photographic accuracy at practically unlimited distances all sorts of handwriting, type, drawings and photographs."

An expert is quoted as saying that by using the Petersen system a New York newspaper would be able to reproduce a column from a London contemporary within ten minutes.

FRENCH COURT USHER HELD AS BRIBE-TAKER

Remark by Old Woman Leads to Inquiry and Discovery of 27,000 Franc Hoard in His Home.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—"I didn't give him enough," sighed an old woman in a Paris police court some days ago when the Public Prosecutor demanded that the judgment passed on her son should be upheld. "Didn't give who enough?" asked the presiding Judge, who had overheard, and the old woman pointed to the prosecutor. There was a scene, and explanations were demanded. The honor of the legal profession had to be upheld, and the old woman was severely questioned. The only reply she could give, however, was that Monsieur Henri had promised for consideration of 200 francs to use his personal influence with the Judge, and for another 200 francs had promised that the public prosecutor would show leniency.

Who Monsieur Henri could be puzzled the Judge for some days. Then another magistrate heard the same story of how Monsieur Henri had promised for a consideration in cash to produce a postponement of a case.

The inquiry became more searching, and yesterday Monsieur Henri was arrested. When the news spread through the law courts it caused a sensation, for Monsieur Henri turned out to be a most respectable and popular usher in the Palais de Justice. For twenty years he had held his position except for the years of war, when he won promotion from Corporal to Lieutenant.

Apparently his kindness of disposition led him astray. Relatives of accused people were always coming to him asking him to help, and Henri found it only too easy to let them suppose he could if properly handled. When the police searched his house they found a little hoard of 27,000 francs, which certainly represented more than he could possibly have saved from his pay.

All that he ever did, he declared, was to get little tips for arranging times at which a case would be heard, but the honor of French justice has been touched, and it looks hard for Monsieur Henri even though he is so popular.

BRINDELL SAFES DEFEAT LOCKSMITH

Expert Quits With Bleeding Hands After Four-Hour Attempt to Open Them.

ANOTHER WILL TRY TODAY

THREE WITNESSES HEARD

House Wrecker Describes His Effort to Get a Receipt From Alleged Extortioner.

The two steel safes removed yesterday from the office of Robert P. Brindell, Chairman of the Building Trades Council, to the Criminal Court Building, did not yield up their contents despite the attempt of John Girouard, an expert for the Mosler Safe Company, who gave up the task of opening them after four hours' work.

The prosecution in the case of Brindell, on trial before Justice McAvoy on a charge of extortion, will call in another expert today in the hope that they may learn whether the minute books and cash books of the Council are in the safes.

The safes reached the Criminal Court Building shortly before 2 o'clock. Girouard and L. B. Morris, manager of the Mosler Safe Company, were on hand and the expert began work at once. Girouard got down on his knees and worked at the combination until his knuckles bled. At 6 o'clock he reported that he was "all in" and said the only way to open the safes would be to blow them open.

Intimation that the safes were empty were received by the men who moved them from the Council's office at 13 St. Mark's Place. The movers inquired about hoisting the safes out of the window by a block and tackle when one of the Council's members said: "You are fine safe movers. We have men here who will hoist them on their backs and go downstairs smoking a pipe. Those safes are empty. Give them a shake and see."

Robert C. Whiting, in charge of labor for the George A. Fuller Company; Herman Clompoos, a house wrecker, and Joseph H. Goldblatt, a house wrecker, were witnesses at the trial yesterday, and repeated substantially the stories they told before the Lockwood committee.

Tells of Brindell Threat.

Whiting told of how William Waixel, a house wrecker, was forced to discharge wreckers in the Zaranko union and engage inexperienced Building Trades Council men. Brindell threatened that if Waixel were not dismissed he would call a strike on every job the Fuller Company had under contract in the United States, the witness said. The labor leader also threatened to have the Fuller Company tear down "every pound of steel" in the Metropolitan Life Annex because it was put up by non-union men.

Goldblatt was extremely cautious in his dealings with Richard Pike and John Chapman, delegates of the Council, to whom he paid $2,000, so that the men whom they called on strike at 121 West 145th Street might be permitted to return to work. He demanded a receipt for the money, and when the delegates refused it he complained to Brindell, who told him to "be quick about it," and that he was "getting off cheap," and, anyway, it was a "measly sum," he testified.

When he drew the $2,000 from the bank he got the paying teller to note on a slip of paper the numbers of the bills. In making out the check, which he cashed personally, he endorsed it with the words "Labor Council" and made it payable to the Council. After paying the money the men returned to work.

Says Council Framed Him.

On cross-examination by Martin W. Littleton the witness told of being dismissed from the Building Trades Employers Association in 1914 on a charge of hiring non-union sheet metal workers. He declared the charges to be a "frame-up."

Herman Clompoos, a house wrecker, on direct examination by Samuel Untermyer, told of paying Brindell $1,000 in two payments of $500 each and $200 for "permission" cards for his workmen. There were twenty men and the cards were $10 each. The money was paid after he had two strikes which were "rather painful, almost an agony." He paid the money, he said, so that he could get workingmen from Brindell.

The trial will continue this morning at 10 o'clock. The case for the prosecution will probably be concluded today and the defense will present witnesses for Brindell.

It is believed that the indictment is against ten cut stone contractors in the Bronx, said to belong to one of "the Hettrick groups." The charge is said to be violation of the Donnelly anti-trust law.

FRIEDLANDER MURDER CLUE.

Auto in Which He Was Slain With Dr. Cantor in Ukraine Is Found.

WARSAW, Jan. 25 (Jewish News Bureau).—An important clue to the murder of Professor Israel Friedlander and the Rev. Dr. Bernard Cantor, the American relief agents, last July has been discovered in the concentration camp near Warsaw where a remnant of Petlura's army is interned. Among the effects of the Ukrainian chief's army was found the automobile in which the murdered Americans were riding through Kamenetz-Podolsk when they were shot down.

The automobile was brought to Warsaw today and turned over to the local representatives of the American Joint Distribution Committee. It is expected that a new investigation will be begun which will fix definitely responsibility for the crime.

SPINACH POISONS TWENTY.

Two Dead, Three Dying in Michigan From Eating Preserved Vegetable.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 25.—Two persons, a nurse and an orderly, are dead at Blodgett Hospital, here. Three others are dying and several more are in a critical condition as a result, hospital authorities believe, of eating preserved spinach last Saturday night.

Twenty nurses and hospital attaches partook of the spinach at noon Saturday. All are said to have shown signs of poisoning. Following an analysis of the poison, a special serum was ordered from the medical institute of the University of Illinois.

An investigation has been started by local health authorities.

MUSIC

By Richard Aldrich

The Chicago Orchestra.

A large part of the musical apparatus of Chicago was in New York yesterday. Besides the Opera Company that was playing in the Manhattan Opera House, with its gifted directrix leading the cast, the Chicago Orchestra gave a concert in Carnegie Hall on the first Eastern trip it has taken in a good many years.

It was under the direction of its conductor, Frederick A. Stock, who, since his promotion to the post he now occupies on the death of Theodore Thomas, founder of the Chicago organization, has become one of the most distinguished as well as one of the most unassuming of conductors, and has put his orchestra in a position second to none in this country. He amply demonstrated this last evening, and left no doubt that the Chicago Opera Company is one thing and the Chicago Orchestra quite another.

The program, which was somewhat too long and comprehensive, was made up of Brahms's third symphony—a choice grateful to music lovers who have heard much of the other three symphonies in recent seasons and very little of this one—Tschaikovsky's symphonic fantasia, "Francesca da Rimini"; Arnold Bax's symphonic poem, "The Garden of Fand," and Strauss's tone poem, "Death and Transfiguration." The natural and inevitable desire of a visiting conductor giving a single concert to display as many as possible of the best points of his orchestra is no doubt responsible in part for the composition of the program. Thus Tschaikovsky's fantasia calls for virtuoso playing by the orchestra and demands unusual ability on the part of several of the chairs; but it no longer deeply interests and has begun to show somewhat the ravages of time.

The orchestra was disclosed as a remarkably fine body of players, and quite sustained its high reputation. Its tone as a whole is beautiful in quality, in mellowness and richness, in balance. The strings have a golden beauty and transparency of tone. The wood winds are delicious in their purity, their finish and finesse; especially the flutes and clarinets. Such clarinet playing as came forth in the little solo passage in Tschaikovsky's symphonic poem is not too frequently heard. So, too, are the brasses good, though not quite so distinguished. The first horn's solo passages showed an excellent tone and style.

The performance of Brahms's symphony was deeply musical in its conception, beautifully finished in the execution; a true exposition of the composer's thought, in its fire, its romantic tenderness and poesy, its richness of imagination. The conductor went hand in hand with the composer, seeking no "effects," but by skillful balancing, subordination and emphasis of the several choirs showing forth the depth and richness of Brahms's instrumentation as it should sound. There was much beauty in the phrasing throughout, and especially in the "Poco Allegretto" movement. Some may have been perplexed at a certain few moments by what seemed to be an interruption of the melodic line, a momentary loss of the "melos," and could only wonder why, in a performance otherwise so profoundly felt.

"The Garden of Fand," heard for the first time in New York, is one of the very few works of Arnold Bax that have been played in New York or in this country. It is but a few weeks since another of his Celtic pieces was given here by the Boston Orchestra, "In the Fairy Hills." Like that, this is concerned with some of the supernatural lore of Ireland.

"The Garden of Fand" is the sea itself, on which human voyagers are borne to the shores of a miraculous island where "unhuman revelry" continues, and Fand sings her song of immortal love claiming the souls of her human listeners till the sea rises and overwhelms the whole island, and the people of Sidhe, riding in rapture on the waves, mock the fate of the rash mortal.

The music finely depicts the atmosphere of enchantment, the "sky of amethyst and pearl," the "ridges of green and golden waves," in its iridescent coloring and subtle harmonization, its persuasive thematic unfolding. Mr. Bax is a modern and adventures into the midst of subtle dissonances and seeks atmosphere and color more than the clear treatment of theme. But he is guided incessantly by a feeling for beauty. His music is pregnant with suggestion. It is unfortunately too long for its substance, and it would say more and more pertinently if it said it more briefly.

The performance was delicately luminous in its reproduction of the composer's musical coloring. It did, too, quite all that was to be expected of it in Tschaikovsky's "Francesca di Rimini." There have been, perhaps, more thunderous performances, that made more of the sensational features of the work, but few that translated them into more musical language.

The audience was large, and soon found occasion to manifest enthusiasm. There was much applause after every number, and more than once Mr. Stock made his men rise and share it with him.

The National Symphony Orchestra.

At the concert of the National Symphony Orchestra given yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall Mr. Mengelberg presented a program comprising Cherubini's overture to "Anacreon," Tschaikowsky's fifth symphony and Liszt's piano concerto, played by Ignaz Friedman. The audience did not fill the hall completely, but it was roused to great enthusiasm by the performance of Tschaikowsky's symphony. Especially after the second movement, the Andante Cantabile, and again at the close of the symphony, it burst into an uproar of applause and even bravos, of a sort not often occasioned by a symphony concert.

And, in truth, the performance was a remarkably fine one, of great eloquence, as splendid and sonorous in its larger proportions as it was finished and ornate in detail. Mr. Mengelberg had indeed elaborated his reading to the furthest limits in the molding of phrase, the adjustment of the finer shades of dynamics, the subtle differences, the retardations and accelerations of tempo.

The music, of course, yields itself with open arms to such treatment, through its very substance and texture, and it has always been favorite material in which conductors may develop to the fullest degree that "certain license" that the composer prescribes in the slow movement and implicitly suggests through the whole. Mr. Mengelberg had brought his orchestra to the point of responding flexibly to the flexibility of his reading. He wreaked himself upon the music and the result was a performance of stirring power and impressiveness.

It may be that there was the less opportunity to prepare scrupulously the accompaniment to Mr. Friedman's performance of Liszt's concerto. Mr. Mengelberg has before this given some excellent accompaniments. Yesterday there was something of confusion in the whole effect of Mr. Friedman's performance and the orchestral background. He played, on the whole, brilliantly, not with wholly impeccable accuracy, with relentless power in the fortissimo passages and great delicacy in the pianissimo; with much capriciousness of rhythm and tempo—a capriciousness that is no doubt justified, at least in part, by the character and spirit of the composition, but which added considerably to the difficulty of a closely following accompaniment.

Levitzki Plays With Letz Quartet.

The Letz Quartet gave a second subscription evening of chamber music last night in Aeolian Hall, repeating on this occasion the Italian Malipiero's "Rispetti e Strombotti," a prize work of the Berkshire Festival last year. The Messrs. Letz, Harmati, Kreiner and Shuk were also heard in an "allegro assai" of a posthumous quartet by Schubert, and Mischa Levitzki assisted in the piano quartet in A, op. 26, of Brahms. The program was enjoyed by a keenly musical house.

MARY GARDEN GETS OVATION AS VANNA

MURATORE AS PRINZIVALLE

French Conductor, Henri Morin, Shares With Stars Many Recalls After Second Act.

Welcome to a victorious French wing of Chicago's songbirds, now at the Manhattan to sing till March, was extended last evening by the Tuesday subscribers, the only opera audience of this one night, whereas there will be "double opera" all the rest of the week. The opera was "Monna Vanna," but that fact was of only mild interest now. It was a great home-coming at the revived house of Hammerstein and of his prophet, Mary Garden. Here she had begun long ago the first campaign for all that part of modern French art that this town yet owes to the enterprise of Oscar. It was on Tuesday nights, the "French nights" of later custom, that the Chicagoans had also come back to New York after the Hammerstein hegira, and had shown here still more of their Parisian spectacles, once appearing as the Metropolitan's own guests in "Monna Vanna," never repeated there, but thrice again at the Lexington, and new to the old Manhattan home last evening. The event was more like a "first night" than second of a gala season.

Miss Garden as impresario for the first time presented herself as star, perhaps the first woman in the world to fill both rôles of manager and singer simultaneously. To her critics of the past, she sang with what was, at any rate, a new voice, the voice of authority. To her warmest admirers it was still true as an axiom that "Our Mary can act anything." What leading figure in musical or spoken drama, indeed, had made a name more firmly associated in the popular mind as "playing many parts" than had Mary Garden in the years she had drawn around her "interesting personality," like a slender cloak of many colors, the characters of Thaïs, Louise and Melisande, of Salome and Sapho, Gretchen and Griselidis, to name no more? Miss Garden has made more than her personality "interesting." She has considerably and consistently made opera interesting, contemporaneous, a thing of the present century. She was never a more commanding, more supple, lithe, electrifying figure, than on her reappearance now as Pisa's leaning tower of virtue triumphant, not without temptations, in a mystic poet's vision of old Italian wars.

Fevrier's "Monna Vanna" was first sung in New York on Feb. 17, 1914, in the fourth season of the then combined Chicago-Philadelphia company's visits to the Metropolitan Opera House. It had had an American premiere the previous December in Boston at the hands of the Boston Opera Company, and in the interval had been produced by the Metropolitan's so-called ally in both Philadelphia and Chicago. When the independent Western organization began its annual seasons here at the Lexington it opened on Jan. 23, 1918, with "Monna Vanna," repeating it once again that season and once in the following year, Jan. 30, 1919. Last night's performance was thus only the fifth time in New York.

The large audience rose in quick popular tumult and the orchestra men played a "tusch" when Miss Garden entered the stage as Vanna, evidently struggling, without being ungracious, not to step "out of the picture," which she was later able to do in good conscience at the first act's end in half a dozen curtain calls. Baklanoff and Cotreuil were admirable as the sombre husband and the father-in-law, once sung by Marcoux and Huberdeau.

In the tropical tent scene of Act II. there returned with Garden herself the tenor, Muratore, remembered after several years as a Prinzivalle of much poetic tenderness in the chivalrous hero's reminiscence of Vanna's childhood. The rôle, indeed, brings out the gentler qualities of his voice better than some others he sings. His reserve best deserved applause, which, however, was not lacking when he took some top notes shading a falsetto.

A new and active French conductor, Henri Morin, deservedly shared with Garden and Muratore the prolonged recalls after the second act, and there were more when the opera ended, briefly and imaginatively as does the play, without a "last act" that Maeterlinck wrote for Fevrier, but which has never been included here. Minor parts in the cast were taken by the Messrs. Paillard, Nicolay, Contesso and Defrere, and Mr. Coini staged the revival.

Many Metropolitan stars were in the Manhattan's audience, as also were Albert Wolff, the French conductor there; President H. H. Flagler of the Symphony Society and others representative of social and musical New York.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Lydia Lopokova, the Russian dancer, will appear in "The Rose Girl," opening at the Ambassador on Feb. 7. The dancer, who has been abroad for several years, is now aboard the Aquitania, bound for New York.

Van Hoven, an American vaudeville performer who has been appearing in England since 1915, will appear at the Palace next week. Dorothy Jardon will also be on the Palace program next week.

Eugene O'Neill's "The Emperor Jones" will begin an engagement at the Princess Theatre on Saturday night. In the meantime it will be acted tomorrow and Friday afternoons at the Selwyn, as announced.

Margaret Wycherly has been engaged for the leading role in "Evind of the Hills," which will be offered at the Greenwich Village Theatre for a series of matinees, beginning next Tuesday. The cast will also include Arthur Hohl, E. G. Robinson and Byron Beasley.

"The Broken Wing" has been novelized by Charles W. Goddard, co-author of the play, and will soon be published.

AN ALPHABET OF APPROVAL
HAPGOOD TO WIGGIN.
NORMAN HAPGOOD—"Miss Lulu Bett" is literature and at the same time it is good strong drama. High comedy, the comedy of character, truly and superbly drawn, is scarce and the theatre offers no finer appeal than that kind of comedy of the mind and heart.
W. E. HILL—I fear I shall be sorely tempted to borrow right and left from "Miss Lulu Bett" and her relatives for "Among Us Mortals."
JOHN HAYNES HOLMES—I enjoyed every moment of it.
MADGE KENNEDY—An amazing experience in the theatre. I liked it tremendously.
THOMAS W. LAMONT—I have seen it twice and have been immensely taken with the play. The cast is an excellent one all around.
RING W. LARDNER—MISS "Lulu Bett" is bad advice. I'm glad I didn't.
EDWIN MARKHAM—The sentiment is fine, the humor contagious. A wholly delightful two hours.
SAMUEL MERWIN—I was enthusiastic from beginning to end.
CHARLES MERZ—I liked it better than "Enter Madame."
ALICE DUER MILLER—Who says a book can't be dramatized?
WILLIAM LYON PHELPS—Those who enjoy life will enjoy this play. It is full of vitality, full of comedy and tragedy.
JOHN S. PHILLIPS—It is a good play, fresh and interesting; a little masterpiece of acting; a fine example of directing and stage managing.
ANNE RITTENHOUSE—I loved every minute of it.
TED ROBINSON (In The Cleveland Plain Dealer)—The best thing in New York is "Lulu Bett."
EUGENE SPEICHER—I liked it better than "Enter Madame."
IDA TARBELL—I was enthusiastic from the first to the last moment.
HERBERT B. SWOPE—The kind of a play that having seen once, nearly everybody will want to see again.
LOUIS UNTERMEYER—That rare thing: A true rendering of the book —and what a book!
GILDA VARESI—I would give ten years of my life to have written "Lulu Bett." It is a perfect thing.
OSWALD GARRISON VILLARD—A wholly delightful comedy.
WILLIAM ALLFIN WHITE—A great American comedy—the drama of the new woman who would rather be the beloved mistress than the neglected wife.
KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN—I cannot tell you how I liked it, and I have seen it twice.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Movement of Stocks Again Irregular—Advance in Foreign Exchange Halts.

The halt in the upward movement of foreign exchange—practically the first check to the progressive rise which has occurred for ten days—attracted the greater share of Wall Street's interest yesterday. This reaction began after sterling had made a further advance to $3.80¼, the highest of the month; a rate which represented a total rise of 5 cents within a week and of 27½ thus far in the New Year. It closed unchanged from Monday. Other exchanges, however, as a rule drifted lower all day; in the end the rate on Paris sold about ⅝ cent below Monday's closing.

Wall Street was disposed to ascribe the reaction to the published statement of the French Financial Commissioner in this city, to the effect that the predicted $100,000,000 French Government loan was a matter of rumor only, and that "there is no necessity for such an operation at the present time." This statement may have influenced the market; but as a matter of fact the recent pace of the upward movement in exchange, and the evidence of accumulating speculation for the rise in the past few days, had made reaction probable in any case. It has also been well enough known that the French negotiations had not passed the tentative stage. Possibly the Paris financiers believe that more favorable terms may be obtained by waiting until the American money market has adjusted itself somewhat further to the new conditions.

Yesterday's stock market presented the now familiar mixture of isolated advances and declines; the only movement which could be attached to current news being the sharp advance at the opening in both stocks and bonds of the street railway companies, followed in the later trading by the loss of most or all of the earlier gains. The advance was obviously in response to Governor Miller's message on the traction situation, which was undoubtedly encouraging to all who hope for intelligent handling of this complicated question instead of the stupid reiteration of catchwords with which our City Administration discusses it.

The Governor's public recognition of the fact that "the water has already been squeezed out of the securities and that the companies are now earning fixed charges," is important as clearing the ground for wider discussion, and the unlucky holders of traction stocks and bonds may possibly be comforted by his assertion that "the market value of outstanding securities is undoubtedly much below the intrinsic value of the properties represented." It is likely, however, that Wall Street was disappointed at the absence of flat recommendation for a higher passenger fare, and by the uncertainties involved in the proposal for a unified system not only devoid of opportunity for speculative profit but so adjusted that "profitable parts of the system" should "maintain the unprofitable." We are likely to hear a good deal more of this general plan, however.

The earnings statement of the United States Steel Corporation for the closing quarter of 1920 was not given out until after the Stock Exchange was closed. It was in most regards in line with expectations. Except for the preceding quarter, the period's net earnings were the largest since the second three months of 1918, and the October earnings in particular were considerably above those of any month since June of that year. No one was surprised at this; it was well known that deliveries of a given month represent the orders placed several months before, and that orders on hand at the end of July were the largest ever reported by the company outside of a few months immediately after our country went to war. Such was the volume of these unfilled orders, a result of the company's policy of maintaining stable prices, that even at the close of December, with the mills of other companies shutting down, the United States Steel was still operating at capacity in Pittsburgh and around 80 per cent. elsewhere. The earnings nevertheless decreased during the quarter from $16,700,000 in October to $12,000,000 in December, the smallest of any month last year.

MONEY.

TUESDAY, JAN. 25, 1921.

Call money again ruled at 7 per cent. on the Stock Exchange market throughout the day. Business was reported to be on a fair scale, but without any features. In time money there was a fractional hardening in mixed collateral offerings, but the change was little more than nominal. A more important change in the market was the reduction in quoted rates on commercial paper, on which the asking rate of 8 per cent. on best names was eliminated, with only the 7¾ per cent. bid price reported. The rate for other names, which has stood at 8@8¼ per cent. for some time past, was lowered to 7¾@8 per cent.

Government withdrawals from the banks of this Federal Reserve district for tomorrow will amount to $25,750,000, making a total for the week of approximately $37,000,000. Of this, about $32,500,000 will come from New York City banks, out of balances reported at the end of last week amounting to $103,618,000.

DETROIT LIGHT PROFITS OFF.

Edison Company Earned $7.48 a Share, Against $9.93 Year Before.

The annual report of the Detroit Edison Company for last year shows a surplus after charges and taxes amounting to $2,070,936, the equivalent of $7.48 a share earned on the $27,663,000 capital stock. In the preceding year the company earned $9.93 a share on $25,742,700 capital.

Gross revenues for the year were $21,990,351, compared to $16,498,391 in 1919. After the payment of regular dividends for the year the income statement shows a deficit of $130,691, compared with $498,204 in the preceding year.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Heavy selling of exchange, proceeding apparently both from actual holders of bills who had been keeping out of the market during the recent rise and from speculators who were realizing profits, caused a sharp reaction yesterday in Continental exchange rates. French exchange opened a fraction lower at 7.32 cents and declined to 6.75, where it closed. Italian ended nearly ¼ cent lower, Belgian declined exactly ½ cent, Norwegian ¼, and the rate on Berlin fell back about ⅛ cent per mark.

The reaction did not extend to all markets, however. Sterling advanced ¾ cents, then declined 1¾ and recovered 1 cent before the close, which was the same as Monday's. Spanish exchange closed slightly higher and Greece about ⅛ cent. Central European markets generally maintained Monday's closing rates. Argentine and Brazilian exchange were a small fraction higher, and the Montreal rate rose to 88.6 cents, the highest of the year, comparing with 88.3 Monday and 87.6 a week ago.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—Authority to increase the indebtedness of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to the extent of $100,000,000 will be asked of the systems stockholders at the annual meeting here on March 8, it was announced today. Requests for proxies were mailed to the stockholders from the General offices here.

Samuel Rea, President of the railroad, in a circular letter sent to the stockholders, explains the request as necessary in order that the company may not only be able to do its own necessary financing, but, if required, be in a position to assist its subsidiaries in meeting their large maturities during the current year; to settle accounts with the Government, which spent large sums upon the property during Federal control, and to acquire such additional equipment and facilities as may be deemed essential.

The stockholders also will be asked to vote on the ratification of long term leases of sixteen railroad properties now constituting portions of the Pennsylvania system and controlled through ownership of all, or virtually all, of their capital stock. The most important of these are the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad (the "Panhandle"), the Grand Rapids & Indiana Railway and the New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk Railroad.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Some Issues Lending Flat.

Evidence of continued activity on the short side of the market was to be found yesterday in the increased demand for stocks in the loan crowd. Several issues loaned flat, but did not at any time reach the premium point. One of the issues in heaviest demand was Mexican Petroleum, which started out by loaning at 6 per cent. As the scarcity of stock became manifest the rate decreased until the shares were loaning flat. It was said that many of the would-be borrowers of this issue had to go unsatisfied. Sears-Roebuck was another issue which was in scant supply. The borrowing demand was not one that encompassed the entire list, but was confined to special stocks. This seemed to bear out the contention of many that speculators for the decline were confining their operations to the seeking out of possible weak issues.

Traction Issues Active.

As the direct result of the Governor's message covering the local traction companies, trading in the securities of the local concerns in yesterday's stock market was on a larger scale than for some time. At the opening there was a demand for the stock, which brought about a fractional advance, the initial interpretation apparently being bullish, but later, when it was realized that the Governor pointed the way to ultimate municipal ownership sentiment, was reversed and not only were the earlier gains lost, but most of the shares closed showing net losses for the day. In public utility circles and among bankers the message was generally approved, while some of those who have specialized in local street car, elevated and subway securities were particularly well pleased. The movement of traction issues in the bond market almost paralleled the movement of the stock prices in that they opened up and closed off. The Governor's statement that regulation of the situation should be lifted out of politics was specially approved in some quarters.

Railroad Wages Too High.

It is the opinion of a great many railroad managers that the time is approaching rapidly when concerted action must be taken by the carriers in the matter of wage reductions. The last available monthly earnings statistics for the Class 1 railroads show that since the inauguration of the new rate schedules the roads as a whole have earned only a little more than half of the amount that they were expectetd to earn on their aggregate value when the Interstate Commerce Commission approved the increases. To comply with the law rates must either be increased or expenses lowered. It is the unanimous opinion that the public would not submit to higher rates, so expenses must be cut. And the one item in the expense account of the American transportation system which is able to bear a cut and will yield enough money to allow for the functioning of the law is the payroll. Outside industry is already beginning to ask why it should pay such high rates when those rates are held up because of rail wage scales which are higher than those in their industries, and it is believed that the pressure will soon result in a definite effort to bring rail wages down in proportion with the decreases in the cost of living.

Improved Grain Movement.

Reports from the West indicate that grain producers in the West, Northwest and Southwestern areas are shipping more freely. All of the bread grains such as wheat, corn, rye, and barley are being received at primary points in increasing volume, and the week-by-week improvement is marked. That this will find some reflection in the traffic figures of some of the railroads serving the districts mentioned is a natural assumption, but it is not expected that it will serve to offset tthe general slump in other kinds of traffic.

December Reports Delayed.

It is expected that the December earnings statements of a large number of the railroads to the Interstate Commerce Commission probably will be delayed from one week to three. This is because several of the roads have to make extensive readjustment in items which had been carried during the other months pending various decisions. Appropriations were made early in 1920 to cover the items in the budget, and probably the most disturbing incident was the wage award by the Railroad Labor Board in July. This meant that an item of $600,000,000 had to be fitted into the accounts of the carriers which they had not expected.

Five Per Cent. by March 1?

A banker who handles probably as much money for loans as any other in the Street is predicting 5 per cent. call money by March 1. Money, he says, is plentiful now—much more so than the 7 per cent. rate on the board would seem to indicate—and he expects it to become more plentiful in the next few weeks. He thinks that funds will be flowing in from the interior and he is convinced that a rate lower than the current quotation on the Stock Exchange is not going to "scare off" interior balances to any noticeable extent for the reason that interior lenders will not be able to find home employment for their funds at any better figure than will obtain here.

Not Plentiful for Stocks.

Money, most of the money brokers agree, is plentiful for everything but stocks. One big handler of funds says that his firm is well supplied with offerings of all kinds except demand collateral loans, and money for these continues reasonably scarce. It would appear that the lenders are favoring eligible paper more than ever and what money they have for collateral loans they are trying to place on the ninety-day maturity, doubtless on the theory that money is going to be much cheaper within the next ninety days. But the borrowers are just as adverse to borrowing for three months as the lenders are axious to lend, so there is not a great deal of business being done.

Wanted; A Rail Issue.

The almost phenomenal success of the Belgian loan and the American Agricultural Chemical offerings has inspired distributing bankers with thoughts of what might be if only the available supply of new securities included some prime rail issue. The appetite for new stuff of high grade and at attractive figures seems to be as keen as ever and yesterday many distributing bankers were convinced that a good rail offering would be easily sold and profitable to handle.

Some Facts Regarding Liberty Bonds

United States is by far the richest nation in the world; in comparison with other countries our national debt is ridiculously small. More nearly normal money rates and industrial conditions will mean that obligations of the United States will return to a basis where the yield will approach that of pre-war days. In the meantime Liberty Bonds are selling to yield more than certain standard issues of railroad and municipal obligations.

If some of the tax features of Liberty Bonds are not clearly understood we invite requests for information.

DENIES RAIL HEADS FAVORED OWN SHOPS

A. C. L. President Asserts They Held No Interest in Concerns Which Made Repairs.

J. R. Kenly President of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company issued a statement yesterday denying that his road ever had its equipment repaired in outside shops in which officers or Directors of the railroad were personally interested. His statement, which lays the necessity for farming out some repair work to the fact that shop efficiency on the Atlantic Coast Line was decreased not less than 30 per cent. through the abolishing of piecework and the substitution of the eight in place of the ten-hour day, said:

"The Baldwin Locomotive Works have practically rebuilt twenty Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company locomotives and are rebuilding ten more. Two were sent to the American Locomotive Works for repairs. The contract for the first ten was made during Federal control with the full concurrence of the Regional Director and the work upon them was begun before the end of Federal control. No cars have been repaired at outside shops.

"We estimate that the efficiency of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company's shops was decreased not less than 30 per cent. during the period of Federal control by the reduction of the work day from ten to eight hours by the forced abandonment of piecework, by the forced obligation of the closed shop and by successive Federal interpretations of the rules and regulations governing shop control and operations.

"No Director or othe officer of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company has any direct or indirect interest in either the Baldwin or the American Locomotive Works.

"When the Federal Government took over the railroads on Dec. 31, 1917 there were 112 engines out of service requiring repairs. At the end of Federal control on March 1, 1920 there were 202.

"A locomotive is supposed to be near the time of shopping for major repairs when it has made 100,000 miles. On Dec. 31 1917, the following was part of the locomotive record:

"On March 1, 1920, when the railroads were returned to their stockholders:

Locomotives having made more than 100,000 miles..................118

"Add to this condition a decreased shop capacity of not less than 30 per cent. and you have the reason why the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad was forced to employ outside shops if it was to meet the demands of the public for transportation service."

BUSINESS: The Company was organized in 1899 under the laws of Connecticut. Its business is the manufacture and sale of chemical fertilizers and allied products. It owns and operates 50 plants well distributed to serve agricultural districts in the United States. It also owns lands containing phosphate deposits estimated sufficient to meet the Company's requirements of this basic raw material for more than 100 years.

ASSETS: Total net assets, based on June 30, 1920 balance sheet but including proceeds of present financing, are valued at $113,254,547 or more than 3 times total funded debt of $36,959,000. Value of the mortgage property alone is more than $53,000,000 or 144% of the total funded debt. In addition net current assets (working capital) are more than $55,000,000.

EARNINGS: Net profits applicable to interest charges for fiscal year ended June 30, 1920 (after deducting $2,308,351 for depreciation and depletion) were $7,164,733, or 2.75 times the present interest charges of $2,597,950 on the total $36,959,000 funded debt, including this issue. Average annual net profits for last 5 years were $7,630,778, or nearly 3 times these charges.

SINKING FUND: 3% annually of total First Refunding Mortgage Bonds issued, first payment February 1, 1923, to be used for purchase or call and retirement of Bonds; sufficient to retire before maturity more than 50% of the amount of the present issue. In addition, a sinking fund of $375,000 per year is operating to retire the First Mortgage 5% Bonds.

SECURITY: These Bonds will be secured by a mortgage on all real estate, plants and equipment, now owned or hereafter acquired by the Company, subject only to the $6,959,000 First (closed) mortgage 5s, to retire which, First Refunding Mortgage Bonds are reserved. Total mortgage debt at any time outstanding is limited to 75% of the value of mortgaged properties. In addition, the Company covenants to maintain net assets at least 250% of total funded debt and to maintain current assets at least 140% of current liabilities.

DIVIDENDS: Regular 6% cash dividends have been paid on the Preferred Stock continuously since organization in 1899. Continuous cash dividends averaging over 5% per year have been paid on the Common Stock from January, 1912, to October, 1920, (8% during each of the last two years). In January, 1921, the 2% quarterly Common dividend was paid in Common Stock at par.

We Recommend these Bonds for Investment

NEW ENGLAND ROADS REJECT RATE OFFER

Rail Presidents Proposed Giving Up to $15,000,000 More on Through Freight.

BROADER MEETING HERE

Heads of All Trunk Lines Are Asked to Attend Friday in Effort to Settle the Problem.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—A call was issued tonight for a meeting in New York Friday of all railroad Presidents whose lines might be affected by the redivision of revenues from through freight rates between trunk lines west of the Hudson River and New England carriers. The meeting was called after the breaking up today of the conferences here of the Presidents of eleven large Eastern railroads, through inability to arrive at any compromise acceptable to New England roads.

The conference here sought an adjustment of the controversey without action by the Intestate Commerce Commission, and on the failure to reach an agreement the hearings before the commission were continued, with W. S. Kallman, of the New York Central, as a witness. Mr. Kallman attacked the exhibits submitted by the New England carriers at previous hearings on the ground that they were not fair to the trunk lines. He presented New York Central exhibits, which, he said, gave a fairer showing of the moneys received by New England carriers.

Presidents from the Eastern lines are understood to have offered the New England carriers $12,000,000 to $15,0000,000 to meet their estimated annual deficit of $27,500,000. E. J. Pearson, President of the New Haven, and J. H. Hustis, President of the Boston and Maine, however, were said to have refused to accept the offer, holding that it left too great a deficit to be made up in other ways, and that the New England roads would only be postponing bankruptcy to accept.

The meeting called for Friday in New York is expected to allow the New England carriers an opportunity to place their financial troubles before the entire list of presidents whose lines would be affected by the granting of a larger share of the joint rates to the carriers east of the Hudson.

The insistence of Chairman Clark of the Interstate Commerce Commission that an amicable adjustment be reached by the two groups was understood to have played a large part in the decision to hold another meeting in New York. One executive said, "Chairman Clark talked stronger to us than ever before" when informed of the failure to reach an agreement at the conferences here.

STEEL CO. EARNINGS FALL $4,200,000

HIGHEST IN OCTOBER

Return of $16,775,443 for Month Is Record for Year—Regular Dividend Declared.

The report of the United States Steel Corporation for the final quarter of last year, which was announced yesterday, showed net earnings of $43,877,862 after allowance for all expenses and estimated Federal income and excess profits taxes. As compared with the third quarter of the year the earnings were less by $4,200,000, but they exceeded the earnings reported in the first and second quarters. After all charges the balance available for dividends, with due allowance for the preferred, was equal to $4.09 a share on the common stock. In the preceding quarter the earnings on the common were equal to $4.76 a share, while in the December quarter of 1919 the amount available for the junior issue was equal to $2.27 a share.

The record of earnings by months in the report for the December quarter showed October at $16,775,443, November at $15,002,919, and December earnings were $12,099,500. Briefly, the October earnings were the highest reported in any month of the year and the December earnings were the lowest. The sharp falling off in earnings in December was something of a surprise to the financial district, since it was not foreshadowed in any of the reports as to operations which have been coming forth. The only possible construction which could be placed on the display was that at some place along the line operations had failed to hold up to the high standard that was generally reported by trade publications. In no other way, it was argued, could earnings have been so adversely affected, since prices were unchanged. When asked for an explanation Judge Gary, Chairman of the Board, said it was purely a seasonal situation, earnings always declining in December.

It was to be seen by a glance at the records, however, that December of 1919 was a contradiction since December earnings were the highest of the quarter. Earnings in October and November of that year were, however, adversely affected by the steel strike. But taking the year as a whole, December earnings in 1919 were exceeded by only two other months of the year. The general run of reports all through the last quarter of 1920 showed that the Steel Corporation was operating at somewhere in the neighborhood of 90 per cent. capacity, the high basis being emphasized as opposed to the position of the independents.

The last quarter earnings were made possible by heavy infringement on forward business. Unfilled tonnage was cut down sharply since new demand was not by any means the equivalent of operations. In other words, the earnings of the corporation were made possible by cutting down the size of the backlog of orders. Various reasons were advanced for this, among them one that the corporation hoped to get as much as possible out of its forward business before cancellations played a big factor in reducing unfilled tonnage.

On the basis of the quarterly reports for 1920, which are usually subject to some revision before the annual report appears, net earnings for the year reached the total of $177,174,126, an increase of more than $33,000,000 over those reported for 1919. After all charges and estimated allowances for Federal taxes, the balance available for dividends was $110,136,105, or $33,042,945 more than in the preceding year. After allowing for preferred dividends of $25,219,677 the amount available for the common stock was $84,916,428, or the equivalent of $16.70 a share. This is more than three times the annual dividend rate. In 1919 the earnings on the common were equal to $10.20 a share.

The following table shows the chief items in the report for the December quarter, the same items in the previous quarter and the report for the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1919, also the net earnings by months for the last three years.

Inland Steel Profits Are $4,107,061.

The report of the Inland Steel Company for last year, which reached Wall Street yesterday, shows net profits after charges and Federal taxes amounting to $4,107,061. This was equal to $16.31 a share earned on the $25,175,175 capital stock, as compared with $20.24 a share earned on the $25,019,500 capital stock outstanding in the year before. After the payment of dividends there was a surplus amounting to $1,343,155, as compared with $3,063,553.

London Bank Ordered to Wind Up.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The court today ordered the compulsory winding up of the affairs of the British-American Continental Bank, which suspended payments Jan. 6. Counsel said that probably all the creditors would be paid in full.

In financial circles in London at the time of the suspension of the bank the general financial situation was given as the reason. The bank was formerly Hannevig's Bank, Limited, and had a capital of £2,500,000.

Barnsdall Subsidiary Gets Charter.

Announcement was made yesterday of the incorporation in Delaware of the Barnsdall Foster Oil Co., a subsidiary of the Barnsdall Corporation, with a nominal capital of $100,000. It will operate in the Montana and Wyoming fields, where it has obtained approximately 11,000 acres of oil lands. Edwin B. Reeser will be president of the company, H. V. Foster vice president, and R. A. Broomfield secretary and treasurer.

Germany Owes Us $228,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The debt of Germany to the United States for the maintenance of American troops in German territory under the Treaty of Versailles now aggregates $228,000,000, according to a statement placed in the Congressional Record today by Senator McKellar, Democrat, of Tennessee.

E. H. GARY PREDICTS BUSINESS REVIVAL

Labor's Attitude Is a Hopeful Sign for a Gradual Improvement Soon, He Says.

Improvement in business conditions in the near future was predicted yesterday by Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of the United States Steel Corporation. The attitude of the masses of the workmen, he said, led him to be hopeful.

"Our own business," he said, "is running about the same as it has been going during the last sixty days. Those who have been expecting a sudden and satisfactory revival of business will probably be disappointed, but others who have taken into account all the conditions throughout the world which have a bearing upon business conditions and prospects should be well satisfied with the developments which have been shown.

"It seems to me the two important factors to be considered in trying to prognosticate the future relate to the high costs of production and the high costs of living. There have been some readjustments in respect to one factor which are appreciable and tend in the right direction. As to the wage rates I think, generally speaking, employes have been fair and reasonable. Of course, I do not include the rates paid to those who have suddenly become experts, including men working at the carpentry trade at the rate of $1 to $1.50 an hour, or other similar trades, influenced by special conditions not necessary to mention, having nothing to do with the law of supply and demand; not to the retailers who are paying not more than 50 per cent of former prices and yet insisting upon as high or even higher prices for what they sell.

"The inexorable law of supply and demand will bring all different lines of activity to a realization of what must be done before we can expect a normal volume of business on a fair and reasonable basis. I still think that with the elimination of extravagance and waste in all public and private departments, the disposition to economize and save, and a reasonable effort to cooperate, we shall, as the days go by, see a continued, if slow, improvement in business conditions in the comparatively near future. All that I see in my connections with industry, and particularly concerning the attitude of the masses of the workmen, leads me to be hopeful. There will still be seen pessimists, self-appointed agitators and others who are of no particular benefit to the general community."

COMMODITY MARKETS MOVE IRREGULARLY

Several Food Items Record Declines—Metals and Textiles Mixed.

There was a good deal of irregularity in yesterday's wholesale markets. Such changes as were recorded favored the declining, rather than the advancing side, but several items were unchanged from the preceding day. In foodstuffs, wheat, flour, sugar and eggs were unaltered, but corn, oats, and most of the meats were fractionally lower. The advances in the food department of the commodities list were in coffee and sugar and amounted to very little. Metals were mixed, with lead and copper unchanged, iron slightly higher and tin down. Spot cotton, on the basis of middling at New York, was off 65 points to 16.20 cents per pound.

HOOVER IN COMBINE OF BIG ENTERPRISES

ALL EX-GOVERNMENT MEN

Drawn Together by the War, They Will Raise Cotton, Develop Water Power and Timber.

The formation was announced yesterday of a holding corporation, with offices at 42 Broadway, of which Julius H. Barnes, formerly of the United States Grain Corporation, is President, and in which Herbert C. Hoover is interested, to combine several industrial enterprises and establish others dealing principally with so-called waste products.

The Intercontinental Development Company, as the new corporation is named, has a Maryland charter and controls The Washington Herald, in which Mr. Hoover is a large stockholder; the Pejepscot Paper Company of Pejepscot, Me., makers of print paper and specialties, and the Kleaflax Linen Rug Company of Duluth.

The Pejepscot Paper Company has timber holdings in Maine and Canada and is endeavoring to reforest clearings as they are made, and to carry out cutting in such a way as to preserve the young growth. This company also is endeavoring to utilize the water power within its holdings.

The Kleaflax Linen Rug Company makes its product from flax straw, which has been a waste product in the linen industry. Among the new plans of the company is the development by irrigation of large tracts of land in California for the production of cotton.

Besides Mr. Barnes other officers of the company are E. M. Flesh, a St. Louis grain operator and Treasurer of the United States Grain Corporation, Vice President and Treasurer; Edgar Rickard, mining engineer and director of the American Relief Administration, Vice President and Secretary, and Edwin P. Shattuck, Vice President and counsel.

An officer of the corporation said yesterday that the concern does not propose to enter the grain, mining or shipping fields. "The officers of the company are all men who have been doing Government work since the beginning of the war, and before that were engaged in European relief work. We were brought together by the war and its influences. Because of our congenial associations we have decided to go into business, feeling that many of our present economic ills can best be served by increased production on a large scale and the better utilization of waste products and uncultivated areas."

BULGARIA'S SITUATION.

Good and Bad Sides to the Banking Position.

The British Board of Trade Journal reports a Director of the leading Bulgarian bank as stating during a recent visit to London that the Bulgarian joint stock banks as a whole seem to have prospered throughout the eight years of Balkan and European warfare. The interview states that most of them have paid 10 per cent. dividends, notwithstanding the increase of their capital four or five times during the period, and their deposits show a corresponding increase. The banks are stated to have met their own foreign obligations mostly by drawing on their pre-war balances abroad.

But for war-time indebtedness incurred since 1914, the banker continued, the moratorium still exists and is not likely soon to be terminated. Moreover, private debts to foreign creditors are still almost entirely unpaid. It appears that the banking interests in Bulgaria previously controlled by German and Austrian capital have been very largely bought up by French and Italian banking interests, only one bank remaining altogether German.

Now the Tide Has Turned

From 1914 to the first months of 1920, commodity prices have been climbing almost continuously without any appreciable set-back. The jump in commodity prices was followed by an increase in interest rates, because the purchasing value of the dollar had depreciated, and the investor demanded a greater return on his outlay in order to compensate for the wasting power of the monetary unit.

This tendency of interest rates to rise with commodity prices is not peculiar to the past few years—it has demonstrated itself during, and subsequent to, the Civil War and in every period when the trend of prices pointed upwards.

Now, the tide has turned. Many of the influences that combined to promote higher prices are spending their force and commodities are showing a marked decline. According to Bradstreet's index number, wholesale prices at November 1, 1920, had declined twenty-nine per cent from their level of the previous July, while other barometers show corresponding decreases. As interest rates rose when prices ascended so will they decline when the commodity trend is downward, in accordance with the experience of history and the laws of economics.

Already, there is unmistakable evidence of this fact. Recent issues of securities have been sold at interest yields noticeably less than those prevailing a few months ago, and high grade bonds of all classes have advanced appreciably.

The advantages of investing at the present moment, therefore, are obvious. Interest rates will continue to fall with commodities and security prices will advance proportionately so that by purchasing now the investor will reap the full benefits of the appreciation in values. High grade bonds selling at present on an 8% basis will in the standard yield for such securities. In the meantime, the dollar saved to-day will be steadily increasing in value through the restoration of its purchasing power, and the investor is consequently doubly benefited.

We urge our clients not to neglect the unusual opportunities offered for the safe and profitable employment of their savings.

Bonds of power companies have increasing values behind them

It is estimated that there are 14,000,000 homes in the United States still to be supplied with electric light, in addition to an increasing power demand from hundreds of manufacturers whose plants are being equipped for electrical operation.

Such centralization tends to greater economy in operation with a consequent strengthening financially of many well-managed power companies. This is reflected in earnings over a period of years.

However, the increase in price of Power bonds has been in most cases only in line with the general rise in bond prices. A fuller knowledge of the strong position of good power companies and a realization of the tremendous possibilities of additional demand for electricity should lead to still further increases.

SAYS COMBINATIONS HALT NEW BUILDINGS

LABOR UNIONS SCORED

Contractors to Form a Branch Here of National Congress of Their Industry.

Clarence H. Kelsey, President of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, addressing yesterday a building trade conference at the Engineering Societies' Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street, attacked labor unions as giving an "ever decreasing performance by labor for ever increasing wages to labor." He endorsed the work of the Lockwood committee, and said that "banks will not lend to builders or material men if present conditions continue, and they see that so much money is wasted on the job that it never can pay."

The conference, which was attended by general contractors, sub-contractors, material manufacturers, engineers, architects and representatives of labor, met to form a New York branch of a proposed national congress of the building and construction industry. Robert D. Kohn, who presided, was authorized to appoint a committee of five to draft a plan for forming the local organization.

These are among the objects of the association:

"To make a scientific survey of the needs of the industry in workers and of how these needs may be met; to study the present methods of training and enlisting personnel; and to discover and correct the causes of the progressive decline in the supply and quality of workers in the industry.

"To study the needs of the industry in and the sources of supply of raw materials and manufactured products; the quantities of such now available, and to determine the national requirements of construction in 1921 and succeeding years."

Mr. Kelsey declared that it is only a bold man who, in view of the recent exposures in material costs by the Lockwood committee, will proceed with an extensive building program until assured that the combinations are absolutely abandoned and that real competition in price can be obtained. Neither will there be a great building movement until labor "comes to its senses," he said. He announced that he did not mean a great cut in wages, but a great change in what the laborer gives for his wages. "I cannot understand that labor can be so blind as to believe that business can go on with ever-increasing wages to labor and ever-decreasing performance by labor," he continued.

The fundamental principles of the labor unions must be reformed, said the speaker, so that the thrifty, ambitious and industrious workman is rewarded for his skill and efficiency. Labor is bound to be inefficient, Mr. Kelsey said, until the unions permit classified lists, with graded pay for piecework or some other method by which the skillful can do better than the unskillful and lazy.

Hugh Frayne, an organizer for the American Federation of Labor, said that, while workmen in this country were poorly trained, wages were not too high and would never return to the pre-war level. Dr. W. King of the National Bureau of Economic Research, L. K. Comstock and Bassett Jones of the Engineering Council also spoke.

GERMAN BANK STATEMENT.

Decrease of 1,429,000,000 Marks in Note Circulation.

The statement of the Imperial Bank of Germany for the week ended Jan. 15 shows the following changes in marks:

|---|---|---|
| Total coin and bullion | Decreased | 83,000 |
| Gold | Increased | 4,000 |
| Treasury notes | Increased | 459,030,000 |
| Notes of other banks | Increased | 418,000 |
| Bills discounted | Increased | 1,297,898,000 |
| Advances | Increased | 5,832,000 |
| Investments | Decreased | 9,485,000 |
| Other securities | Decreased | 198,861,000 |
| Notes in circulation | Decreased | 1,429,684,000 |
| Deposits | Increased | 3,027,792,000 |
| Other liabilities | Decreased | 43,359,000 |

Gold holdings and outstanding note circulation of the bank compare as follows with the corresponding week of 1920 and 1919, in thousands of marks:

| | 1921. | 1920. | 1919. |
|---|---|---|---|

The Reichbank's gold stood at 1,722,758,000 marks when the war broke out. The highest point reached by the bank's gold reserve since the war began was 2,550,240,000 marks, on Nov. 15, 1918, since when it has been steadily depleted by payment for imported foodstuffs. In July of 1914 the note circulation was 1,890,893,000 marks; the figure of Dec. 31, 1920, 68,745,000,000 marks, was the highest ever reached.

FOREIGN NEWS SENDS COTTON LIST DOWN

Indian Unrest Upsets Liverpool and Manchester—January Notices Make Record.

Record tenders of January notices and lower and unsettled Liverpool prices sent our market down rather sharply yesterday in the forenoon. The decline then was arrested, but before the day was ended weakness again appeared and by closing time the list was down 46 to 55 points net. Spot prices here were down 65 points to the basis of 16.20 for middlings and the market tone was decidedly heavy.

Advices from abroad spoke of the poor tone at Liverpool and of upset conditions at Manchester. At the latter place, it was reported, word had been received from India asking for a temporary cessation of shipments, and private advices were to the effect that labor and social disturbances in India were assuming serious proportions. These reports upset the Liverpool market, which had started at advances of 5 to 14 points—less than they were due to have advanced—and then declined until at the close they were down 16 to 25 points on the day. Spots there were up 11 points, but the spot market was dull.

The January notices totaled about 45,000 bales, on top of the nearly 39,000 which had previously appeared, and constituted a high record for any month in a very long time. Virtually all of this was taken by the same three houses which had taken the earlier notices, and this fact led to a considerable amount of uneasiness as to the ultimate disposition of the cotton. Reports of shipment abroad and of consumption by domestic mills were not taken very seriously, and around the ring there was general fear expressed that a good part of the cotton would come back into the market in the form of March sales. The January contract, which expired at noon, was driven down a full 100 points before it ended.

The rest of the market sold off in sympathy with January and in reflection of the budget of unfavorable news. Yesterday's quotations follow:

| | Open | High | Low | Close | Previous Day |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Jan. | 16.35 | 16.45 | 15.60 | | 16.60 |
| Mch. | 14.55 | 14.68 | 14.27 | 14.33@14.34 | 14.88 |

| Dec. | 15.18 | 15.21 | 14.95 | 14.87 | 15.33 |

The local market for spot cotton was quiet, down 65 points to 16.20c for middling upland; sales 4,900 bales.

Southern spot markets were: Galveston 14c, unchanged; New Orleans 14.25c, down .25; Savannah 15c, down .50; Augusta 14c, down .25; Memphis 14.50c, unchanged; Houston 13.10c, down .50; Little Rock 14.50c, unchanged.

| | Yesterday | Last Wk. | Last Yr. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Port receipts | 34,503 | 35,365 | 44,320 |

NORTHERN ROUTE $128.40

Homeseekers' Charge of Two Cents a Mile on One-Way Tickets Is Re-established.

The Western transcontinental railroads have met and agreed on the excursion rates for the Summer season this year from June 1 to Oct. 31, according to information obtained in railroad circles yesterday, and it is expected that the Eastern carriers will decide soon upon the rates which they will charge between Atlantic Coast points and Chicago.

The Western carriers have agreed that the excursion fare direct to Pacific Coast points and back will be $106.80, while a trip over the Northern route through the Canadian Rockies will cost $128.40. The latter will mean 6,000 miles of transportation at a rate of approximately 2 cents a mile, as compared with more than 3 cents now obtaining.

These figures show a 20 per cent. increase over the excursion fares which were in force in the corresponding period of 1920.

In addition, the Western roads have re-established what is known as homeseeker fares which are at the rate of 2 cents a mile on one-way tickets.

TO COMPENSATE RAILROAD.

Baker Asks $285,000 for Damage to Cars by Gillespie Explosion.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Appropriation of an additional $285,000 for payment of damages caused by the explosion of the Gillespie munitions plant in New Jersey in 1918 was requested by Secretary Baker of the War Department in a supplemental estimate sent today to the Senate.

Most of this sum, according to findings of liability made by the Government legal officials, would be to reimburse the Pennsylvania Railroad for freight cars of other railroads destroyed at its terminal.

Claims of insurance companies for [illegible] for losses paid were disapproved by Secretary Baker, who said there was no legal or moral liability against the Government for hazards assumed by the insurance companies.

Denies Ford Sought Loan.

DETROIT, Jan. 25.—The Ford Motor Company has not initiated negotiations for a loan of upward of $50,000,000 as reported last week in New York banking circles, according to a close business associate of Henry Ford.

Offers of a loan have been received, it was said, from a number of banks, whose representatives have called at the company's offices here during the last week, but they have been declined.

Your Family's Welfare

WITH most men, the desire to provide liberally for the requirements of their family is paramount. To accomplish this means careful management, wise investment, thrift and economy.

These same details should be just as carefully supervised when the time comes to distribute the estate so that the beneficiaries may receive their full due.

Prudent men consult specialists for every requirement while living, and for the same reason they appoint a trust company as executor of their estate.

Our experience of over 50 years as executors and trustees warrants your consideration, and we invite an interview.

What Is Thrift In Advertising?

THRIFT in advertising, especially in investment advertising, is represented by a conscientious regard for the cost of space.

Advertising becomes either extravagant or economical, not as measured by agate line rule, but as measured by the effectiveness of its sales message.

Thrift in investment advertising is even more to be measured by the manner in which advertising backs up and is backed up by sales organization.

Knowledge of the bond business, of the marketing of bonds, of territorial characteristics, of follow-up correspondence, and of the human element in investment—these are the factors which combine to make for an ever increasing distribution of security issues among conservative investors.

Why not permit us to co-operate with you along these lines?

BREAK IN WHEAT ON LIGHT SELLING

Prices Decline 4¾ to 5 Cents, With a Moderate Rally at the Close.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 25.—In the last three weeks over 2,000,000 bushels of corn have been moved out of Chicago by two of the leading Eastern railroads to the seaboard for export, confirming the recent reports that the amount of export business was not exaggerated. The grain traffic throughout the West is still above the average for this season despite the smaller arrivals here due to the wet and warm weather, which prevents hauling from the farms to interior points.

The heavy short covering of yesterday weakened the technical position of the grain markets to the extent that it took but little selling by foreigners here and at Winnipeg and local traders to start whole values downward. At the inside prices were off 4¾ to 5 cents from Monday's close, with the finish on a moderate rally, with net losses of 3¾@4⅛c., with May leading. Part of the foreign selling of futures here was regarded as hedging against cash grain. The announcement that Germany required over 100,000,000 bushels of grain had no effect on values, as such a quantity cannot be financed at the present time. There is, however, a very strong impression that as soon as peace is declared with that country and the money now in the hands of the Enemy Alien Property Custodian is returned that a large business will be put through. France took 900,000 bushels of wheat today, including No. 2 hard and red Winter, No. 2 Durum and No. 2 Manitoba. The price was not given. However, Belgium and other countries secured 280,000 bushels via the Gulf, where premiums were easier. Milling demand here was better, with 45,000 bushels of Spring sold out of store and 60,000 bushels more have been ordered shipped. Omaha sold 50,000 bushels of wheat to mills and a like quantity for export. Sentiment after the close was generally very bearish, with a majority of the trade looking for lower prices. Unless an active export demand continued, the statistical position counts for little at the present time.

Coarse grains declined readily and sold within a fraction of the low figures on the crop, closing 1 to 1⅛c. lower on corn and ⅝c. lower on oats. Hedging sales continue to come into the corn market, with the pit furnishing practically the only demand for the grain not needed for export or by the industries. Sentiment is very bearish and it would not be surprising to see new low prices on the crop made early tomorrow unless the unexpected happens. The let-up in the movement of corn is regarded as only temporary, and a return of colder weather would result in heavy selling by the country, although the prices are regarded as low by many operators.

In the last two days primary markets have received a total of 10,000,000 bushels of wheat, corn and oats. Arrivals of wheat today were 884,000 bushels; week ago, 1,020,000 bushels; year ago, 638,000. Shipments, 678,000; week ago, 829,000; year ago, 592,000. Receipts of corn, 2,283,000 bushels; week ago, 1,705,000; year ago, 736,000. Shipments, 889,000; week ago, 798,000; year ago, 466,000.

84% OF FAILURES DID NOT ADVERTISE
Special to The New York Times.
ALBANY, Jan. 19.—"A few days ago one of the financial agencies (either Dun's or Bradstreet's) gave out the information that of all the failures recorded in 1920, 84 per cent. were of firms which did not advertise."
This was the statement of George A. Cullen, Vice President

Evidence— If Not Proof

THE American Public prefers to deal with houses of established reputation; when given the opportunity of choice the public invariably picks the advertised product.

Take the question home to yourself. Would you buy a jewel from a person or concern you did not know?

Would you buy an unmarked spark plug, or can of paint, when you could buy a branded make made known to you by advertising?

What are the best brands of hats, collars, shirts; of package foods, of furniture—isn't your opinion based on public opinion formed by advertising?

Through years of education, the public has been taught that only quality articles can be consistently advertised.

We would be glad to show you how you can take advantage of this public attitude.

SMITH AND DOOLING CHARGES DISMISSED

WORK NEARLY FINISHED

Court Advises Against Return of Presentment Against an Individual, as Desired by Some Jurors.

The Extraordinary Grand Jury, better known as the "Almirall Grand Jury," reported to Justice Bartow S. Weeks, in the Supreme Court yesterday, the dismissal of the charges against Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith, made by former Police Inspector Dominick Henry, Jacob L. Goldman and Bernard Freedman. The jury also reported dismissal of the charges brought by Gaston B. Means against Assistant District Attorney John T. Dooling.

The charges against Smith included an allegation that he had accepted a bribe to protect an east side stuss game and that he used improper methods in endeavoring to obtain evidence against Inspector Henry. The charges against Dooling grew out of his investigation of the murder, nearly three years ago, of Mrs. John T. King in Wilmington, N. C.

Justice Weeks remarked that the Grand Jury has been in session about eighteen months, and expressed the hope that he would soon be able to excuse the jurors from further duty. He said that certain members of the Grand Jury had told him that they wished to make a presentment against an individual—seemingly a public official—and the Justice warned them against it, declaring that a study of the circumstances convinced him that such a presentment would be without legal warrant.

Justice Weeks said that Raymond F. Almirall, the foreman, had said the work of the Grand Jury had been practically completed except on one matter. He added that this matter had been referred to William Rand, Jr., Special Deputy Attorney General, adviser to the jury.

Justice Weeks paid tribut to the jury's jury's work in connection with criminal anarchy, and continued:

"It is only fair to say that by the fearless performance of your duty in this respect that the crime of criminal anarchy has been very materially controlled and driven into darkness and seclusion." He urged more croful supervision of immigration.

"Your foreman," he then said, "has told me there is some desire to submit to this court a presentment. I think it has generally received the disapprobation of the court to bring about the presentation of facts relating to an individual. That is, in effect, to charge wrogdoing that does not constitute a crime. Such action directed against any individual may be doing him a great wrong. Directed against any public official the wrong would be still greater. Let me warn you, therefore, against going beyond the properly prescribed grounds of a Grand Juryman's duty into debatable fields of uncertainty."

PIPE NOT BOMB, SAYS GEGAN

Explosion in Smelting Plant Due to Picric Acid in Tube.

Detective Sergeant Gegan of the Bomb Squad determined yesterday that the piece of lead pipe which exploded Monday afternoon in the plant of the Columbus Smelting and Refining Company, 365 West Street, killing one workman and injuring three others, was not a bomb, as first supposed.

Investigation had disclosed, he said, that the pipe was part of some wartime junk purchased by the company. Picric acid, used in the manufacture of ammunition, was found on the inside of the pipe, he said.

ASK SEAMEN TO TAKE CUT.

Steamship Owners Make Another Appeal "In Grave Crisis."

The American Steamship Owners' Association, 17 Battery Place, which last week asked the engineer and deck officers on American ships to agree to a wage reduction of 25 per cent., elimination of overtime and readjustment of subsistence and room allowance, yesterday presented a formal request to the Sailors' and Firemen's Unions of the Atlantic and Gulf for a "readjustment of wages and working conditions to meet the present depression in the shipping industry." While no word has yet been received from the engineer and deck officers, favorable action on the request is expected.

A. J. McCarthy, Manager of the American flag steamers of the International Mercantile Marine Company, Vice President of the sub-committee of the association on wage and working agreements, signed the formal request to the seamen and firemen. In his letter, Mr. McCarthy said in part:

"We believe in adhering to the agreements as written so long as they are unchanged by mutual consent, and we are asking you to co-operate with us to save the new American merchant marine, in which we are alike interested, from the rapid decline which, under existing conditions, seems inevitable.

"Before taking this matter up with you the steamship companies have been and are bending every energy to effect reductions in overhead charges, repairs, fuel, supplies, and all other operating costs. They believe that with these economies and with some readjustment of wage and working costs they will be able to keep in commission ships which otherwise must go out of commission—and perhaps to restore to service some ships not laid up. It is a very grave crisis that is now confronting us."

FEBRUARY MILK PRICE CUT.

Borden's Farm Co. Will Charge a Cent a Quart Less for Supplies.

Patrick D. Fox, President of Borden's Farm Products Company, announced yesterday that the price of milk would be reduced 1 cent a quart in February by his company. Grade B milk, which now sells for 17 cents a quart, will be 16 cents; Grade A, now 20 cents, will be 19 cents. The "dip" milk will also be reduced 1 cent a quart, as will also "route" cream, which now sells for 22 cents a half pint. The company is enabled to do this, Mr. Fox says, because of the lower price that will be paid the producer.

No announcement has yet been made by the Sheffield Farms Company of the February price to the consumer.

They Will Go No Lower, Says Jersey Retail Association.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, Jan. 25.—Clothing prices will go no lower, according to reports submitted today to the New Jersey Retail Clothiers' Association that opened its annual convention here. Delegates say real woolen suits may now be purchased for $35 to $40.

The organization will send resolutions to Congress asking repeal of the luxury tax.

Dunnigan Says He Leads in Votes.

John J. Dunnigan, Democrat, who is contesting the seat of George H. Taylor, Republican Senator-elect in the Twenty-third Senatorial District of the Bronx, said yesterday that the recount of the votes cast at the last election, and now being carried on by the State Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections had shown he had gained 100 votes and that he is now leading Senator Taylor by 80 votes. Senator Taylor, according to official returns, had a plurality of 27 votes.

Anniversary Dinner to Presbrey.

Frank Presbrey, President of the Frank Presbrey Company, was the guest at a dinner last night in the Hotel Plaza by members of the Presbrey organization in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the advertising agency. More than fifty members of the staff, editors and publishers were present. Mr. Presbrey received a loving cup.

APARTMENT DEAL ON PARK AVENUE

INVESTOR ASSEMBLES PLOT

Two important transactions in the apartment house section of the upper east side have just been closed, it was ascertained yesterday, one of which is likely to result in an apartment house improvement. The larger deal involved a change of ownership in the thirteen-story structure on the southwest corner of Park Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street. A syndicate known as the 880 Park Avenue Corporation has just been incorporated at Albany to take over the property from the Seventy-sixth Street and Park Avenue Company, which erected the building about ten years ago. Frederick Johnson is President of the company which holds title to the property.

The house has a frontage on Park Avenue of 102.2 feet by 133 feet on Seventy-sixth Street. The site was assembled by the Alliance Realty Company, the immediate corner having been occupied for many years by the old Seamon stables. The cost of the structure was estimated at $1,000,000 by the architects, George and Edward Blum, and the property is now assessed for taxation by the city at $1,200,000. The new company is capitalized for $875,000 and has for Directors Edward J. Flynn, G. Marcrander and J. F. Gorman. The house has been well rented and is in one of the choice residential areas of Park Avenue.

East Eighty-first Street Deal.

In Eighty-first Street, where there has been considerable buying activity recently, an interesting deal was closed in the purchase by an investor of the three three story residences at 152 to 156 East Eighty-first Street. The property is between Lexington and Third Avenues and the three houses have a combined frontage of 59 feet by 104 feet in depth. The dwelling at 152 was sold by Ida M. Hoffman and the other two by the Richard H. Morrison estate. The plot was valued at $90,000.

Pease & Elliman were the brokers in the transaction. No plans have been prepared for improvement, but in the near future an apartment structure will probably be erected on the site.

COURT HOLDS UP CHARTER.

Suspects "Airall Democratic Club" Is Socialist Organization.

Justice Russell Benedict, in the Brooklyn Supreme Court yesterday, refused to grant a certificate of incorporation to the "Airall Democratic Club," whose stated objects were "discussions and investigations of political principles, and for the purpose of promoting more enlarged social intercourse among the residents of the Nineteenth Assembly District."

"I shall not approve this certificate of incorporation," said Justice Benedict, "until I am advised as to whether any of the incorporators are enrolled members of the Democratic Party or whether they are merely using the name 'Democratic' as a cover for socialistic purposes and propaganda, as might be expected from the very vague statement of the objects of the incorporation."

PRIVATE HOUSE BUYERS.

Proceeds of Sales of West Side Dwelling to Go to Y. M. C. A.

Harris, Vought & Co. sold for the estate of Anna M. Sandham the three-story private house, on a plot 22 by 102.2, at 177 East Seventy-ninth Street. The proceeds of the sale, under the will of Mrs. Sandham, are to be turned over to the Y. M. C. A. After extensive alterations, the purchaser will occupy. Kellogg & Rose represented the sellers and John Quinn the purchaser.

The three-story dwelling, 16 by 100, at 328 East 116th Street, has been sold by Vincent J. Orlando to Maria Caso.

James L. Feder has sold to Gizella K. Bloch the four-story house, 18.10 by 35, at 42½ St. Mark's Place.

Mulvihill & Co. sold for Catherine Lawrence the three-story private frame dwelling, 25 by 100, at 126 East 127th Street to a client.

W. W. Jones sold for the New York Society for Relief of Widows and Orphans of Medical Men the two four-story dwellings, on lots 20 by 100 feet each, at 209-211 West 130th Street, to Donald Hold & Co.

Gustav Sandblom has sold the three-story dwelling at 164 West Eighty-fifth Street, on a lot 18.9 by 102. It was taken in part payment for Château-Thierry on Riverside Drive, recently purchased by Joseph S. Ward. Edward C. H. Vogler, was the broker in both transactions. The purchaser is a client of H. F. Byrnes.

COMMERCIAL LEASES.

West Side Plot to Be Improved by Lessee.

The old buildings at 158 and 160 West Twenty-second Street, on a plot 50 by 100, have been leased for twenty-one years by the Markham Realty Company to Max Sindler, who will improve the property for light manufacturing purposes. Mr. Sindler owns the adjoining property, 156 West Twenty-second Street, which he recently built and leased. MacLean & Co. represented the tenant and Dwight, Archibald & Perry, Inc., represented the owner.

M. & L. Hess, Inc., leased for the Beach-Gasper Company to C. A. Auffmordt & Co., commission house, the sixth, tenth and eleventh floors, containing 17,500 square feet each, at 114-20 East Twenty-third Street, for a term of years at an aggregate rental of approximately $300,000.

Samuel H. Martin leased for a term of years to Richard Palmer, for Ida J. L. Hurlbut, the four-story-and-basement building at 134 West Sixty-fifth Street, for business purposes.

Adams & Co. have leased for the West 136th Street Realty Company 80,000 square feet, at 33 to 39 East Twenty-first Street, to various tenants.

Sales in Brooklyn.

William P. Jones sold for James S. Ware to Daniel S. Stone the two lots, each 20 by 100, on the south side of Fifty-seventh Street, 220 feet west of Twenty-first Avenue.

Frank H. Malone, as broker, sold the one-family limestone front dwelling 440 Seventy-fourth Street, for James O'Neill of Hartford, Conn., to a buyer for immediate occupancy.

The Realty Associates sold to the Parkside Improvement Company an unrestricted plot, 125 by 100.2, on the north side of Forty-ninth Street, 100 feet east of Second Avenue, upon which the purchaser will build a one-story garage covering the entire plot.

SURFACE LINE WINS.

Federal Court Finds Official Compulsion of Transfers Illegal.

Federal Judge Hough signed an order yesterday restraining city and State officials from seeking to prevent the Fifty-ninth Street Crosstown Railway Company from discontinuing the exchange of transfers with the Sixth, Seventh, First, Second and Lexington Avenue lines. The company is part of the Third Avenue Railway system.

The court stated that to compel the company to continue the transfer system would violate the law, because it would be confiscatory, and stated that the company received only 2 cents from each transfer passenger and that it cost 3.96 cents per passenger, to say nothing of more than half a cent additional needed to meet interest on borrowed money.

SUBURBAN TRADING.

The Robert E. Farley Organization sold for J. Bayard Kirkpatrick his residence on Ridgeview Avenue, White Plains, to Mrs. Mary Tyson Collins of White Plains, N. Y.

Mrs. Anna McBride sold her stucco residence at 8 Olyphant Park, Morristown, N. J., to Harry J. Greenberger. Eugene v. Welsh was the broker.

Fish & Marvin sold for Charles I. Marvin his property at Lawrence Park West, consisting of dwelling, garage and about one acre of ground, to Ralph Hinchman Jr. The property was held at $30,000. Also, in conjunction with E. J. Lucas, sold a large plot of ground in Pondfield Crossways at Bronxville to A. E. Betteridge of New York City. It is the purchaser's intention to build a residence for his own occupancy.

Prince & Ripley announce the sale of the dwelling owned by Howard Willetts, located on Park Drive, Gedney Farm, White Plains, to M. J. Collins. The property was held at $25,000.

The William A. Brockhurst Company, Inc., of Yonkers purchased from the Valentine Terrace Company a plot of four lots, 100 by 100, at the southeast corner of Riverdale Avenue and Radford Street, Yonkers. The company plans to improve the corner with an apartment building containing several stores.

Tenement Deals.

The Immigrants Relief Corporation has bought from Barnet Weinstein the five-story tenement at 198 Avenue A, 25.9 by 96, located near Twelfth Street.

The four-story flat, 25 by 102.2, at 349 East Seventy-sixth Street, has been sold by Louis S. Barnard to Clara P. Doherty.

The six-story flat, 37.6 by 100.11, at 4 East 117th Street, has been sold by Minnie Crook to a Mr. Gold.

The four-story tenement at 411 West Fifty-fourth Street, on a lot 25 by 100, has been sold by A. W. Miller & Co. for the Mahler estate. It is the first sale of the property since 1870. The same broker also sold the tenement properties at 511 West Fifty-second Street for the Robert Hill estate, at 828 Ninth Avenue, for the Schneider estate, at 214 East Ninty-seventh Street for William F. Fallon, and at 216 East Ninety-seventh Street for Jerome P. Corvan.

The Bronx Market.

Patrick Holland sold for Katheryn R. Brown 2,181 Ryer Avenue, a three-family house, to Harry Watson; also 172 Alexander Avenue to John J. Johnson.

Buys Two Dyckman Plots.

The Columbia Trust Company, as executor, has sold to Walter B. Hill a plot, 100 by 150, on the north side of Broadway, 100 feet east of Academy Street, and an adjacent plot, 25 by 281.4 by irregular, on the west side of Broadway.

RESULTS AT AUCTION.

ACCOUNTANCY SUCCESS.
Five months will qualify you as a junior accountant and twelve months as a senior accountant if you have a grammar school education and ability with figures.
This quick result can be accomplished by the La Salle Problem Method because the student is given enough theory and a great deal of practical work on problems lifted bodily from actual business instead of being given much theory and little practical work.
If you're big enough for a bigger position than you are holding get the facts about this Problem Method by calling for a personal talk, or phone or write.

$125,000 IN BONDS FOUND ON PRISONER

SIX OTHERS HELD IN CASE

Ohio Miner Arrested When He Offers Sleuth a $1,000 Bracelet for $25.

The manner in which William Payton of 56 Paterson Street, Paterson, N. J., came into possession of securities with a face value of $125,000 is a mystery, according to statements made yesterday by Detectives Moran and Fitzpatrick of the East 104th Street Station when they arraigned Payton and three other men and three women in connection with the holdup several days ago of a Paterson jewelry store, during which two bandits obtained $20,000 in jewels.

The detectives said that when they arrested Payton on the night of the hold-up they found in his pockets 700 shares of the Lucky Oil Well Company, issued in 1865; 100 shares of the Inter-State Mining and Milling Company, issued in 1907; 400 shares of Bonanza Chief, issued in 1899; 5 share of the E. A. Rosenheim Company, issued in 1894; 3 shares of the New Jersey Car Spring and Rubber Company, issued in 1869; 20 shares of the Harmon Petroleum Company, issued in 1865; a certificate of 1,000 shares of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company and another certificate of stock in the Selma, Rome & Dalton Railroad Company.

Magistrate Ten Eyck held all of the prisoners without bail for a hearing tomorrow, when it is expected the New Jersey authorities will have completed extradition proceedings.

Magistrate William Sweetser in the Essex Market Court yesterday held John Dousses, who said he was a coal miner from Fairpoint, Ohio, in $1,000 bail for examination tomorrow on suspicion of grand larceny. Detective Smyth of the Fifth Street Station testified that Dousses offered to sell him for $25 a diamond bracelet, which proved to be worth $1,000.

Arthur Stanley Naylor, 21 years old, of Pittsburgh, whose father is a wealthy manufacturer, was arraigned yesterday in Jamaica on the charge of robbery. He was held in $3,000 bail by Magistrate Conway, and will be examined tomorrow.

BANDITS BIND JEWELERS AND GET $30,000 LOOT

Customers of Toledo Store Also Seized, but One, a Girl, Is Supplied With a Chair.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Jan. 25.—Four bandits entered the Daniels jewelry store here today, bound the two proprietors and the customers hand and foot, and escaped in an automobile with jewelry valued at more than $30,000.

The proprietors were felled before being bound by the bandits. Two customers, one of whom was Miss Adele Laramie, 17 years old, upon entering the store were also bound and placed in a rear room. Two architects engaged in considering repairs to the store entered a few moments later and were similarly treated. One of these, Sidney Aftel, escaped later in a mêlée with one of the bandits, but the hold-up party fled before he could summon aid.

A chair was supplied to Miss Laramie by one of the bandits. She said afterward that "they were very kind to me during the half hour they were in the store." The robbers forced the proprietors to unlock the safe at the point of revolvers.

SENTENCE BANK WRECKERS.

Two in Kansas Go to Prison for Thirty Years.

COFFEYVILLE, Kan., Jan. 25.—Allen J. Newman, President of the defunct People's State Bank, and his brother, Rufus P. Newman, Vice President, pleaded guilty today to embezzlement and forgeries. Each was sentenced to thirty years at hard labor in the State penitentiary.

The two bank officials were started on their way to prison at once. The bank was closed last Thursday by Walter Wilson, Kansas Bank Commissioner.

BEATEN IN MONTREAL HOTEL

Pittsburgh Poolroom Man Attacked by Three Unknown Men.

MONTREAL, Jan. 25.—Sam Rosen, a Pittsburgh poolroom proprietor, was attacked by three unidentified men in his apartments at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel here today, and beaten into unconsciousness with the butts of revolvers.

He was removed to a hospital, where a Judge, accompanied by a court stenographer, took a statement to be used in the event of his death.

Lowell Merchant Killed in Store.

LOWELL, Mass., Jan. 25.—David N. Tallen, proprietor of a men's clothing store on Middlesex Street, was shot and killed in the store tonight. One arrest has been made. Robbery is thought to have been the motive.

HOPE TO CONCILIATE WOMEN

S. P. C. C. May Change By-Laws to Induce Return of Auxiliary Committee.

The Trustees of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children met yesterday in the library of the New York Law Institute to receive a report of the special committee appointed to confer with the eight members of the women's auxiliary committee, who resigned in November in protest against "usurpation of their authority."

The eight members who resigned are Mrs. J. Nelson Borland, Chairman; Mrs. Mortimer L. Schiff, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt Jr., Mrs. H. Gloster Armstrong, Mrs. George Nichols, Miss Ellen S. Parks, Mrs. S. C. Borg and Mrs. Morgan J. O'Brien. The ninth member, who did not resign, is Mrs. Robert L. Gerry.

The committee of conciliation was directed to continue its work, and it is hoped that changes in the by-laws will enable the women members to return as soon as possible. The conciliation committee is composed of Alvin W. Krech, Chairman; John G. Agar and Robert D. McCarter.

1921 Eagle Almanac Issued.

The Eagle Almanac for 1921, published by The Brooklyn Daily Eagle, containing 500 pages of general information, with special attention to New York City and Long Island, has just been issued. It was held back for several weeks that the new State appointments might be included. Besides election results, the 1920 census figures, and new State and National Government officials, the book gives a detailed account of activities of the League of Nations, comparative tables showing the changes in wages and the cost of living, rapid transit plans for this city, &c.

JOHN SMITH'S BOOK LEADS PRICES AT SALE

Historie of Virginia, New England and Summer Isles' Brings $2,410.

The sale of the second part of the library of Herman Le Roy Edgar was concluded last evening at the Anderson Galleries. The highest price was $2,410, paid by Dr. A. S. Rosenbach for Captain John Smith's "Generall Historie of Virginia, New England and the Summer Isles," London, 1624-25.

Dr. Rosenbach also purchased "New England, a Degenerate Plant," by John Rous and others, London, 1659, for $900; Sagard-Neodat's "Histoire du Canada," Paris, 1616, for $710 and Philip Vincent's "Relation of the Late Battell between the English and the Pequot Salvages," London, 1638, for $1,200.

Walter M. Hill of Chicago paid $1,425 for Captain John Smith's "Map of Virginia," Oxford, 1612; $1,400 for "Declaration of the Purpose and ends of the Plantation begun in Virginia," London, 1610, and $900 for a book on Virginia, printed in London in 1610.

The session brought $22,875. The total for the second part of the sale was $54,387.

The library of George W. Thompson of this city was sold at the American Art Galleries yesterday. It consisted of notable sets of British, American and French men of letters in bindings by Sangorski and Sutcliffe, Zachnsdorf and Riviere, among others.

The highest price was $720, paid by D. Hesslein for the Edinburgh edition of "The Works of Robert Louis Stevenson," 1894. The total for the afternoon and evening sessions was $22,509.

The session brought $22,875. The total for the second part of the sale was $54,387.

MILLER REFUSES REPRIEVES

Two Mexican Murderers to Die in Sing Sing Tomorrow Night.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 25.—Governor Miller today refused executive clemency to Augustin L. Sanckey and Enrique Garcia, Mexicans, awaiting death in Sing Sing on conviction of murder.

In doing so the Governor declared that not a single fact had been presented to him to justify a reprieve, and added that he did not purpose to grant reprieves "either to raise false hopes in the breasts of defendants or to magnify the chances of escape from the consequences of crime in the minds of those against whom society needs to be protected."

The Governor said that unnecessary delays in the execution of the judgments of the courts "merely tend to bring the administration of justice into disrepute. Punishment for crime should be made as certain as possible and should follow the offense as speedily as the due and orderly administration of justice will admit."

Application for a reprieve to enable a motion for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence was made for the two Mexicans by Ramond de Negri, Mexican Consul in New York City. The execution is set for Thursday night.

NEWARK AIDS HOOVER PLAN.

He Says Our Economic System Is Wrong in Reply to Criticisms.

Fifteen hundred persons paid $10 each for a dinner consisting of one wheat biscuit, milk, a piece of cake and a cup of coffee, served on bare pine tables in the ballroom of the Robert Treat Hotel in Newark last night and sent $15,000 to feed 3,500,000 children in Europe. The dinner was arranged by the Rotary Club.

The address of Herbert C. Hoover clearly was intended as a reply to criticisms of charitable activities in behalf of European children in the face of industrial depression. He said that with food rotting in the fields and warehouses and unmarketed clothing on merchants' shelves, the cause lay in overproduction in the face of a faulty social and economic system.

"We have enough to feed and clothe us and a surplus besides," he said. "Can any one say, as long as we can support 7,500,000 automobiles, we cannot entertain 3,500,000 invisible guests?" We are asking the price of one battleship to feed these starving children."

800 IMMIGRANTS QUIT PIER.

Permitted to Enter U. S. After Four-Hour Examination.

The 800 immigrants who had been encamped on Pier 53 North River since Saturday afternoon, when they landed from the Cunard liner Saxonia, were permitted to enter the United States after four hours' examination by Immigration and health officials.

The shed occupied by the aliens was heated, and they slept upon mattresses laid on the concrete floor. Meals of good food were served three times a day. Many of the immigrants, tasting ice cream for the first time, alternated bites of it with hot roast beef. They seemed to like it. Some of the Irish immigrants waved handkerchiefs out the window to their countrymen working in Gansevoort Market. The workmen yelled, "Throw us a line; we'll give you some fruit." This was done and the Irish immigrants received enough bananas to supply every alien in the shed.

BILL CUTS ARMY TO 150,000.

House Subcommittee Votes for $330,000,000 Appropriation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—An appropriation of $330,000,000 with provision for an army of 150,000 men is understood to have been agreed to by the House Appropriations Sub-Committee, drafting the annual Army Appropriation bill.

The total is a reduction of more than one-half from the amount requested by the War Department, which was about $690,000,000 and a reduction of $60,000,000 from the appropriation for the present year, which provided for an army of 175,000.

Counting the Philippine Constabulary and other forces, the total armed strength provided for under the bill is about 160,000. Both the House and the Senate, however, have directed the maintenance of an army of 175,000 men. The bill will be laid before the full Appropriations Committee and is expected to be reported to the House in a few days.

GALLI-CURCI SUES MANAGER.

Testimony to Be Taken Here in Minnesota Action for Accounting.

Mme. Amelita Galli-Curci is suing her former manager, Charles L. Wagner, in Minnesota for an accounting. This became known yesterday, when Supreme Court Justice Edward R. Finch signed orders directing the taking of testimony here to be used in the Minnesota action. The papers show that Mme. Galli-Curci demands an accounting of all moneys received and expended for her from 1916 to April last.

The witnesses to be examined here are Mark A. Luescher, concerning receipts at Hippodrome concerts, and S. Hurok and Herbert T. Swin, concerning moneys paid the manager for concerts in Ocean Grove, N. J., and the Academy of Music, Brooklyn.

Women Discuss Geneva Congress.

Representatives of many women's organizations met at the home of Mrs. Lewis S. Thompson, 903 Park Avenue, yesterday afternoon to discuss plans for the Second International Congress of Working Women to be held in Geneva March 30. Raymond Fosdick, unable to speak, sent a letter endorsing the movement. The main object of the meeting was to discuss the raising of $10,000 to meet the expenses of the congress and for preparatory work.

On January 6th the largest single shipment of piston rings ever placed by a jobber was made by the No-Leak-O Piston Ring Company. The order called for one carload of piston rings to be delivered to the Pennsylvania Rubber and Supply Company, of Cleveland, Ohio. It is the first carload shipment on record—an honor for which every piston ring company has been striving for years past.

A new motor, equipped with almost any make of piston ring, runs smoothly and has maximum power. But after being run a few hundred miles it begins to lose power, pump up oil and carbonize.

The cylinder walls have warped or shrunk, due to expansion and contraction. The piston ring cannot conform to the depressions or warped places. The explosions and other forces destroy the seal of oil between the ring and cylinder wall as the ring passes over these spots—the gas and power escape—the escaping oil passes up to the firing chamber.

Seven years ago J. E. Norwood, well known mechanical engineer, discovered the fact that any grooved piston ring possessed marked advantages over a smooth-faced ring, because the groove picked up a small quantity of oil and carried it up and down over the wall of the cylinder, forming an oil seal.

The Only Practical Groove That Cannot Clog.

The No-Leak-O angled groove is cut in such a way that on the down-stroke of the piston the surplus oil will be forced towards the oil pit and the groove refilled with fresh oil; and on the up-stroke the oil will be drawn from the groove and distributed onto the cylinder wall, insuring perfect lubrication and a non-leaking oil seal, regardless of warped or worn places on the cylinder wall.

The Price Is Always the Same—50c Up.
